GREEKS RETURNING MUTINOUS IN DEFEAT CHEER VENIZELOS

Compel Troopships to Carry Them to Piraeus; Land Shouting Insults to Constantine.

TURKS ORDERLY IN SMYRNA

Promise Security There, but Constantinople Mobs Attack Greek Homes and Churches.

HINT OF MASSACRES GIVEN

Sixty American Sailors Landed in Smyrna, Where Typhus and Plague Are Raging.

ATHENS, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—The first troops have reached Piraeus from the former Greek front in Asia Minor in a mutinous mood. They paraded the streets in the city in small and large groups in a demonstration against King Constantine, many of them shouting insults to him and cheering for Venizelos.

Five transports bearing troops had received instructions from the War Department to land the soldiers on the islands of the Aegean, but the troops are declared to have forced the Captain to proceed to Piraeus, and they landed there despite orders to the contrary.

Nine thousand soldiers have arrived at Piraeus from Smyrna thus far. They are being disarmed as soon as they land and sent to their homes. Comparative calm prevails here tonight.

The abdication of Constantine is being openly discussed, and the newspapers are demanding the return of Venizelos.

Evacuation of Smyrna Complete.

M. Theotokis, the Greek High Commissioner, who has just returned here from Smyrna, announces that the Greek evacuation of that city is complete.

The troops, together with the war material saved, are being taken to islands in the Near East. The Government is endeavoring to avoid a great concentration of troops in Piraeus and Athens.

According to other advices in Smyrna, which is controlled by foreign naval detachments, relative order prevails. The population has been somewhat comforted by the assurance that the allied Admirals in Smyrna have nothing to fear from the Kemalist forces.

King Constantine issued a proclamation in which he exhorted the Greek people to bear their "terrible trial" with patience and courage. The King referred to the "glorious deeds" of the Greek Army in the past decade, which he said had not been diminished by the present misfortune.

"It is my will to do what the Constitution allows and what the nation's interests impose on me," the proclamation added. "I am confidently expecting a demonstration of your known virtues of patriotism and concord.

"You have always proved yourselves patriotic, loyal and patient. Our heroic army, whose banners have been crowned with victory for ten years, has suffered a misfortune, which is not unusual in armies after a long period of war. But this misfortune, unforeseen by the enemy himself, in no way diminishes the valor and glory of our army.

"On the contrary, it is our duty to bear the misfortune courageously and patiently, as befits a patriotic and courageous people. A small but valiant nation, we rendered by our struggles inestimable services to our oppressed brothers and to civilization, and our valor and abnegation will be extolled by future generations.

"Let us unite and give full obedience to our chiefs. Such is our duty."

Turks Occupied Smyrna Saturday.

ADANA, Asia Minor, Sept. 9.—The Turkish forces which took possession of Smyrna today (Saturday), and captured the Greek army there, entered peacefully and without resistance, according to advices from that city. Turkish columns arrived in the outskirts of Smyrna in the morning, but awaited reinforcements for two hours. Airplanes in the meantime flew over the city dropping leaflets reading:

"The Turkish army will soon deliver the city of Smyrna. The population is advised to remain calm and to support the Turkish cause by joining the Nationalist movement."

A great crowd of Turks marched out of the city as soon as they read the proclamation, and went to meet the Turkish troops, and in the afternoon the Second Division entered Smyrna. The commander immediately sought the allied authorities and assured them that no one was endangered.

The Second was followed in the evening by the Fifth Division, and all the remaining Greek forces were made prisoner. Only about 200 officers, who

Venizelos Going to Paris To Confer on Greek Crisis

GENEVA, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—Eleutherios Venizelos, former Premier of Greece, who is visiting at St. Moritz with his family, intends to go to Paris, probably on Tuesday, unless the developments in Greece meantime cause him to alter his plans.

He is expected to confer with political and personal friends in the French capital regarding the situation in Athens.

M. Venizelos declines to discuss the Greek political situation, but friends see in his proposed trip to Paris evidence that he is considering the possibility of being called back to power in Greece.

Man Lived Twenty-Four Hours After Heart Had Once Stopped

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Co.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—A patient at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, whose heart had stopped beating, was restored to life Wednesday night and remained alive for more than twenty-four hours.

The man had been operated on for septic tonsilitis, and immediately after the operation his heart action stopped and his breathing ceased. The operating surgeon, in his statement, says:

"We did artificial respirations of the usual kind for five or ten minutes, but there was no response on the part of the heart. I decided to open the abdomen and massaged the heart through the diaphragm. After that had been going on for about ten minutes more with no response from the heart, I perforated the diaphragm and massaged the heart in the pericardium. The heart was at first completely lax, but after a time it began to quiver, and after about ten minutes more massaging began to beat normally. The man certainly lived, but he never gave any sign that he had recovered consciousness. The operation took place Wednesday night, and the man died early Friday morning."

DYE EMBARGO BACK IN THE TARIFF BILL

Sugar and Farm Bloc Combination Credited With Forcing Conferees to Restore It.

WILL CAUSE ANOTHER FIGHT

But Leaders Declare Bill Will Pass and Congress Will Adjourn Before Oct. 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—It developed tonight that the conferees on the Tariff bill restored the dye embargo, eliminated from the measure by the House and Senate, and thereby furnished an issue which will cause a bitter dispute and prevent prompt action on the report unless the farm bloc accepts the embargo. Even should the powerful bloc which controlled the action of the conferees adopt the dye section in order to prevent a fight on the high agricultural rates, indications are that five or six Republican Senators will decline to support the report. These include Senators Moses, Borah, La Follette, Lenroot and Norris.

Senators Kellogg and Nelson, who threatened to repudiate the report unless shingles were retained on the free list, have been saved to the party. The conferees, it was learned today, held shingles on the free list, Representative Fordney, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, finally receding.

A fight in the Senate and House is promised over the dye embargo because of the overwhelming vote against it when the bill was before both houses. It appears that the conferees, after a series of log-rolling and reported deals between different interests, restored the embargo by eliminating the section in the Senate bill which authorized its repeal. This action of itself is regarded as questionable under the conference rules, and attacks will be made not only on the embargo itself but on the integrity of the agreement.

The emergency tariff erected a dye embargo and permitted dyes not manufactured in this country to enter under a license. This was to run until the permanent tariff became effective. The permanent tariff was expected to impose rates sufficiently high to protect American dye interests without an embargo. The conference report, however, provides that the embargo shall continue one year after the permanent tariff goes into effect, and may be continued another year by Presidential proclamation.

The textile interests are especially opposed to the embargo provisions, and they have requested Senators La Follette and Moses to direct the fight against the conference report on this particular.

Despite the fight in prospect over the dye embargo Republican leaders do not think it will reach really serious proportions, because they believe the sugar interests and the farm interests have

30 SWIRLING BARGES IN SWIFT RIVER TIDE PUT BOATS TO FLIGHT

Crowded Ferry and Yachts in Path of Runaway Craft Narrowly Escape.

RACE TO REACH SAFETY

Loaded Coal Carriers, Torn From Moorings, Imperil Scores of East River Vessels.

RADIO WARNS BIG STEAMERS

Police and Fire Boats and Railroad Tugs Work for Hours to Recapture Drifting Fleet.

Thirty to forty heavily laden coal barges, swept from their moorings at East River piers at ebb tide yesterday by a swift flood of waters from the Hell Gate Channel, swirled down the river in a wild jam, smashing and ripping one another and imperiling scores of large and small boats in the narrow West Channel between Manhattan Island and Blackwell's Island.

The rushing wall of danger started down the river just a few minutes before several large passenger boats were due to steam up, and policemen along the riverfront frantically flashed every steamboat company they could remember to tell them of the uncontrollable fleet of water juggernauts sweeping through the narrow channels.

Many of the big boats were called by radio apparatus to duck their noses quickly against the shore, so that no casualties to passenger craft were reported. Two small yachts cruising up the west channel of the river ran into the tangle of battering boats, but by swift maneuvers managed to turn tail and flee around the southern end of Blackwell's Island, and thence up the river in the east channel.

Narrow Escape for Ferryboat.

The ferryboat Bronx, plying between East Eighty-sixth Street and Blackwell's Island in the service of the Department of Public Welfare, with a heavy load of passengers, had a narrow escape from serious damage and escaped only through quick and bold handling by Captain Harry Daniels.

When his boat was hardly across the channel, Captain Daniels saw the wall of heavy boats rushing down with the tide, and he speeded up to avoid their battering-ram impact. He saw that the wall of danger was so wide that it would be impossible for him to tie up at the end of the pier, as usual, and he forced his boat in behind the pier, and waited for the tumbling jam to pass down the river.

Even at that he avoided danger by a hairsbreadth, because the right wing of the jam hardly missed crushing his craft as he squeezed behind the pier. Several other smaller boats narrowly escaped, and avoided the dangerous jam only by the dextrous handling of their pilots and the good operation of their power plants.

Deputy Chief Edward Worth of the marine division of the Fire Department, who rushed up the river in a fast launch to direct the work of capturing the wild boats, said that it was remarkable that no craft were sunk in the jam. Not only are the channels narrow in this part of the river, but jagged ledges and rocks poke knife edges through the shallow waters and pilots have to be careful even when they have clear river before them.

Passenger Boats Fortunate.

He and other rescuers pointed out that if any of the big passenger boats had encountered the coal barges running amuck through the narrow East River channel the consequences might have been serious, with danger of large loss of life and property. The channel there is so narrow and full of ledges that it would be a hard job for a pilot to turn a big boat around, even if he had plenty of time for the task and no danger rushing upon him.

How some of the barges missed dangerous Mill Rock, midway between Manhattan and the Astoria shore, and other danger points in the channel was a mystery to Deputy Chief Worth, but examination last night revealed that the only damage to the barges was a few holes which they had poked in the sides of each other in the jam. A few pier heads also were crumpled along the river's edge, but the damage will be only a few thousand dollars.

The trouble started at the foot of

Angry Mob Besieges Italian Feud Slayer; Inspector With Reserves Rescues Sleuths

The Favara and Parisi families lived in peace and amity on the third floor of 122 Cherry Street until three months ago. They feasted together, went to church together, gave each other presents and were warm friends. Then in a moment of anger one of the women applied to the other a word which means trouble among Italians. The two added more hard words, then fought. For days the wives quarreled on the stairs, the children fought in the street, the two men glowered at each other and muttered when they passed.

Last night Favara, meeting Parisi in the hallway, brushed against him and swore in Italian. Parisi had a chain in his hand. He swung the chain against Favara's head. With a shriek of rage, Favara rushed into his flat, got a carving knife and stabbed Parisi in the stomach. Parisi fell, moaning on the floor. Favara ran back to his flat and bolted the door.

When Parisi cried out his wife and children rushed into the hall. They knelt over Parisi's dead body and then with one accord flew themselves against the Favara door, beating it with their clenched fists and calling down the vengeance of the saints. They were joined by Josephine Camoratta, a sister of Parisi, who is tall and muscular.

Armed with a pole stick she was splintering the panels of the door when Detectives Fiore and Inella came running up the stairs. They broke down the door and found Favara getting ready to run away from his crime.

They took him to the street. Parisi's body had already been taken to a drug store at 39 Catherine Street. His sister followed and in her fury tried to brain Favara with her stick. Her first blow hit Inella and nearly knocked him to the ground. Her second staggered Fiore. The detectives threatened her with their revolvers, but she blindly ignored them. Ducking her blows and fighting off the growing crowd of threatening men and women, eager to get at Favara, the two men made their way to the drugstore.

Once inside, they locked the doors and telephoned to the Oak Street police station for help. Police reserves came, but it was all they could do with their clubs and fists to prevent the pressing crowd from breaking into the store. Favara, huddled in a corner, white-faced and far more afraid of the shrieking crowd outside than of the detectives who guarded him.

Finally, Inspector Cahalane, making a trip through the district in his car, appeared. Under his orders the policemen forced a lane from the door of the drug store to the automobile. The detectives rushed their prisoner and drove through the crowd, knocking some men and women over. The mob followed the police to the Oak Street station. It was half an hour before the last lingering women had been driven from the neighborhood.

Dr. Granger, 72, Head of Baptist Conference, Drops Dead at Church Service in Mt. Vernon

The Rev. Dr. William A. Granger, for fourteen years President of the New York State Baptist Convention and one of the most prominent Baptist clergymen in the State, dropped dead at high noon yesterday in the First Baptist Church, Mount Vernon, while standing in front of the communion table with his right hand outstretched to receive the Rev. Harold Cooke Phillips, the new pastor of the church.

The church, which is one of the largest and most prominent in Mount Vernon, was crowded with parishioners who had come to help welcome their new pastor. Dr. Granger, who had been pastor for many years previous to his connection with the Baptist State Convention, had been selected to welcome Mr. Phillips, who is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary and a native of Jamaica, West Indies.

Dr. Granger, apparently in perfect health, had walked to the table facing the altar and was about to congratulate the new pastor when he was suddenly stricken. Death had been caused by apoplexy.

Dr. Granger was carried to a retiring room, and Mr. Phillips offered prayer, after which the congregation, many of whom were in tears, left the church.

Dr. Granger was born at Cottenham, Cambridgeshire, England, and was 72 years old. He came to this country when 4 years old and first attended Colgate University, after which he graduated from Union Theological Seminary. His first pastorate was in Long Island City, after which he was stationed in Brewster and Owego, N. Y. Then he was appointed pastor of the First Baptist Church of Mount Vernon, where he remained for fifteen years. Later he became President of the Baptist State Convention, which position he held for fourteen years, retiring from that office in October last.

While head of the Baptist Convention, Dr. Granger visited every Baptist church in the State and enjoyed the distinction of being the only President who had accomplished this work.

Dr. Granger had resided for many years at 137 Glen Avenue, Mount Vernon. He was a member of Hiawatha Lodge, F. and A. M.; Mount Vernon Chapter, R. A. M.; Bethlehem Commandery, Knights Templar; Phi Beta Kappa Society, and was a trustee of Colgate University.

He is survived by his wife and four children, Arthur L., Leonard R., Edith A. Granger and Mrs. F. E. Vaughan, and by seven grandchildren.

The funeral services will be held at the First Baptist Church tomorrow evening.

SINFUL, SAYS BISHOP, TO HELP DE VALERA

Wrong and Useless to Send Money to Irregulars, Declares Buffalo Prelate.

FREE STATE DOESN'T NEED IT

Understanding With England Never So Good, According to Catholic Back From Ireland.

Among the 408 first-cabin passengers who arrived yesterday from Liverpool and Queenstown on the White Star liner Adriatic was the Right Rev. William Turner, Catholic Bishop of Buffalo, who returned, with his brother, the Rev. J. F. Turner, of St. Joseph's Seminary, Yonkers, after spending two months in Ireland. The Bishop said he returned to America convinced that Ireland was at the threshold of real freedom and a place among the nations of the world. He said it was sinful to send money to de Valera's irregulars, while the Free State did not need any.

"The soul of Ireland is still right," he continued, "and all that is needed now is a little more patience to see a prosperous, free and peaceful Ireland. The Free State Government is in good hands. Cosgrave is a real leader, a constructive thinker, and told me that he and his advisers would carry out the treaty to the letter, as would England. The understanding between the two countries, England and Ireland, was never so good as it is today.

"I was to have met Michael Collins in Dublin the day he was killed. His death has cemented the best friends in Ireland. The Free State Government, were an election to be held tomorrow, would get 99 per cent. of the total vote. The military system of the irregulars is broken. The annoyance the irregulars have been causing is about to end.

"Some of the irregulars, by their acts, hoped to bring the British soldiers back to Ireland, but they failed and are about ready to stop their acts of brigandry. They have been misled by persons who put selfish ambitions before the good of Ireland and by fanatical women. The Countess Markowicz is walking about the streets of Dublin trying to get arrested.

"The British have been most patient with Ireland," Bishop Turner continued; "more patient, I feel, than the American people have been. I say advisedly that it is useless and sinful for Americans to send money to the irregulars in Ireland. As for the Free State, it does not need American money, either, for it is a recognized nation now and has credit to draw upon."

The Bishop added that the house in which he lived at Kilmallock, his native home, was under siege two weeks. Shots flew freely there in the latter part of July, he said, but the engagements have now dwindled down to light skirmishes and have no real military effectiveness.

Other passengers on board the Adriatic were former United States Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware and his wife, Samuel Insull of Chicago, Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co., who returned from a vacation in Scotland; Joseph H. Ames of the American Car and Foundry Company, and Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago, with her two children, who was met at Quarantine by Mr. Field in his yacht, which followed the liner to her pier.

Sixteen London dancing girls were also on the passenger list.

RESCUE TWO AFLOAT SIX HOURS ON ICEBOX

West Haven Men Lost Schooner and Had About Abandoned Hope When Found.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 10.—The fishing steamer William M. Wells, of Boston, brought to Newport last night L. W. Tryon and Edward E. Lohse, both of West Haven, Conn., the crew of the fishing schooner Ino, of West Haven, after finding the pair afloat on the Ino's ice box about 10 miles outside Block Island.

The men told the Wells's crew that the Ino had sunk about 10 o'clock in the morning and they had been floating on the ice box about six hours. The Ino was somewhere between Montauk Point and Block Island.

Tryon and Lohse had practically abandoned hope of being picked up and had written in lead pencil on the side of the ice box farewell notes to their families. They were none the worse for their experience when found, and today, after getting in communication with relatives, left for their homes.

3 KILLED, 8 INJURED IN PICNIC BUS WRECK

Truck Fails to Make Turn Near Stamford, Strikes a Pole and Tosses Party Into Ditch.

SUFFOCATED BY THE MUD

Two Found Dead When Aid, Long Delayed, Arrives—Driver, Slightly Hurt, Is Held.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 10.—Three men were killed and eight are known to have been injured in an automobile accident here this evening.

DREASON, J. A., 2,301 Morris Av., New York.
GRUPE, KENNETH, of New Canaan.

The injured, all of Stamford, are Charles Daly, Thomas Daly, Allan Gustafson, William Maher, John Moore, Frederick Nee, Louis Powell and Ralph Vitti.

The party was returning from a picnic and clambake at Long Ridge, a suburb of Stamford, in a light truck. At the foot of a hill, near Lockwood Corners, the road turns sharply. Nee, driving the truck, apparently was unfamiliar with the turn. The car shot straight ahead, hit a telegraph pole, broke it off and turned over.

The two Daly men and Vitti were tossed through the windshield and landed in a lot. The others were buried in a ditch beneath the overturned car. The death of the three was due in a measure to suffocation in the mud as well as to their injuries. Others in the party were nearly suffocated by the mud before they were extricated.

A long time elapsed before they were taken out. The Fire Department here was asked to send apparatus to lift the car, but before it arrived a group of men who live near the scene of the accident managed to lift the car out of the ditch sufficiently to drag the men out.

Grupe and Dreason were taken out dead. There was a sign of life in Brown's body when he was removed, but he died a little later.

According to a statement made tonight by Nee, the driver of the truck, the conveyance was moving at from thirty to forty-five miles an hour.

"I made a wide turn at the foot of the hill," he said, "and the truck went into the grass at the gutter. It rode there for fifty to seventy-five feet and then hit the guy wire that held a telegraph pole in place. This wire led the car around and it hit the telegraph pole and broke it off. The car turned over and rolled down an embankment about ten feet deep, landing in a marsh."

Nee escaped serious injury, though badly bruised. He is being held pending the Coroner's inquest.

Grupe's neck was broken and Browne and Dreason suffered fractured skulls.

All the injured men were treated at the Stamford Hospital or at physicians' offices here. The three bodies were taken to a local morgue.

TRAIN RIDES FIVE IN AUTO.

Carries Car 125 Feet Near Passaic —No One Killed.

Five persons were hurt, one probably fatally, when their automobile was struck by a railroad train on the Newark branch of the Erie Railroad at Athenie, N. J., near Passaic, about noon yesterday. The automobile was picked up and carried for 125 feet on the fender of the locomotive. Then it was thrown aside and rolled down a bank. The five passengers, who had been dragged along the terrifying route, and had been spun around in their car like pinwheels, were now hurled out.

They were all unconscious, and remained lying where they had fallen until the Clifton police arrived in answer to a summons by a farmer who had seen the accident. The injured persons were taken to the General Hospital at Passaic, where it was said the owner and driver of the car, Charles Demmeit, 41 years old, of 5 Glen Road, Rutherford, was dying. He had received a concussion of the brain, a compound fracture of the left leg and lacerations of the right leg and hand.

His wife Marie was also in a critical condition, with concussion of the brain, lacerations of the scalp and dislocated left shoulder. Their son Charles, 10, had wounds on the head and body. William O'Keefe, 32, of 709 Fifty-third

MRS. HARDING SHOWS SIGNS OF A RALLY; NO OPERATION NOW

FRIENDS MORE HOPEFUL

This Feeling Begins to Pervade the White House—President Shows Strain.

DR. C. H. MAYO ARRIVES

Physicians Spend the Day in Consultation and Make Laboratory Tests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—A bulletin issued at the White House tonight concerning Mrs. Harding's condition was more hopeful in tone than any issued in the past two days. A bulletin at noon repeated the statement in previous bulletins that her condition was still critical, but tonight's official report of her condition omitted that ominous phrase.

Although the night bulletin did not say so, it was learned at the White House that the toxic effects, which has been one of the chief dangers in Mrs. Harding's case has been diminished slightly. The bulletin said that Mrs. Harding had had a fairly comfortable day with indications of slight improvement in her general condition. Altogether a more optimistic atmosphere prevails at the White House, although it is apparent that Mrs. Harding is still in an extremely dangerous stage of her malady.

The night bulletin contained the first official admission that a surgical operation might be necessary. It has been understood that this would be resorted to only in a last desperate effort to save her life. Whether there would be an operation was dependent, it was said, on the outcome of laboratory tests made by Dr. John M. T. Finney of Johns Hopkins University Hospital, Baltimore, who was called in on the case Thursday evening. Tonight's bulletin said that a decision relative to surgical relief had been postponed until tomorrow morning on account of the improvement shown by the patient and it was indicated unofficially that this postponement was due, in part at least, to a favorable showing of the tests made under Dr. Finney's direction.

Evening Bulletin Encouraging.

The evening bulletin was issued at 9 o'clock and read as follows:

Mrs. Harding's condition tonight is as follows:

Temperature 100.5.
Pulse 116.
Respiration 36.

She has had a fairly comfortable day with such indications of a slight improvement that decision relative to surgical relief was postponed until Monday morning.

C. E. SAWYER, M. D.

The bulletin shows that there has been no alarming increase in Mrs. Harding's temperature and that her pulse is strong. The showing as to respiration is not good, however. At noon her temperature, pulse and breathing were reported to be more nearly normal than at any time during the last two days of her critical illness. But these indications and the favorable tone of tonight's bulletin, although showing that Mrs. Harding's resistance is still strong, have not lessened concern over the prospect of her recovery.

The attending physicians are watching with greatest anxiety the extent to which the toxic poisons and other complications connected with her ailment are developing. A failure to improve in this connection might convince the attending physicians that a surgical operation should be undertaken as a last resort. Regardless of other complications an operation in Mrs. Harding's present condition might be fatal.

Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., arrived this morning, and medical consultations consumed most of the day.

Brig. Gen. C. E. Sawyer, who has Mrs. Harding's case in charge, issued the following bulletin at noon:

Mrs. Harding's condition at 12 noon as follows:

Respiration 18.

During early part of last night patient was nervous and restless, latter part of night and early morning quiet and sleeping greater part of time. Physical appearances indicate slight improvement over yesterday. Condition still critical. Consultation with Dr. Charles Mayo, who arrived at 10 A. M., and Dr. Finney has not yet been concluded.

C. E. SAWYER, M. D.

It is believed that tonight is the decisive point in Mrs. Harding's illness. One hopeful sign is Mrs. Harding's morale. She knows she is desperately ill, but she has not lost her courage. She is cheerful and is fighting her illness

Plans a Tube One Mile Long To Test the Einstein Theory

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Announcement is made here that Professor Albert A. Michelson, University of Chicago physicist, is hopeful of being able to test at Mount Wilson, California, the validity of the Einstein theory of relativity by means of a steel tube, one mile long and one foot in diameter. Professor Michelson says that experiments carried on this Summer were almost successful.

"Atmospheric interference was all that prevented the complete success of our work," he said. "Temperature variations militated against us.

"It proved to us that our principle was right and now we plan to eliminate atmospheric interference by constructing a steel tube one foot in diameter around the entire one-mile course. By making this a vacuum all such interference is eliminated."

IRISH STRIKE STOPS POSTAL SERVICE

Country Is Cut Off From Outside World Except for British Wireless.

UNION DEFIES GOVERNMENT

Declares It Will Use Pickets Despite Warning They Will Not Be Tolerated.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The strike of the Irish postal workers began tonight.

The London Post Office authorities issued a statement to the effect that London has been unable to obtain any reply from any Free State post office or from any newspapers since 6 o'clock this evening.

National forces have taken possession of the telephones in Dublin, and presumably also in the provinces, and are utilizing them for military calls.

DUBLIN, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—The executive of the Irish Postal Union having rejected the Government offer to spread the proposed wage reductions over a period of three months, the strike became inevitable. What appears to have been the Government's last word was indicated in an official statement issued by the Department of Home Affairs. This declared that the Government did not recognize the rights of civil servants to strike, and that in the event of any cessation of work picketing, such as is permitted in connection with industrial strikes, will not be allowed.

The statement asserted that the Government was determined to afford the fullest of protection to those officers who remained loyal to the Government and continued at work. It was added that the postal service is a vital State service and that the Government was prepared to use all the forces at its disposal to protect loyal workers from interference or intimidation.

BELFAST, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—All the Free State telegraph, postal and telephone facilities ceased at 6 o'clock this evening. The British military authorities are maintaining communication with Ulster and England by wireless.

The postal union officers in Dublin said this afternoon that despite the Government prohibition they were determined to picket.

DRILLING CREWS NEAR 47 ENTOMBED MINERS

Only 142 Feet of Work Now Separates Shafts of Argonaut and Kennedy Mines.

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—Drills were whirling in the rock of the 3,900-foot level of the Kennedy Mine tonight as rescue workers were trying frantically to break through to the 4,600-foot level of the burning Argonaut mine, where forty-seven miners have been entombed nearly two weeks. Drills capable of 1,100 revolutions a minute were being used. Only 142 feet of work now separates the Kennedy and Argonaut shafts at this point.

On the 3,600-foot level of the Kennedy, 140 feet more of progress were needed at 6 o'clock today to reach the 75 feet of hard rock separating the rescue crew there from the 4,600-foot level of the Argonaut. Fred L. Lowell, safety engineer of the California Industrial Accident Commission, announced that a clear space had been reached, and the rescue workers could see ahead for twenty-five feet.

This fortunate circumstance will pull down the handicap of the Argonaut miners who are working on the 4,600-foot level in the race against the Kennedy crew on the 3,900-foot level to release their entombed comrades and incidentally win the $5,000 bonus offered to the first crew breaking through into the Argonaut mine.

DAUGHERTY TO PUSH FOR DRASTIC POWER IN RAIL INJUNCTION

Arrives in Chicago Prepared to Assert Unions Have Waged Terrorist Campaign.

PROSECUTIONS TALKED OF

RAIL PEACE MOVES PROCEED

Union Policy Committee Meets Today to Consider Individual Settlements—Willard Returns.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Attorney General Daugherty, refusing to make any concession to criticism of the temporary injunction he obtained against the striking railway shopmen ten days ago, will personally appear tomorrow before Judge James H. Wilkerson in the Federal Court here, determined to stick to his guns in a fight to have the drastic restraining order made permanent.

This unqualified forecast was made tonight by one closely in touch with the Government's plan of campaign to put a curb on railway strike activities.

The prediction came in direct repudiation of press dispatches from Washington last week reporting that the Attorney General had intimated he would recommend that provisions of the injunction, interpreted as placing a ban on free speech, free press and free assemblage, be toned down, if not eliminated.

In support of the Attorney General's plea, reports indicated, the Government will introduce a mass of documentary and other evidence of an alleged campaign of terrorism instituted by the striking shopmen, and will endeavor to prove conspiracy to cripple transportation.

Available exhibits, according to Federal authorities, include a carload of implements of destruction alleged to have been seized from strike sympathizers in various parts of the country. In addition there are thousands of telegrams, letters, photographs, blueprints and books, together with transcripts of statements of 17,000 persons interrogated by Federal officials.

Government investigators who have been working on the case for weeks will be on hand to testify. Hearings on the motion to make permanent the injunction may extend through several days, it was said, affording Federal authorities adequate opportunity to establish any need for stern measures.

Daugherty Arrives With Guard.

Guarded by a cordon of Secret Service men and accompanied by what is said to be the most formidable legal force the Government has ever thrown into one court action, Mr. Daugherty arrived in Chicago early today. His party repaired at once to the Drake Hotel, where headquarters were established.

Throughout the day and late into the night Mr. Daugherty presided at a series of conferences attended by several assistants to the Attorney General and Charles F. Clyne, United States District Attorney in Chicago.

While finishing touches were being put on the Government's case at these sessions the union leaders were equally engaged in perfecting their defense. B. M. Jewell, President of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, and his Executive Committee were closeted much of the day at the organization's headquarters, 4,750 Broadway.

Members of the shop crafts' General Policy Committee of Ninety, which is scheduled to convene here tomorrow to consider proposals of some railroads for settlement of the strike on their lines through separate agreements, had all arrived tonight. It was predicted, however, that their interest will be so centered in the Federal court proceedings that they would not be likely to take any action before tomorrow on the peace offers.

Daugherty Tells of Conference.

Attorney General Daugherty issued a brief statement late in the afternoon, and Donald Richberg, who will appear in court as attorney for the defendant union chiefs, did likewise. Both were noncommittal. Mr. Daugherty's statement was:

"I arrived in Chicago this morning, accompanied by certain assistants from the Department of Justice in Washington, who are associated with me in the strike injunction proceedings now pending.

"Those who were with me are John W. H. Grim, Assistant Attorney General; Blackburn Esterline, assistant to the Solicitor General, and C. J. McGuire, attorney.

"James A. Fowler, special assistant to the Attorney General, in charge of anti-trust prosecutions; Oliver E. Pagan, special assistant to the Attorney General, and A. A. McLaughlin, special assistant to the Attorney General and also representing the Railroad Administration, met me in Chicago.

"We had a conference at the hotel this afternoon. I shall have no statement to make with respect to the injunction proceedings until after such proceedings have taken place in court at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

"We are ready so far as the Government is concerned, to proceed with the hearing of the case. Requests have been made for modification of the restraining order in some respects. We will, of course, consider them in due time. These are questions which will be submitted to the court."

The Attorney General's assurance that requests for modification of the restraining order will be "con-

Hard Coal Miners to Speed Production; Most of the 155,000 Return to Mines Today

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 10.—Coal company officials in the anthracite region expect production will reach a high figure by the end of this week. Ninety per cent. of the miners will return to work on Monday morning. The remainder will go back as soon as the mines, which are somewhat out of repair, have been placed in shape for operation.

John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, and Philip Murray, International Vice President, said tonight that they see no reason why production should not become normal very soon. They assert that at least 90 per cent. of the miners are now satisfied they have won a great victory, and are willing to return to work and stay on the job.

An announcement which pleases the leaders was made by Rinaldo Capalino, insurgent organizer, who said that since the tri-district conventions saw fit to ratify the agreement he will stand by the union and make no attempt to call a petty strike.

It is estimated that the normal anthracite production is about two million tons per week. At the time the suspension went into effect six months ago there were 15,000,000 tons of anthracite above ground. Within two months the greater part of that reserve had been used up and consumers were resorting to coal "picked off the dumps and run through the washeries.

As a result of the shortage the companies are estimated to have rush orders for at least twenty million tons. Little or no coal will be mined during the early part of this week, and no more than 1,500,000 tons the week following. Therefore it will be several months before the companies have caught up in their orders, and perhaps next Spring will have rolled around before conditions are quite normal.

The superintendents know exactly where the trouble lies and, with thousands of men willing and anxious to get to earning money once more, they will put the workings in shipshape in a few days.

sidered" was not construed as binding the Government to any concession in this connection.

Just what the order of tomorrow's court procedure will be was not announced, but it is expected the motion on the temporary injunction will be heard first. Then, according to forecasts, the Government will submit its "truck loads" of documentary evidence purporting to show that the strikers have waged a campaign of murder and sabotage, which has included the wrecking of trains, burning of bridges and other illegal acts which have interfered with operation of mail, passenger and freight trains.

May Prosecute Some Leaders.

There have been hints that the Government would seek to prosecute criminally some of the strike leaders. These reports seemed to gain weight when, preceding Mr. Daugherty, Special Assistant Attorney General Pagan arrived here on Saturday. Mr. Pagan is the Government's indictment expert.

Concerning the sabotage charges, Mr. Richberg, attorney for Jewell, said tonight:

"The position of the shopcrafts regarding vandalism or any acts of violence in connection with their strike has been repeatedly stated from time to time since the inception of the walk-out.

"The railway unions have not only agreed that perpetrators of any violence in connection with the strike should be harshly punished, but they also have sought to co-operate with the proper authorities to prevent any illegal acts. The union leaders have time and again warned the membership against any lawlessness."

Referring to the injunction proceedings, Mr. Richberg said:

"It is beyond me to forecast what steps the unions might take if the restraining order is permanently entered.

Attorney General Daugherty has intimated that he would recommend modifications. We must wait to see what comes of this prospect."

President Jewell and other union chiefs said tonight that they had received no court summons and they did not expect to appear.

It was reported at a late hour that S. Davies Warfield, Eastern financier, said to have been associated with Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway in peace negotiations, had arrived in Chicago and that Mr. Willard is due to return tomorrow. Mr. Warfield could not be reached.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—Two Federal agents were stationed tonight at the home of Judge Wilkerson to prevent any outbreaks against him. The Judge, it was said, has received several threatening letters.

LEHIGH VALLEY MINES PREPARE FOR OPENING

Officials Expect That Hard Coal Shipments Will Begin by the End of the Week.

HAZLEON, Pa., Sept. 10.—Throughout the Lehigh coal field today colliery officials were busy calling to work the men whose services will be needed to put the anthracite mines in condition for production of coal. The Lehigh Valley Coal Company, the leading producer of the Hazleton section, has called out its full force of timbermen and other repair gangs. The mines here are free of water for the most part, owing to the system of drainage by hugh tunnels driven for miles and emptying into the streams of the adjoining farming districts.

There will, however, be but little production of coal, in the opinion of General Manager A. H. Jessup of the Jeddo Highland Coal Company, the Markle independent interests operating a string of collieries north of this city. He explained that at the collieries of that company every man would be put at work picking timbers, clearing low places of the slight accumulation of water, and getting out gas. By the end of the week, he said, coal would be started through the breakers and on its way to market.

Secretary James A. Gorman of the joint conference of operators and miners announced tonight that all plans had been completed for the signing of the new wage contract in Scranton tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. District President Kennedy will be joined by District President Golden of Shamokin. In company with Mr. Gorman they will go to Scranton, where they will join President Brennan, who is a resident of that city.

ERIE CONTRACT ENDS TODAY

Shopmen, Elated, Expect a General Termination of System.

HORNELL, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Effective tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock, the contract between the Hornell Repair and Construction Corporation and the Erie Railroad will be terminated and the shops here and in Bradford, Salamonica, Corning, Elmira and Binghamton returned to the Erie control. Robert E. Woodruff, Erie manager here, has announced. This marks the end of the contract system of shop operation in this particular section and is the most important development in the strike situation in weeks.

The Hornell Repair and Construction Corporation is the first of the contracting firms on the Erie, having taken over the operation of the shops here on March 6, 1920. Since then it has extended its operations to include the Salamanica, Bradford, Corning, Elmira and Binghamton shops.

Shopmen are elated over the announcement and look for a general termination of the contract system, one of the principal reasons for the strike on the Erie. Under Erie operation the shops here will be managed by Superintendent T. J. Davey and Master Mechanic Clarence Norton. Manager Woodruff denied that any other of the army contracts on the system had been terminated at this time.

Simultaneous with the announcement relative to the contract with the Hornell Repair and Construction Corporation, Manager Woodruff also announced that the Wyoming, Delaware and Jefferson divisions and the Wilkes-Barre & Eastern have been transferred from New York to the Hornell region. He said this was being done to facilitate the movement of coal.

SOCIALISTS CONCILIATORY.

Committee of International Would Admit Communists.

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Sept. 10.—A resolution adopted today by the Executive Committee of the second-and-a-half International claims great success for the sessions which have been held here and predicts that twice as many countries will be represented at the next congress.

The Socialist Party of the United States was represented at the committee's meeting for the first time, Morris Hillquit, Algernon Lee and Jacob Panken attending.

Among the resolutions adopted was one which called attention to the expectation that the American Socialists would be represented at the next congress. Another resolution declared it to be the purpose of the organizations ultimately to establish an International which would not exclude any school of thought of the world proletariat. It said that co-operation between Socialists and Communists was impossible at the present time owing to the persecution of Socialists by the Soviets, but the door to participation in the International would be left open for the Communists to enter.

NO GENERAL STRIKE TO AID RAIL UNIONS

Labor Federation Chiefs Today Will Announce Hostility to Proposal.

FIND WORKERS OPPOSED

Executive Council to Take Up the Question of a Legal Defense Bureau.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.—The question of a general strike in sympathy with the railway shopmen, it was learned tonight, is scheduled for discussion tomorrow by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, when it resumes its conferences here at the Ambassador Hotel. While refusing to comment before the matter is officially presented by Samuel Gompers, President of the Federation, virtually all members of the council today indicated that they were against any such proposal and that it would not take them long to draft a declaration to the American public to this effect.

Mr. Gompers, it was learned, regards a general strike out of the question, and only decided to bring the matter officially to the labor tribunal because of the telegrams and letters from labor unions and central bodies throughout the country that have been reaching the Federation headquarters at Washington demanding a nation-wide strike of all organized labor to aid the shopmen. Since Attorney General Daugherty obtained an injunction against the striking shop crafts unions the demand for such a strike has been renewed from all section of the country, it was said by labor officials.

The discussion of the general strike question may take several days, one international union official said. He expressed regret that the public had been informed that such a proposal was being considered, because it had aroused the indignation of a large number of employers and employes who had contracts providing against stoppages of work.

Thinks Publicity a Mistake.

"The general strike talk has had a very bad effect on the industrial situation," said the international President of one of the large unions and member of the council. "I believe it was a mistake to allow this report to go out.

"The majority of the workers of the country are not in sympathy with such a proposal or this sort of propaganda. The public should be officially assured at the earliest possible moment that they are not faced with a general strike."

Representatives of the striking shopmen are expected to attend the meeting and state their position, as their situation will be discussed in connection with the general strike question.

Whatever statement or declaration is made public by the council, it was stated, will place the entire financial resources of the Federation squarely behind the striking shopmen. The question of a special assessment on the organized workers of the country to finance the strike of shopmen will be considered by the council. Labor leaders here express the opinion that if provided with ample financial aid the shopmen will win their strike.

It was announced that the council probably would authorize the establishment of a legal defense bureau by the Federation at Washington in order to "adequately meet the concerted and intensified onslaughts against the fundamental rights and vital functions of organized workers."

To Collate Labor Laws.

This defense bureau, it was explained, will enlist voluntary assistance and co-operation of lawyers friendly to the cause of labor and experienced in industrial litigation. The bureau will have also for its purposes the "collating of all laws and judicial decisions on the rights of labor."

The legal defense bureau will take up and defend labor unions that are threatened with injunctions, it was stated, and also will carry to the United States Supreme Court the decisions of lower courts deemed detrimental to organized labor.

Governor Nathan L. Miller's reported attack upon organized labor leaders in his address at Johnstown, N. Y., in which he was quoted in press dispatches as having said they were controlled by Wall Street, aroused the indignation of Mr. Gompers and other members of the Executive Council. The labor chiefs ridiculed the address. Mr. Gompers tonight, smiling, said:

"It was Bob Ingersoll who said that to argue or reply to a man who has bidden good-bye to his reason is like giving medicine to the dead.

"Whatever else has been said about the men who are regarded as labor leaders—and I am one of them—it has been left to that misfit to charge me with being paid by Wall Street."

William D. Mahon, President of the Street and Electrical Railway Workers' Union, a Vice President of the Federation, said:

"The statements of Governor Miller are childish, ridiculous and absolutely untrue."

Jacob Fischer, President of the Journeymen Barbers' Union, said:

"Absurdly amusing; too far-fetched to be given consideration."

Thomas Rickert, President of the United Garment Workers' Union, and a Vice President of the Federation, said:

"Too silly to be worthy of comment."

Matthew Woll, President of the Photo-Engravers' Union, and a Vice President of the Federation, said:

It is wholly beyond the worthiness of a serious reply. Perhaps the weather was hot in Johnstown last night, or the atmospheric conditions otherwise mentally depressing."

TO AVERT CANADIAN STRIKE.

Minister of Labor Appeals to Roads and Shopmen.

OTTAWA, Sept. 10.—James Murdock, Minister of Labor, has moved to avert the threatened general strike of shopcrafts unions in Canada. In messages to both the railway executives and the union leaders he urged direct negotiations on a permanent wage rate.

"Canada deserves something better from all concerned than a strike at this time," he wrote the unions.

"Public interest demands, in my view, that the railway companies have particular regard to that aspect of the board's findings recommending that the question of a permanent wage rate should be taken up for further direct negotiation," he wired the railway officials. He urged the railways to notify their employes at once that they were ready to consider this matter.

The shop unions threatened to strike following an adverse decision by the Arbitration Board on their demand for continuation of the old wage scale. The board recommended fixing a permanent wage rate.

George N. Potanin Is Dead.

RIGA, Sept. 10.—George Nikolaievitch Potanin, the Russian explorer of Mongolia and Tibet, it is authoritatively learned, died a natural death at Tomsk last year. Potanin disappeared from public view years ago, and traces of him have been long and vainly sought.

LENIN MAY REAPPEAR IN NOV. 7 CELEBRATION

He Is Expected to Address Communist Congress on Anniversary of the Revolution.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to The New York Times.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—One hundred and three great celebrations are planned for the fifth anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution on Nov. 7, which also is the date set for the opening of the Communist Congress, and is expected to mark the return of Lenin to active life.

The Soviet leader is understood to have prepared a treatise on "The United Front of World Socialism," which he will read before the congress. Great hopes are based on the effect of Lenin's authoritative pronouncement, in view of the present chaos and disunion in European Socialist circles. "Pure" Communists still are opposed to any compromises with the less radical elements, but Lenin's logic has mastered them before and may do so again.

During his convalescence Lenin also has written a short essay on "Five Years of Revolution and Their Lesson For the Future," which probably will appear in the Pravda on Nov. 7.

BOY'S RIFLE BULLET WOUNDS POLICEMAN

Marksman Is Awakened Several Hours Later and Admits the Shooting.

Several hours after Patrolman Robert Fleming had been strangely shot in the arm while sitting on a chair in a vacant lot near his home at 206 East 105th Street last evening, the mystery was explained by the arrest of a twelve-year-old boy. This youngster, William Schoneman, who lives in the same house as the policeman, was awakened at 2 o'clock this morning by detectives making an investigation, whereupon he readily admitted that he had fired a shot from his .22-calibre rifle out of his window.

The boy said that he had seen what he thought was a piece of paper in the vacant lot and had fired at it. Without waiting to observe the effect of his shot, he said, he closed the window and put his rifle away. After his arrest, he was paroled in the custody of his father, Frederick Schoneman, and will be arraigned in the Children's Court this morning.

Three rifles were found in the boys rooom, according to the police. One was a regular army wepon, while the others were of .22 calibre. The boy said he had fired the shot because a cartridge had jammed in one of his rifles and he could not get it out any other way. He is a member of the Naval Scouts and has recently returned from an encompment at Chester, Conn.

Patrolman Fleming was taken to Lincoln Hospital in an ambulance and the bullet wound in his left forearm was dressed.

The wounded man was attached to the East Fifth Street Station about five years ago. He suffered a severe attack of sleeping sickness, which left him partially paralyzed. He has been on the sick list ever since. Detective McCarton of the Morrisania Station questioned several persons living in the vicinity without result. At the hospital it was said that Fleming wasr esting comfortably and was in no danger.

200 PICKED SCOUTS TO DIRECT TRAFFIC

20,000 Boys in All Will Aid Institute's Campaign During Safety Week.

The Safety Institute of America announced yesterday that 20,000 Boy Scouts and 2,000 Scoutmasters would aid the Institute to prevent accidents in a campaign which will be inaugurated with a Safety Week in October. Judge Elbert H. Gary, President of the United States Steel Corporation who is chairman of the Institute's Public Safety Committee, in making the announcement, said that Franklin D. Roosevelt had been appointed Chairman of the Boy Scout Committee.

The support of the entire volunteer scouting leadership and of all the scout troops of the greater city is pledged in a letter from Mr. Roosevelt to Judge Gary, in which he said:

"I am heartily in sympathy with the aggressive campaign of education which you outline. I believe that a substantial reduction of accidents requires the co-operation of the people themselves; that, as you indicate, depends upon crystalizing the public opinion in favor of those measures which are designed to reduce accidents.

"You may rest assured that the Boy Scout Foundation of Greater New York and the individual borough scouts councils will co-operate with you and the experts of your staff. The Foundation, which was recently organized to co-ordinate more effectively the Boy Scout activities is in a position to place the entire volunteer Scouting leadership, some 2,000 scoutmasters, and all of the Scout troops, more than 20,000 boys, behind this movement. We will be glad to co-operate with you with respect to any plans for Safety Week and throughout the year."

Laurence Vail Coleman, Director of the Safety Institute, who announced the program of Boy Scout activities for Safety Week, said that the ambition of all Boy Scouts to be "traffic cops" would be realized at least so far as 200 boys were concerned. Through the courtesy of Police Commissioner Enright, he said, 200 picked Boy Scouts, after through training by Police Department instructors, would direct traffic at some of the principal crossings under supervision of regular traffic policemen. The Boy Scout program for Monday, Safety Week, which has been designated as Children's Day, includes a parade of 5,000 Boy Scouts with safety banners, first aid, rescue and resuscitation demonstrations; a presentation by Mayor Hylan of a gold medal to the Boy Scout who has done the most meritorious act in life-saving; safety talks by Boy Scouts in all schoolrooms.

GEORGE WORRIES BELGRADE

King Alexander Wishes His Elder Brother Would Go to America.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Aug. 15 (by Mail).—Prince George has come back to Belgrade from Paris, and there are some people here who wish that his indolent, care-free life in the French capital of recent years had proved sufficiently attractive to keep him there.

George is the eldest son of the late King Peter. As for the throne, he has renounced it, and his brother Alexander is sitting there with his new queen, Marie of Roumania, at his side. Together they are busy with the formalities of court life.

George has said in substance, "Here am I: George, son of Peter. I would like to have the status of my relationship to this Government definitely fixed. I have not the means to live properly, either here or abroad. My brother, the King, has denied me my legitimate allowance. In the meantime I would like a commission in the army. How about it?"

And of course George has friends, some of whom have interpellated Parliament as to why George is not granted the position to which his birth entitles him.

George presents a knotty problem. King Alexander is credited with wishing that he would go to the United States, or some other distant land, and refrain from embarrassing the Government.

ROADS MAKE READY TO RUSH COAL HERE

Even Switching Locomotives Tuned Up—Expert Sees Big Anthracite Shortage.

WOODIN GETS OFFERS OF AID

Facilities of Merchants and American Steamship Owners' Associations Are Tendered.

Practically all the coal-carrying railroads serving New York have made arrangements to carry all the coal offered when the mining of anthracite is resumed this week, it was learned yesterday. The Erie Railroad announced the temporary discontinuance, beginning tomorrow, of two trains, one leaving New York City for Jamestown, N. Y., at 10 A. M., and one arriving at New York at 8 P. M., to release five locomotives for coal carrying.

It was said that the Erie had made extensive preparation for the coal traffic, even to tuning up its forty-five switching locomotives, used to haul coal from the breakers to the storage dumps. The normal daily movement of coal on the Erie was said to be from 750 to 900 cars.

That it would be impossible to make up the anthracite shortage, and that domestic coal consumers, particularly those in the East, would have to burn more bituminous coal this Fall and Winter, was declared by Sydney A. Hale, editor of The Coal Trade Journal.

"Welcome as the end of the suspension of hard coal mining will be," said Mr. Hale, "consumers who have been accustomed to burn anthracite coal for domestic purposes will be storing up trouble for themselves if they fail to augment their supplies, present and prospective, with a percentage of bituminous coal or other fuel. Even with the railroads furnishing 100 per cent. service and the mines working at top speed from now on, it would be physically impossible to make up the losses in tonnage during the twenty-three weeks the mines have been idle.

Sees Heavy Shortage.

"The average yearly shipments of anthracite during the seven years ended last December were 70,369,571 gross tons. In only two years in that period have shipments exceeded the average. In 1917 shipments reached 77,133,305 tons and in 1918 the total was 76,760,970. Last year shipments dropped to 67,417,713 tons. The seven-year figures represent an average monthly shipment of 5,864,130 tons. The highest monthly shipment on record, March, 1918, was 7,276,717 tons. If this rate could be maintained without break for the rest of the current coal year—highly improbable if not obviously impossible—the shipments for the year would total 48,511,446 tons. This would be 21,858,125 tons less than the average and 18,106,267 tons behind the last calendar year. Even if we discard all sizes below pea, the deficiency would total between 13,000,000 and 15,000,000 tons.

"No rationing system based upon a principle of exclusion can take care of this deficiency. Cutting out all shipments to Central, Northwestern and Trans-Mississippi States, the output would fall several million tons short of covering the loss due to the suspension. With the doors of the coal producing companies in the Northwest and Central States, and long-established trade connections in other parts of the country, it is not likely that the Eastern tier of States can hope for all the production.

"The idea that production might be increased above the maximum records cited through lengthening the working day at the mines may be dismissed. In the first place, the miners' union is opposed to a working day longer than eight hours, and the average coal cutter actually works less than eight hours a day. Under the Pennsylvania State laws, workers must have a certificate, issued only after two years' experience, so that the idea of importing labor offers no hope. Inasmuch as demands upon the mines will absorb all the qualified labor now available, working double shifts is out of the question."

Are Ready to Co-operate.

Offers of co-operation from the Merchants' Association and H. H. Raymond, President of the American Steamship Owners' Association, were received yesterday by William H. Woodin, State Fuel Administrator. Mr. Woodin has been long a member of the Merchants' Association, and Lewis E. Pierson, its President, wrote him as follows:

"This association, with whose resources you are already familiar, eagerly desires to be of every possible assistance to you and to the State of New York in connection with the important work that must be done. We therefore place at your disposal the full use of the equipment, man-power and all other available resources of the association to be used to the fullest extent under your direction wherever they will be helpful. It is probable that the records and the experience of the staff of our industrial bureau, gained in aiding the Fuel Administrator during the war, will be of special assistance to you, and we desire to assure you that they are immediately available for whatever service they can give."

Mr. Raymond wrote Mr. Woodin as follows:

"We wish to proffer the active co-operation of the American Steamship Owners' Association in the great work which you have undertaken in the public interest. Our association includes in its membership virtually all of the American steamship companies operated in ocean, coastwise or overseas trade. The work with which you are intrusted is, of course, a matter of vital concern to us, and all our experience and knowledge are at your service. Governor Miller's act in placing you in charge of these great responsibilities cannot but be heartily acknowledged by all men of business."

TOADSTOOLS POISON TEN TRENTON PERSONS

Mistaken for Mushrooms By Picker Who Divided With Neighbors—Two Seriously Ill.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 10.—Toadstools, eaten in mistake for mushrooms, endangered the lives of ten persons in this city, two of whom are still in a very serious condition at their home. The man who picked the toadstools distributed them among his neighbors on Saturday afternoon and all were taken ill. Physicians were able to save the lives of those affected, but only after many hours of hard work.

The most serious sufferers are George Jacob and his wife of 140 Hancock Street. Jacob picked the toadstools yesterday afternoon and gave some to neighbors, including Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bernath, their daughter, Irene, 2 years of age, and Nicholas Pentek, of 141 Hancock Street; Mr. and Mrs. George Nyptor, their 10-year-old son, George, and Andrew Mayoris, a boarder, of 143 Hancock Street.

Jacob and his wife and their two children, Emma, 18, and Frank, 8, became ill during the night and Dr. Nathan H. Koplin was called early today. The others needed the services of a physician.

OUTWITS OUR OFFICERS.

German Serves in Rhineland Forces, but Lands in Bavarian Prison.

ST. ADELHEIM, Bavaria, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—After having outwitted the American military authorities sufficiently to gain enlistment in the Rhineland forces and quick promotion to the rank of staff sergeant photographer, Walter Heidensohn, alias Walter Jack Collins, a native of Germany, made the fatal mistake of returning to his old haunts in Munich. He is now serving a prison sentence of two and one-half months in the Stadelheim Prison for fraud and forgery, and other charges are to be pressed against him when his term expires.

In December, 1919, under the false name of Collins, Heidensohn enlisted with the American forces in Germany. He had gone to Coblenz from service with the American Relief Expedition in Poland. He was assigned to the aerial service stationed at Weinsthurm and soon became a staff sergeant.

Heidensohn went to Bavaria on leave and never returned to his organization. He wrote the American authorities later that he had been imprisoned in Bavaria for fraud and forgery. These charges proved to have been based on offenses committed in Munich in 1919 while Heidensohn was using the name of Henderson. Later he admitted his correct identity and said he was born in Berlin in 1897.

It is understood that in applying for enlistment Heidensohn claimed San Bernardina, Cal., as his home town. It is reported that he was interned in the British Isles during the war.

PLASTER BROKE UPWEDDING

Supper Guests Routed by Bits From Ceiling—Bride's Parents Hurt.

Plaster falling from the ceiling halted the festivities last night just as a wedding party of 250 guests were sitting down to supper to celebrate the marriage of Michael Seidman and Anna Markman at Union Hall, 619 Union Avenue, the Bronx.

The plaster struck Mrs. Rose Markman, the bride's mother, and Morris Markman, her father. The mother-in-law suffered abrasions of the neck, which were attended at once by Dr. Deutsch of Lincoln Hospital, who was summoned by Sergeant Sullivan and Patrolman McGrath of the Morrisania Station, who served also to quiet the gathering. Mr. Markman's injuries were slight, and she went home with her husband, who refused medical attendance. The clothes of some of the guests were spoiled by the dust of the falling plaster.

EMPTY TRAINS IN COLLISION.

Two trains of empty cars were in collision yesterday morning on the elevated structure at 188th Street and Third Avenue. Short circuits caused flames at both ends of the cars, but scaling ladders were run up by firemen and the blaze quickly extinguished with streams of water.

No one was injured, but traffic was halted for about fifteen minutes.

Tacna-Arica Debated in Peru.

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 10.—The debate in Congress on the Tacna-Arica protocol was continued until the adjournment of the session Saturday evening. The question will come up again at the session on Monday.

PUTS HER WARDROBE ON CURB AND FLEES

Bootblack Sees "Red-Haired" Woman Deposit Bags and Box, Then Leave in Taxi.

POLICE ARE MUCH PUZZLED

Find Full Assortment of Clothes and Hats—Clue in Letters Fails Them.

Police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station are attempting to solve the mystery of a case thrust upon them last evening, when they came into possession of a woman's entire wardrobe, which was left on the curbstone in front of 359 West Fifty-third Street yesterday afternoon by a good-looking "red haired woman."

Just why the woman with the auburn locks decided to abandon a full set of clothing and hats on a public thoroughfare and then disappear in a taxicab is what the detectives of the precinct are trying to determine.

It was about 2 o'clock when a bright yellow taxi drew up to the curbstone in front of the West Fifty-third Street address, which is a few feet from the bootblack stand of William Morretto, and a short distance from Ninth Avenue. The woman, about 30 years old, whose most noticeable feature was her auburn hair, left the cab and carefully deposited on the sidewalk two suit cases, a traveling bag and a large cardboard box. Then she jumped into the taxi, ordered the driver to proceed, and the vehicle speeded along Tenth Avenue while the bootblack looked on in amazement.

Morretto thought the woman was a new roomer in the neighborhood and he condescended to maintain a careful watch over the suit cases, &c. Several times during the afternoon he was aroused from a doze when small boys tried to carry away the articles. When darkness arrived Morretto called Patrolman Thomas Riley, of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, and the latter took the bags and the box to the police station.

They were opened with care and revealed a woman's full wardrobe, including sweaters, suits, handkerchiefs and lingerie. The cardboard box contained six creations in headgear—women's, of course. In one of the bags was found several old letters and a postcard addressed to "Mrs. Gertrude Conway, 78 West Eighty-fifth Street," mailed July 25 from Halifax, N. S., with the familiar inscription, "Having a great time; wish you were here," and signed "C."

The Eighty-fifth Street address was visited by detectives and found to be a rooming house conducted by Mrs. L. Oaks. She recalled that several weeks ago "Mr. and Mrs. Conway" rented a room there and that "Mr. Conway" worked nights.

Mrs. Oaks told the detectives that when "Mr. Conway" began working nights "Mrs. Conway" came in late at night and was asked to vacate their room, which she did, but left behind her belongings. A week ago, however, "Mrs. Conway," who answered the description of the woman with the auburn hair, returned and took her suit cases, bags and hatbox with her.

She also left word at the rooming house to call a telephone number in the Lenox Exchange in the event mail came for her, but when detectives tried to run down this clue, they found that the number was that of a garage and that the attendants never had heard of "Mr. and Mrs. Conway."

FLEES 'INVISIBLE ENEMIES.'

Man With Wild Story Is Hurried to Bellevue.

After he had told a priest at the Sacred Heart Church of Jesus, in West Fifty-first Street, a story of being pursued by "invisible enemies," Frank Fennel, 31, of 203 West Fifty-fourth Street, a stenographer at the Hotel Harding, was taken last night to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

Fennel was found wandering in Fifty-first Street by Patrolman John McGrath, of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, to whom he repeated his story of being followed by some one who sought his life. Dr. Dissick, of Flower Hospital, called a nurse and ambulance from Bellevue Hospital and Fennel was hurried there.

POSTMASTER $10,000 SHORT

Missing Pittsfield Official Seen in Fifth Avenue Friday.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 10.—The first official information concerning a shortage in the accounts of Clifford H. Dickson, missing Pittsfield postmaster, was made public today by Post Office Inspector Sharp, who announced that he had informed the Post Office Department that a shortage of more than $10,000 existed. He also notified the United States District Attorney at Boston, the company by which Dickson was bonded, and members of Dickson's family.

Representatives of the bonding company and officials of the Post Office Department will at once begin a search for Dickson who was last seen in New York City on Friday morning by two Pittsfield women who returned here Saturday. They met the missing postmaster at Thirty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue, they said. Dickson told them he intended to leave New York that night but did not indicate his destination.

OFFER AMOSKEAG RISE.

Company's Proposal May Be Refused, Union Leaders Say.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 10.—W. Parker Straw, agent of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, announced late this afternoon that the corporation "following the action of Maine mills will increase wages, effective Monday, Sept. 11." The amount of the increase was not given, but it figured at approximately 25 per cent., one of the officials said.

Union chiefs said late tonight that meetings of all local unions would be held, beginning tomorrow, to take action on the company's proposition. They predicted that it would not be accepted in view of the fact that the main issue at stake is the 48-hour work week.

Vice President Starr, of the United Textile Workers of America, who is at Fall River, Mass., telephoned to local leaders that he would return to Manchester at once.

"My advice to the workers is to take no action on the company's proposition until they have met and discussed it," he said.

B.R.T. MAN CALLED BURGLAR

Conductor Is Arrested in Ridgewood, Queens.

George Voss, 21, a Brooklyn Rapid Transit conductor, of 1,744 Myrtle Avenue, Ridgewood, Queens, was arrested last night charged with attempting to break into a men's furnishings store. Detectives James Connolly and Isaac Jacobs of the Glendale Station made the arrest. He will be arraigned today in the Ridgewood Magistrate's Court.

The store, which is owned by William Furman of 109 Kent Street, Greenpoint, Brooklyn, had been looted several times recently, according to the police, and Furman had asked neighbors to keep watch when he was away Sundays. A telephone call to the Glendale Station by a man who did not give his name brought the detectives.

He Declares This Is the Purpose of His Visit to Ireland.

DUBLIN, Sept. 10.—Richard Croker Jr. of New York is reported to have said in Dublin Saturday that he came to Ireland from the United States for the sole purpose of visiting his father's grave.

It was reported recently that Mr. Croker had come to Dublin to dispute the provisions of the will of his father.

BRITISH DELEGATION COMING

Sir Robert Horne May Lead Mission on Debt Funding.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The London Times says that the British debt funding delegation will leave for the United States very shortly.

The personnel is still unknown, but it has been suggested that Sir Robert S. Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will head the delegation, and adds the newspaper, no doubt the Government has fully provided itself with the necessary dollars to pay the first half year's interest of £25,000,000.

LISTED DEAD, VISIT CIVIL WAR REUNION

Two Veterans, Unheard Of for Twenty Years, Attend Services of Fourteenth Zouaves.

BABYLON MEN BOTH OVER 90

Fourteen of Twenty-One Survivors of Original 2,000 Present at Memorial Exercises in Fort Greene Park.

Two Civil War veterans, officially listed as dead in the records of the Fourteenth Infantry, later the Fourteenth Zouaves, appeared yesterday at a regimental memorial service in Fort Greene Park, Brooklyn. The two men, both of whom are over 90 and residents of Babylon, Long Island, are C. V. Bell, a private, and Van D. Richmond, a drummer. Neither Bell nor Richmond had been seen by any of their former comrades for twenty years. They saw the announcement of the reunion and memorial service, and decided to undertake the trip to Brooklyn.

Of the twenty-one survivors of the 2,000 soldiers who marched away in 1861, fourteen were present to honor the memory of their old commander, the late Colonel and Brevet Brig. Gen. Edward B. Fowler. The regiment won the title of "the red-legged devils," for its effective fighting in the Civil War.

Colonel Fred W. Baldwin, commander of the present Fourteenth Infantry, New York National Guard of Brooklyn, was present with a detail of men. The Fourteenth Infantry Band played. Each of the patriotic societies and veterans' organizations of Kings County was represented.

Among the speakers were Congressman and former Mayor Ardolph L. Kline, Sheriff Peter Berry, County Judge J. Grattan MacMahon, Magistrate Charles J. Dodd, John J. Bennett Jr., County Chairman of the American Legion and Charles L. Amey of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mr. Amey related the adventures of his great-great-great grandfather in moving the Liberty Bell from Independence Hall, Philadelphia, to Allentown, when the British forces planned to melt the bell and make bullets of its metal.

LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP CIGAR STORE FOR $500

Clerk Telephones Superior Before Notifying Police—Questioned at Station.

Just as Matthew Deutsch, 23, clerk in the United Cigar Store at South Fourth and Havemeyer Streets, Brooklyn, was about to close the store shortly before last midnight a man entered with drawn revolver and ordered the clerk to hand over the contents of the cash drawer, amounting to more than $500. Fearing that the robber would make good his threat to shoot, Deutsch handed over the money.

When the robber had departed Deutsch telephoned his chief, Joseph M. Wallenstein, 460 Halsey Street, and on the latter's suggestion notified the police. Deutsch found Patrolman Frank Reilly two blocks away and told of the hold-up. Detective John Kelly of the Eleventh Inspection District, assigned to the case, took Deutsch to the Bedford Avenue Police Station and questioned him at length.

Deutsch described his assailant as about five feet nine inches in height, slim, clean shaven, wearing a blue suit, a cap and a tan shirt and about 24 years old.

combined to uphold the embargo in return for support for the high rates on sugar, wool and farm products. The fight that will be made, it is believed, will serve only to inform the country of the pernicious features of the bill and may bring to the fore the log-rolling system always employed in the formation of a tariff bill. Some authorities say this bill was formed solely along logrolling lines and has little scientific basis of levying duties to justify it.

Even with the contest scheduled on the embargo, the leaders are confident that the enactment of a tariff law will not be delayed more than two weeks and that by the week of Sept. 23 Congress will have adjourned. The adjournment, with final action on the Tariff, Bonus and Coal Regulation bills, the leaders believe, will have a good political effect.

The political-industrial situation is improving in the opinion of some Republican leaders, who see in the negotiations in progress on the rail strike and the promised enactment of a high protective tariff, six or seven weeks before the November elections, factors tending to restore confidence to the Republican Party.

All signs, the leaders say, point to a satisfactory condition in the industrial world long before the November election, at which the voters will decide whether Republican trusteeship has been satisfactory. Their optimism is based on the belief that there will be such a wonderful era of prosperity following crop movements and industrial activities, threatened for weeks by the strikes, as to make the electors forget the failures of Republican control in Congress and the ineffectiveness of Administration policies applied to the rail and coal strikes.

As against the expected period of seasonal prosperity, which may be enjoyed by a small part of the people, the cold, calculating party leaders are none too sanguine about the country entering upon a normal declared basis, which ultimately would mean lessened living costs and relief from war-time price levels still prevailing. They cannot see, with the steel industry increasing wages, the miners receiving the same high wages as before the war, and the railroads unable to deflate the labor costs, how there can be an adjustment economically.

In fact, the pessimistic members of the party are fearful lest the next House shall be controlled by radicals in combination with those opposed to Republican policies which will plunge the party and the country into a worse condition than that now prevailing.

The deflation necessary to adjustment in industry and affecting the entire body politic, they say, cannot come as the result of the compromise coal settlement and the expected agreements on the part of some railroads to break the strike by continuing the old wage scale. Coal prices may be higher this year than during any period in the war. This, it was suggested, necessarily will hold up the prices of manufactured articles. The railroads will be unable to reduce freight rates, and therefore another element working to continued high living costs is seen.

Industrial readjustment that had been expected to be a fact now has gone a glimmering, it is pointed out, and in the face of the continued inflated labor scales in all the basic industries, controlling food and general living costs, there appears to be little prospect of reduction in the householders' expenses or in taxation.

Prosperity in the weeks preceding the November election may be apparent, it is held, for the effect of increased tariff duties and high prices resulting from coal conditions may not then be felt so seriously. Some of the Republican leaders believe that the readjustment caused by higher tariff rates will not be a factor so early as the elections. The new tariff law, with rates generally higher than the Payne-Aldrich law, it is believed, will be in operation at least six weeks before the election.

The success of the Republican Party, most of the leaders say, depends entirely upon restored prosperity in the industrial centres which have suffered during the long rail and coal strikes. There has been some unemployment in the several States due to these strikes and the purchasing power of the masses has been lessened. If the expected Fall business boom comes in the great industrial States and the farm sections enjoy high prices, the reaction against the party in power, it is declared, may not be so great as expected by the Democratic leaders.

Generally speaking, the Republican leaders expected to be the greatest gain in the Middle States, Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Illinois, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Indiana, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia are regarded as certain to show great reductions in the Republican representation in the next House, while New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and Connecticut are generally conceded to be favorable to the election of Democratic Senators. New York's Senatorial contest is in the doubtful column, with much dependent upon the outcome of the factional fight in the Democratic Party in that State.

All the States west of the Mississippi are reported to be as strong for the Republican Party as in 1920. The farm bloc has succeeded in obtaining every legislative advantage for the farmer, and the duties placed on the farm products in the Tariff bill are said to have cemented the farm vote to the Republican Party.

But the success of the Republican ticket in this section of the country does not work for party solidarity. It is pointed out that all primaries held there thus far have named radicals for Congress. The latest manifestation of this sentiment was in Wisconsin, where Senator La Follette, an avowed enemy of the Harding Administration, won the greatest victory in his career.

Hence, even if the Republican Party should control the next House, present indications are that this control would be in name only. The next Congress will see a strengthening of the bloc system, with the labor and farm groups stronger than at present and holding the balance of power. In other words, the radicals, masquerading under the name of Republicans, are not regarded as of that faith. They are expected to help organize the House, but after that to work in the group to achieve their ends and prevent the Republican leaders from carrying out conservative policies for which the party stands.

When the election is held all the issues and all the mistakes of the Republican Party will be apparent. The tariff will have been in operation and the coal legislation working to keep down coal prices, furthermore the President will have acted upon the Bonus bill.

"Even with so many issues against us we will win," said a Senate leader, who admitted all the disadvantages.

"And why," he was asked.

"Because the people still believe that the Democrats are worse than us," was his answer.

And, after all, that is the plain and blunt view of the coming elections held by many Republicans.

IT is not a coincidence that the man

FRANCE HAS ARMY OF 690,000 MEN

In Statement to League She Says This Force Is Necessary to Her Safety.

FEARS GERMAN ATTACK

Says Spirit of Revenge Is Fostered in Fatherland, Which Does Not Accept Defeat.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 10.—A French statement to the League of Nations on land armaments puts the strength of the French Army, metropolitan and colonial, at 690,000 men, and declared that in existing political conditions France does not deem it wise to reduce that number. The new French law fixes 726,000 as the number of all French troops, which total the Paris Government has decided to reduce to the figure stated above.

Of this 690,000, it is stated that 335,000 men are stationed in France proper, 93,000 on the Rhine, 70,000 are used in carrying out treaty obligations in the Saare, Syria, the Cameroons and Togoland, while the rest are stationed in the French colonies. In the total of 690,000 there are 100,000 professional soldiers, 375,000 conscripts, 205,000 colonial natives and 10,000 foreigners.

The French state frankly that fear of Germany determines the total of 427,000 men maintained on the Continent, and the report adds: "The Government considers that at this cost only can it attain a superiority which will discourage any aggressive tendency."

The report shows that in 1914 the budget provided for 873,000 men, as compared with 690,000 now. In 1920 the French military budget was 6,000,000,000 francs; in 1921, 5,400,000,000, and in 1923, 4,500,000,000.

The statement of the French Government not only refers to an army twice as large as any other, except the Russian, but gives an interesting reflection of the state of mind of the statesmen controlling the most powerful nation on the Continent of Europe.

Troops Called For by Treaty.

The French begin by pointing out that the treaty obligations call for the use of 140,000 men as follows: The Rhine, 92,000; Saare, 8,000; Upper Silesia and Memel, 16,000; Constantinople and the Straits, 8,000; Syria, Togoland and the Cameroons, 42,000. In Morocco, France maintains 85,000 troops, in Algeria and Tunis, 75,000, and in other colonies, 70,000, of whom a large percentage are native. The French say that they are therefore obliged to maintain outside of Europe for colonial and treaty duties 390,000 men theoretically, although the actual number is now below that figure.

The metropolitan army is charged to "defense of the country against foreign enemies." This section says:

"In the present state of European politics the special position of France has so often been misunderstood that the French Government feels bound to define it clearly in this communication.

"France has always desired peace. She proved this by silently bearing a terrible wound in her side for fifty years. She made most strenuous efforts to avoid the last war, and was the last to mobilize in Europe, seething with armed forces. But ruined and impoverished in the presence of her numerous graves and all too few cradles, and five times invaded in a century and a quarter, France would fall short of her elementary duty of defense and her mission as the champion of order if she did not look toward her newly recovered frontier and take necessary precautions against the possibility of another catastrophe.

"France and almost the whole world wish for peace. But in Germany, conquered only yesterday, is there really a unanimous desire to preserve peace? A terrible wave of violence breaks out almost daily and does not stop short of periodical murder, and shows there are still too few brave spirits in Germany to stem the wave of destruction. And although the German Government condemns manifestations, there is no evidence, alas, that it has strength to check them.

Treaty as Germans View It.

"Germany, it seems, does not accept her defeat. It is true that with the exception of a very few no German considers the Treaty of Versailles as anything but an intolerable injustice, a monstrous forced peace of shame and violence, against which every means of resistance is justified. Thus the idea of revenge is systematically directed against France and, supported daily by the press under the influence of Pan-Germans and by militarist manifestations of every kind which no authority has yet been strong enough to suppress, is making continuous progress among the mass of the people."

The French then argue that Germany's hostility toward the new States, her attitude on Upper Silesia, her desire to swallow Austria and her closeness to Russia all make war possible and add: "However firm may be the desire of France to avoid such a conflict she would fail in her duty if she neglected to provide against it."

The report says the peace treaty allows Germany a Reichswehr strength of 100,000 men and that Germany has retained the Schutzpolizei, 150,000 men, and observes: "In spite of everything, Germany has succeeded in maintaining a standing army of 200,000, more than she sought at the conclusion of the peace treaty. The report says there are 7,000,000 men trained as soldiers in Germany who are capable of being mobilized.

The French then say that, although Germany is rich in men, the number she could put in the field quickly would depend on how many she could equip. Commissions of control have kept down materials of war, but when they are withdrawn Germany can quickly manufacture more.

Pointing out that regarding industrial and population factors Germany is superior to France, the French say their safety lies in being able to move more quickly and by being better prepared, adding:

"France must, therefore, protect herself by securing superiority in the matter of time. Rapid deployment of her forces can alone allow her, in case of attack, to benefit, but the real advantage the Treaty of Versailles provides is in preventing Germany from carrying out, as in 1914, simultaneous mobilization of all of her forces."

After the statistical summary the French report concludes:

Pressure on Rhine Beneficial.

"The situation arising out of the war has imposed obligations on France with regard to the maintenance of political stability in Europe. The presence of large French forces on the Rhine not only applies pressure which obliges Germany to respect the treaties she has signed, but affords considerable moral support to the young nations of Central Europe which have arisen since the war and contributes largely to giving France the necessary authority for maintaining the principles of order and justice and for securing their observance.

"The military force of France is at present an essential factor of peace in Europe. France would be glad to reduce it after the terrible sufferings she has undergone, but she cannot be asked so to do as long as the Germans' war spirit, to which we have drawn attention, continues to exist."

The British statement calls attention to the fact that France has the largest air force in the world, being credited with 1,150 military planes as against 568 for England, 715 for the United States and 300 for Japan.

GENEVA, Sept. 10.—Bolivia has notified the League Secretariat of her withdrawal from the Assembly. The Bolivian delegates have not been in session, although their credentials had been sent to Geneva.

Bolivia's real reason for action is supposed to be the same as that of Peru in refusing to seat its delegation in the third Assembly, namely, the election of the Chilean, Augustin Edwards, as President.

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—It is announced officially that Bolivia has instructed its delegates in Geneva not to attend the sessions of the Assembly of the League of Nations, reserving the right to renew at the proper time the request that the League of Nations invite Chile to revise the treaty of 1904, says a dispatch to La Prensa from La Paz, capital of Bolivia.

BERLIN ASKS BELGIUM TO EXTEND PAYMENT

Wants to Redeem Treasury Notes in Three Instalments in Eighteen Months.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—After a long session with the Germans last night, the Belgian delegation announced today that it would leave for Brussels to consult the Government regarding the German proposals for guarantees for Treasury bonds to be given as reparations payments.

M. Delacroix, chief of the Belgian mission, said that the negotiations were not broken, but merely prolonged, pending the Belgian Government's decision on the question of extending payment of the bonds. The Germans desire, instead of being payable in six months, that the bonds mature as follows:

100,000,000 gold marks to be paid in six months.

60,000,000 gold marks to be paid in twelve months.

110,000,000 gold marks to be paid in eighteen months.

The Belgians think this is a matter to be settled by the Reparation Commission, not Belgium.

Herr Havenstein, the Director of the Reichsbank, has offered to endorse part of the Treasury bonds. This the Belgians regard as satisfactory.

BERLIN, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—The Belgian delegates who have been negotiating with representatives of the Government respecting guarantees for the German note issue in connection with reparations left here tonight for Brussels. The British Ambassador, Lord d'Abernon, traveled on the same train to London.

The negotiations thus far have ended in failure, but it is thought possible that they may be resumed after the Belgians report to their Government or the Germans make further necessary concessions.

According to the well informed Tageblatt, the German Government proposed that the Reichsbank should undertake to guarantee the Treasury bills, but without drawing on its gold reserves. The guarantees would have been secured in the second place from German industry, and the Government was to undertake to place at the Reichsbank's disposal from ten to twelve million gold marks monthly, obtained from German exports.

The press does not take the failure of the negotiations as a tragedy, because it assumes that they will be renewed.

CLEMENCEAU FIXES TRIP FOR NOVEMBER

Can't Bear Idea That American People Think France Is Militaristic.

HIS STAY TO BE BRIEF

Paris Papers Enthusiastic Over War Premier's Plan—Says He'll Speak His Mind Plainly.

PARIS, Sept. 10 (Associated Press.)—Georges Clemenceau, France's war Premier, has addressed the following message to The Associated Press from his Summer home at Jard, Department of Vendée, his native district, on his contemplated visit to the United States:

"I have no time to make plans. All I can say is that I am ready to leave for America during the first week in November, there to remain for a few weeks if the state of my health permits.

"I will arrange the whole matter with my American friends, who already know that I can no longer bear the idea of France being accused of imperialism and militarism by the American people. Naturally I will speak of the League of Nations, but I will pursue no other designs than to say what I feel and then return home."

PARIS, Sept. 10.—The Journal des Débats approves of former Premier Clemenceau's plan to visit the United States on a speaking tour for the purpose of giving his views on the duty of the nations which were allied in the war. After discussing the course of events that has resulted from failure of the Allies to continue their solidarity when the war had been brought to an end, the writer says:

"But it is not any use philosophizing about the past and making a list of the mistakes that might have been avoided. M. Clemenceau is another such outrage as was suffered in 1914 has not been kept. He will speak to them in phrases and with a philosophy that will have tremendous appeal."

M. Bainby adds that perhaps it would not be a bad thing to send over a few technicians who can explain to bankers and politicians somewhat more felicitously than did M. Parmentier recently the exact position of France.

M. André Tardieu, writing on another subject but with a reference to the visit of his former chief to America, says in the Echo National:

"But for France, no one could have withstood the attack. But for England no one could have continued resistance. But for America no one could have won."

INDIAN MOSLEMS EXULT.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Daily Telegraph's Calcutta correspondent, in a message dated Sunday, says that the heart of that great idealist people, the Americans, the whole of Europe will be his debtor."

Emile Bure, writing in the Eclair, recalls how he and others urged Clemenceau to visit America when it became apparent that the engagements signed by President Wilson were in danger of being rejected. At that time Clemenceau thought he could do nothing, as, says M. Bure, "like many others he did not realize the possible results of the pacifist policy followed by the Peace Conference. Now that he is completely edified, now that he sees that victory is about to change sides, he courageously offers his services to his country to repair the errors which he committed, or which he allowed to be committed. His adversaries will say it is high time. We say better late than never, and hope that if ever he undertakes it the journey of the former President will be of service to his country by helping the American people to see and understand the true situation of the world and their essential part in it."

At the same time M. Bure emphasizes that there must be no confusion of thought in American minds, no idea that France is trying in any way to influence the American elections, and for that reason the part of the French Ambassador at Washington must be strictly neutral.

Léon Bailby in the L'Intransigeant is another who has more than once urged the ex-Premier to go to America and state France's case. "He can tell the Americans people some interesting truths," he writes, "and his presence among them will recall to the 2,000,000 men who crossed the seas that the word of America to prevent with a compact non-aggression another such outrage as was suffered in 1914 has not been kept. He will speak to them in phrases and with a philosophy that will have tremendous appeal."

M. Bailby adds that perhaps it would not be a bad thing to send over a few technicians who can explain to bankers and politicians somewhat more felicitously than did M. Parmentier recently the exact position of France.

The Petit Parisien then answers the criticism of those American "friends" who place all blame for budgetary extravagance on military upkeep by saying that the only real hope of a reduction of the national armies lies in making the League of Nations strong and armed, and without the presence of the United States that can never be done. It concludes:

"France already owes much to Clemenceau, but if he is able to touch the heart of that great idealist people, the Americans, the whole of Europe will be his debtor."

Emile Bure, writing in the Eclair, recalls how he and others urged Clemenceau to visit America when it became apparent that the engagements signed by President Wilson were in danger of being rejected. LAYS EUROPE'S WOES TO PEACE TREATY

Sir Charles Sykes, After Investigation in Central Europe, Would Revise Versailles Compact.

TRADE STRANGLED THERE

Powers, He Says, Should Have Imposed "Open Door" and Freedom of Transit.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir Charles Sykes, M. P. for Hudderasfield, after an intensive study on the spot of conditions in Central Europe has satisfied himself that the only hope of economic and social reconstruction in that hapless region lies in frank reconsideration of the Treaty of Versailles, both from a territorial and industrial point of view.

Sir Charles is one of the shrewdest men of big business in Great Britain. He is well known in the United States having paid two or three visits to that country. Owner of vast woolen mills, he was during the war Government Director of Wool and Textile Products, and as such purchased the entire supply of clothing for the British and allied armies and navies and civilian reserves. He is a Director of the United Newspapers (1918) Limited, which owns The London Daily Chronicle, Lloyd's Sunday News and other publications.

Moreover, the trip from which he has just returned is not his first acquaintance with the countries which formerly made up the Austro-Hungarian Empire, for on a previous occasion he visited the region on an official mission of investigation for the British Government.

It is the opinion of the baronet that in the case of these new countries the doctrine of self-determination was carried too far by the great powers, the equally important principle of the interdependence of these States as well as of all other States having been too largely overlooked. The Versailles Treaty when it established the succession States ought, he thinks, to have included stipulations insisting on the principle of the "open door" and freedom of transit.

Too Much Self-Determination.

"I do not wish to say anything disrespectful about that blessed word 'self-determination,'" he writes in a series of articles on the subject in The Daily Chronicle, "but I may perhaps venture to remark that our undue insistence on that principle has had a good deal to do with the present position in Central Europe.

"The States carved out of the old Austrian Empire were, and are still, in their infancy, and we do not as a rule give infants self-determination. When these succession States were created, the instrument creating them should have included definite conditions against the erection of commercial and fiscal barriers along their frontiers. That was not done.

"Such barriers have been erected, and they are interfering today seriously with the normal and natural course of international trade.

"The mistake made by the Allied Powers at Versailles was that the new political demarcations arranged in this region were not accompanied by a system of universal freedom of trade and communications imposed upon the resulting States of Central Europe.

"When Britain used her vast resources to establish, as she thought, peace and freedom in the vast region by the breaking up of the old Austrian Empire, she never anticipated that the succession States would pursue a policy of narrow and selfish antagonism and exclusion, and reproduce some of the worst vices of the Empire, especially in regard to the treatment of racial minorities within their own borders."

Example of Czechoslovakia.

Citing Czechoslovakia as an example of how the tariff walls set up by these new nations operate to the detriment of trade, Sir Charles says:

"Before the war the State now known as Czechoslovakia was the most important manufacturing area of the old Dual Empire, and it is safe to assume that the large bulk of its production was sold through Vienna, now the capital of the small State of Austria. Formerly Austria meant Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia (excluding Serbia), as well as parts of the present Rumania. Vienna was the buying centre of the Balkan States and of Eastern Europe.

"This vast business has been practically swept away on account of the disintegration of the old Austrian Empire, and, what is equally serious, on account of the enormous depreciation of the exchanges in these countries bordering upon Czechoslovakia.

"It is, therefore, easy to understand why protection should have been demanded against foreign importations. This has been effected by the establishment of a system of licenses which has precisely the same effect as a high import tariff. Czechoslovakia is not to be blamed for this departure, as the conditions I have described were imposed upon her by the Treaty of Versailles, and she is making the best, as she thinks, of these conditions."

Sir Charles is convinced that the Versailles Treaty, made in the midst of the war atmosphere, is directly responsible for most of the suffering and adversity which prevail in Europe, and that its revision is essential in the interest of all countries.

BEATEN GREEK ARMY IN MUTINOUS MOOD fled hastily in the morning, were able to escape.

Smyrna is overflowing with refugees who are without food or shelter, and typhus and the plague are raging. The Turks immediately sent out a call for doctors, medicines and nurses, and neighboring countries have been asked to send in food.

Sixty American Sailors Landed.

SMYRNA, Sept. 10 (Associated Press)—The American destroyer Lawrence arrived here yesterday, and sixty sailors from the vessel are guarding the American Consulate, the theatre, the Y. M. C. A. building and the American school. The American property is near the consulate.

The town is packed with refugees, but calm prevails. Great numbers are massed on the quays and are leaving port on all kinds of vessels. British, Italian and French naval forces are ashore patrolling limited areas, but there has been no concerted action for the general maintenance of order as the Turks are not willing to permit these patrols to remain in the city.

There has been some looting and sniping, and the Turkish authorities have arrested some of the culprits, who, for the most part are Turks. The present force in Smyrna numbers 2,000 and is well disciplined. Relief for the homeless and starving is being organized.

SMYRNA, Sept. 9.—The Fourth Turkish Cavalry Regiment, supported by irregulars, entered Smyrna at 11 o'clock this morning.

The troops were well disciplined and there were no untoward incidents, except the wounding of a Turkish officer by a bomb hurled by a civilian. There was no retaliation.

Immediately upon their arrival the Turks sent patrols through the streets calling upon civilians to remain quiet and throw away their weapons. Assuring them there was no danger, allied motor cars also carried out the same mission.

Typhus Among Refugees in Smyrna.

PARIS, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—The Turkish Nationalists, ending their two weeks' campaign, have swept the Greeks out of Asia Minor, and the Kemalists, who yesterday entered Smyrna, took prisoner the remnants of the Greek forces remaining behind to cover the wild flight of the Greek Army that a month ago held securely a large part of Western Asia Minor and talked of marching through Thrace into Constantinople.

The Turks ran a race with the diplomats, their leaders say, and won the race, for Turkish arms settled in a few days, and settled finally, according to Angora advices, the problem of how Asia Minor is to be divided, a problem with which diplomacy had been struggling for three years.

Smyrna, which has been in a state of chaos for three days, since the Greek High Commissioner took to a warship in fear of his life, is now a hotbed of typhus and plague, and is crowded with thousands of refugees without food.

The allied Consuls and naval contingents, including the Americans, had begun the restoration of order, but the Turks have taken charge of Smyrna, and their first efforts have been directed toward stamping out epidemics and relieving distress.

Smyrna, which has been the goal of the Nationalists, as Angora was that of the Greeks, soon will witness, according to dispatches from Angora, the ceremonious and triumphant entry into the city of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, and others of the Nationalist Government.

Constantinople Celebrates With Riots.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 10.—The Turkish victory processions today on both sides of the Bosporus developed at nightfall considerable rioting, when frenzied mobs attacked Greek houses and churches, necessitating the services of Turkish troops to put down the disorders.

For the first time since the armistice the Allies permitted the Turkish authorities to call out the troops, and several companies of lancers paraded the principal streets, whereupon the report became current that the Allies were attacking Constantinople.

All the mosques and public buildings have been decorated. A great torchlight procession was held tonight, thousands of school children and students taking part. Religious services were celebrated in all the mosques in memory of the fallen soldiers.

Traffic was suspended throughout the city this evening, and the cars of foreign residents were halted. A few clashes occurred between opposing factions, but generally order was well preserved.

The biggest demonstration was organized on the Stamboul Parade Grounds, where speakers harangued the crowd, which then paraded past the War Office to weird Oriental music, carrying portraits of Mustapha Kemal, while women watched silently behind latticed windows.

The paraders attempted to cross the Golden Horn to Pera, but the Allied police blocked the Galata Bridge. A number of the demonstrators rowed across and then marched to the Greek quarter at Tatavla, where they attacked churches and broke the windows in many houses. Others attempted to force their way into the residence of the Armenian Patriarch, and, not being successful in this, did considerable damage.

An Allied Commission composed of three staff officers proceeded Saturday afternoon to Brusa in order to see that no unnecessary damage was done the town and to obtain guarantees for the minorities and for the peaceful handing over of the town. The Kemalist authorities, it is understood, will facilitate the evacuation of the Christians from Brusa, numbering 100,000.

The French have sent a detachment of troops to Mudania to protect the French nationals and their property. Trouble with the retreating Greeks is feared.

New Greek Cabinet Formed.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—A new Greek Cabinet has been formed, according to an Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. It is headed by M. Triantafillakos, who also takes the portfolios of War and Marine. M. Optaxias is Minister of Finance, M. Boussilos, Minister of the Interior; M. Kalogeropoulos, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and M. Mansas, Minister of National Economy.

ROME, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—Foreign Minister Schanzer is pressing the London and Paris Governments to take efficacious steps toward bringing about a peace between the Greeks and the Turks, preferably through a conference at Venice or by some other means. In renewed representations Signor Schanzer has pointed out that Italy is suffering more than any other country because of the almost entire breakdown of commerce between Venice and Trieste with the Near East.

Pope Pius has requested France to protect the lives and interests of the Catholic clergy in Asia Minor.

Constantinople Kemal's Goal.

ANGORA, Sept. 10.—The Kemalists express some astonishment at the news that British contingents have been landed on the coast of the Sea of Marmora, but officials here think that this is a temporary measure pending the arrival of Turkish troops. Should this not be the case, the Kemalists declare they will be obliged to oppose the stay of the British forces in Asia Minor.

Constantinople and Adrianople were given as the next objectives by one of the Kemalist leaders addressing a great crowd that assembled outside the National Assembly Building as soon as the news of the capture of Symrna was officially confirmed.

"We will soon rejoice at the news of the deliverance of two other great cities that impatiently wait the coming of our flag—Constantinople and Adrianople," the speaker told the crowds. "Turkey will not let her army lay down its arms until the aims set forth in the national compact are attained."

KEMAL WON'T INSURE AGAINST MASSACRES

His Message Disquiets League Officials, Who Fear Turks Have Begun the Slaughter.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 10.—The Secretary of the League of Nations received today from Mustapha Kemal Pasha a cryptic telegram saying that on account of the excited spirit of the Turkish population the Angora Government would not be responsible for massacres. This is taken here to mean that massacres have already begun.

It is not quite clear what the League as such can do to prevent excesses by the victorious Turks, but it is expected that Lord Robert Cecil will bring the matter before the Assembly tomorrow and ask that the Governments of the League possessing the force take action to protect the Christian minorities in Asia Minor.

Kemal's message was sent through the Red Cross.

George Streit, head of the Greek delegation in the League Assembly and former Foreign Minister, said today that his country would seek to negotiate peace terms with Mustapha Kemal in joint action with the Allies rather than separately. England and France have already been asked to use their good offices to arrange a peace meeting.

M. Streit does not believe that the League has any rôle to play in the hostilities nor in the peace negotiations as such. He quoted Lord Balfour's speech yesterday as indicating that no such effort would be made and said that Greece had not asked for it.

However, Mr. Streit believes that an appeal from the League to Kemal against massacres in Anatolia may have a good effect, even though there is no armed force behind it. After the conclusion of peace, he said, the League might take the Christians in Asia Minor under their protection, in much the same way as the European concert did before the war.

Mr. Streit says he doesn't believe that Constantino's throne is in danger because he is not held responsible for the defeat by the majority of Greeks. In his opinion the Venizelists would ruin themselves by trying to exploit the present misfortunes of their county by attempting a coup de état. He explains the Crown Prince's recall by the natural desire of his father to see him.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Major Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice, who has arrived in Constantinople, says in a dispatch to The Daily News from that city, dated Sunday, that the Greeks still hold Brusa, where there is panic among the Christians. The Greek Corps is intact and fought a successful rear-guard action on Saturday.

Sir Frederick says that an early pronouncement of the policy of the Allies regarding the Straits is urgently required. The immediate demonstration by the Allies might save thousands of Christian lives and assure peace.

MRS. HARDING SHOWS SIGNS OF A RALLY

with all her strength and determination. Her reserve powers have surprised all in the White House, and have filled them with fresh hopes. Most touching of all is Mrs. Harding's concern for her husband. She has insisted that he need not interrupt his duties to be near her. While he is out of the sickroom the President frequently questions physicians and nurses for the latest news.

Those who have seen the President say that he shows the signs of the strain of his wife's illness, but that the many messages of sympathy flooding the White House have greatly heartened him.

Just before midnight it was stated at the White House that Mrs. Harding was sleeping quietly. The President had retired, and for the first time since Mrs. Harding's condition became critical Dr. Sawyer left the White House and went to his apartment at the Willard Hotel. While these developments were accepted as reassuring, there was no comment made by Dr. Sawyer or the other physicians.

Washington people are showing the deepest interest and sympathy in Mrs. Harding's illness. The White House grounds are still open, but many pedestrians who generally use the walks for a short cut downtown, pass by the White House by the long way. Passersby look through the railings and stop to watch friends and officials drive up to the north portico to inquire for Mrs. Harding's condition. On the driveway two or three White House cars are parked day and night in readiness for physicians, nurses and other attendants.

Clifford B. Kling, Mrs. Harding's brother, arrived here this morning from Marion and is remaining at the White House. Mrs. Edward B. McLean, one of Mrs. Harding's most intimate friends who arrived here from Bar Harbor last night, spent the day at the White House. Numerous Administration officials and Senators called during the day, including Secretary Weeks, Postmaster General Work, Secretary Davis, Col. C. R. Forbes, Director of the Veterans' Bureau; Senator and Mrs. New of Indiana and Senator Fletcher of Florida.

Private messages of hope for Mrs. Harding's recovery from a number of foreign rulers have been transmitted to the White House through Embassies and Legations. Because of the informality of these messages, their texts and authors have not been made public.

Mrs. McLean said tonight as she left the White House just before 10 o'clock: "Mrs. Harding is better tonight and that is why I am leaving for home. She has quieted down and is going to sleep now. I think there is good hope for her recovery."

This was regarded as a sign of the hopeful feeling that is beginning to prevail at the White House. Another sign of a favorable nature was the return of Dr. Finney to Baltimore this evening. It was taken for granted that he would not leave the patient if the danger was acute.

Senator New of Indiana called at the White House this evening. He said that Mrs. Harding was doing as well as could be expected. Ex-Speaker Cannon called at the Executive Offices to make inquiries.

Mrs. Charles H. Mayo accompanied her husband and with him is a guest at the White House.

All the information that came from the sick room late tonight was in line with the previous favorable tidings. One thing that impressed those looking for good news was that the attending physicians allowed one of Mrs. Harding's nurses to take the evening off, leaving only a single nurse on duty for the entire night. Heretofore there have been two nurses assigned to the all-night vigil.

Among those who were at the White House in the late evening were Secretary Weeks and the Rev. Dr. Abernathy, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, which the President and Mrs. Harding attend. Dr. Abernathy brought a large cluster of roses sent by the members of his congregation.

Richard Riedell, a Senate page, 15 years old, sent the President a copy of a verse of the One Hundred and Twenty-third Psalm, enclosed in a gilt frame. The verse read: "I shall lift up mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help." The boy sent a note to President Harding in which he said that this was the favorite verse of his father, who is dead.

PRAY FOR MRS. HARDING.

Home Folks in Marion, Ohio, Send Telegrams of Sympathy.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Prayers for the speedy recovery of Mrs. Warren G. Harding were offered at all of the churches in the home town of the President today.

At the Trinity Baptist Church, the home church of Mr. and Mrs. Harding, a two-minute session of prayer was offered, after which a telegram of sympathy was sent to the President. Dr. Thomas R. McAfee, pastor of the Trinity Church, who has been ill with a stroke of paralysis for months, has been praying continually for an improvement in Mrs. Harding's condition. He also sent the President a telegram.

Hundreds of other telegrams have been sent from Marion and many long distance telephone inquiries have been made, while scores of radio operators remained at their sets today "listening in" for the latest reports.

Dr. George T. Harding, the President's father, received a detailed account of his daughter-in-law's condition this afternoon.

WARNS GERMANY TO YIELD TO BELGIUM

Poincare on Marne Battlefield Says France Will Act to Enforce Ally's Demands.

MAKES AMEND TO BRITAIN

In Presence of Field Marshal French the Premier Retracts Slur in His Recent Note.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—The failure of the Belgian Cabinet to obtain from Germany any satisfactory guarantees for the payment of the 270,000,000 gold marks stipulated for in the recent decision of the Reparation Commission called forth a new warning to Germany from Premier Poincaré this afternoon that if the undertaking was not kept then France would range herself strongly at the side of Belgium to enforce the bond.

"If Germany seeks to evade the legitimate demands of Belgium," he said, "she will place herself in the position of a defaulter and it will be for us to use that liberty of action which we have never renounced and which we will never renounce."

This declaration was made in the course of a speech delivered by the Premier at Meaux on the occasion of the eighth celebration of the victory of the Marne. M. Poincaré took the opportunity to deliver a speech of considerable political significance.

Praises British Valor.

One of the first things he did was to make an amende honorable to the British people for that much criticised part of his note to England in which he seemed to contrast unfavorably the part played by America in the war with the part played by the British Empire, which he said fought for self-preservation. After praising the part taken by the British in the first battle of the Marne he declared:

"What good is it to dissertate on the comparative sacrifices of the Allies in the war? We have never confessed the bravery nor the disinterestedness nor the loyalty of our friends; we do not seek to contrast either bills of costs or the lists of our dead and wounded. Everyone did his duty and no one has a right to arrogate to himself first place in the victory."

But M. Poincaré had still one contrast to make. Standing near the great devastated area over which the war was fought, he asked whether it was just or not that France alone should bear the cost. France was not imperialistic. With passionate intensity he denied this oft-repeated slander. The French people were far too conscious of the fact that the country had not only a duty to itself to perform, but to other nations also, and if at any time it selfishly set itself against the general march of human progress it would fatally be the victim of its own attempt and would perish in its effort to expand its national life and influence beyond those measures set by its position in the comity of nations.

France's attitude toward Germany was in no way tainted with imperialism. All that she sought was simply to prevent her own ruin, which would be not only for France, but for all Europe, a terrible catastrophe. Before the end of the year there must be a complete and final settlement of the grave problem of reparations different from such a temporary settlement as had been attempted recently.

"We must get away from provisional settlements," he went on. "Germany must, willingly or unwillingly, fulfill her bond. We are as concerned as others in maintaining European unity, but in order that that unity shall be maintained France is necessary. If we do not receive help in re-establishing our position we must help ourselves. Here on the field of the Battle of the Marne we pledge ourselves to obtain justice."

Great Crowd of Mourners.

MEAUX, France, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—The anniversary of the Battle of the Marne was observed today by commemorative services in the Cathedral. There was a pilgrimage by thousands of mourning relatives, who came through a driving rain and a bitter wind, to the spot where members of their families fell in battle, and also a public ceremony that afforded Premier Poincaré an opportunity again to emphasize France's determination to obtain her due from Germany.

Field Marshal Viscount French of Ypres, who commanded the British forces at the Battle of the Marne, spoke for Great Britain. All the allied and associated powers, including the United States, were represented by military attachés.

HUGHES CABLES REGRETS.

He Hears of Mrs. Harding's Condition in Official Dispatch.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—Secretary Hughes and the other members of the American delegation who are attending Brazil's Centennial have been greatly grieved over the illness of Mrs. Harding, wife of the President. Mr. Hughes last night received an official dispatch from Washington conveying news of her condition, and immediately sent a cablegram to the President expressing his regret, and hope for the recovery of the patient.

This morning Mr. Hughes attended the services in the American Church, where he heard Pan-Americanism defined by Dr. Webster E. Browning, representing the General Education Board in South America. Dr. Browning said that commercial and diplomatic relations did not make for such firm bonds of friendship as did cultural and spiritual relations.

This afternoon Mr. Hughes called on Dr. Ruy Barbosa, Brazil's noted statesman, and afterward attended a reception given by Carlos Rodrigues, a Brazilian journalist. Tonight Mr. Hughes was a guest at a reception in the British Embassy.

Worry Over Her Bobbed Hair Leads Girl to Drown Herself

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Miss Norma Teffner, 21 years old, of Batavia, committed suicide by drowning in Horseshoe Lake, three and a half miles east of Batavia. It was learned on Friday night. It is believed that the cause of her act was the fact that she had had her hair bobbed, losing her curly locks, and had worried over it.

The body was recovered yesterday afternoon. In her clothes was found a note addressed to her brother, containing the sentence:

"Since my hair is gone my looks are gone, too, and it makes me so nervous."

MRS. JOHN BARRYMORE HERE

Arrives on the Adriatic—Wrote Book of Verses Abroad.

Mrs. John Barrymore, wife of the actor who is about to appear in "Hamlet," returned yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic after spending two months in Paris, Southern France and Italy, where she had been engaged in writing a play and a book of verses, she said.

When informed that her husband was going to appear in "Hamlet," Mrs. Barrymore said that he should be wonderful in the play.

"It will not be so trying as 'Richard III.,' where he had to wear that heavy armor," she added.

Charles Quartermaine, an English actor, also arrived on the ship with a company of twelve players who are to appear here in Charles B. Dillingham's production of "Loyalties."

LIFT CAR TO FREE WOMAN.

Struck and Seriously Hurt Crossing Coney Island Street.

Mrs. Pauline Weinberg, 64, of 78 East Twelfth Street, Manhattan, was run down by a trolley car on Surf Avenue, Coney Island, yesterday and is in a serious condition in the Coney Island Hospital. She was crossing the avenue, and in jumping back to escape being hit by an automobile stepped in front of the car.

She rolled under the fender and was caught by the front truck, so that two fire companies were called to extricate her. They had to jack up the car. Mrs. Weinberg remained conscious, although badly hurt, and clung to her pocketbook which she did not drop when hit.

HOVERED FOR 15 MINUTES.

Two German Aviators Had to Make No Effort to Remain Stationary.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—How motorless airplanes remained stationary in the air for a quarter of an hour without any attention from their pilots, though a strong wind was blowing, is told by Hentzen, Germany's champion motorless airplane flier, in an article which he contributes to the Berlin Tageblatt. Describing his flight of three hours, he says:

"There prevailed a strong and very gusty wind of from twelve to sixteen meters per second velocity. Immediately after the start my machine was thrown about here and there, and I had to devote my whole attention to flying. My colleague, Darmstadt, started after me and reached nearly the same height. Then both machines stood still near each other in the air and we exchanged signals. We remained in the same position a quarter of an hour. During this period the wind at that height was absolutely even, though very strong. My machine had perfectly still and needed no steering for the maintenance of equilibrium."

Escort of Billy Weston, Actress, Disappears—Occupants Send Her to Hospital.

HAD QUARREL WITH FRIEND

Bellevue Physicians Find No Symptom of Mercury She Said She Swallowed.

Billy Weston, an actress, formerly with the "Fashion Show" of Baltimore and said to be rehearsing for a part in the Greenwich Village Follies, was taken to Bellevue Hospital yesterday morning suffering from an overdose of drugs or bichloride of mercury poisoning.

At 11:30 o'clock on Saturday night she was assisted by a man into the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin at 245 West Fifty-first Street. Her escort said she was sick and asked permission to let her rest there for a while.

"Then he disappeared," said Mrs. Martin. "We never did succeed in reaching him, although we tried by telephone and messenger. The young woman became worse and was soon in a very serious condition. She told us that she had decided to end her life and had taken poison because of the trouble over her divorce proceeding.

"We called a doctor, who treated her and finally removed her to Bellevue. I had seen the man once before and knew him as the tenant of an apartment in this building. We did not find out how he happened to be with her, or where he disappeared to afterward."

After treatment at Bellevue Hospital, Miss Weston seemed to improve and it was said yesterday afternoon that she might live.

"If she is suffering only from an overdose of drugs, she is well already," said a physician attending her at Bellevue, "but she tells us she has taken bichloride of mercury, though we find no indication. The symptoms of bichloride of mercury poisoning, however, may not develop for three or four days. If she has taken a dose of this poison, it may result fatally."

Miss Weston lived in a furnished room at 274 West Seventy-first Street. Stanley H. Worthington, her landlord, said that she had quarrel recently with a man who had been her close friend for weeks.

"She was gone for a week and said she had been at Saratoga," said Mr. Worthington. "She said that he and she had both lost all their money on the races. They continued on friendly terms until a few days ago, when they had a quarrel. She was ill afterwards. He telephoned on Thursday to ask how she was, but said that he did not wish to talk to her. I went to her room and found her lying on the lounge as if sick or dejected and reported this to him. When Miss Weston learned that he had telephoned but did not want to speak to her she was angry and exclaimed:

"'Why did you let him go? I'm broke and he promised me money.'"

A number of letters and telegrams were found in her room when the police started an investigation, but this correspondence threw no light on the cause of her act.

Rambles for Nine Hours About East Side—Thought Kidnapped.

For nine and a half hours yesterday Raffaella Caisa, 27 months old, wandered through the streets of the East Side while her father, Anthony Caisa, of 219 Mott Street, searched in vain and caused the police to send out an alarm for her.

When two little girls finally took Raffaella from Sixth Street and Third Avenue to the Fifth Street Station the police wondered how the young child could have crossed streets thick with automobile traffic without being hurt. Except for a caking of dirt, acquired in her wanderings, and hunger pangs, which made her cry, Raffaella was unharmed. Her father thought she had been kidnapped.

15-Foot Shark at Cape May Killed by Shot From Beach

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Sept. 10.—Sol Needles, son of Postmaster Sol Needles of this city, yesterday afternoon was attracted to the city fishing pier by a large crowd who were watching two big sand sharks in the water. The spectators estimated they would measure fifteen feet each. Needles, who is a crack shot, raced home in his auto and got his rifle. Returning to the beach he shot one of the sharks, but thinking it was only wounded did not make any effort to land it.

This morning the Coast Guard on the Delaware Bay reported that the shark had washed ashore and that it would measure almost fifteen feet.

CURRENT BRINGS WORMS TO BEAKS OF POULTRY

Greenwich Inventor Has Device of Brass Rods, Electric Wire and Magneto.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 10.—Peter J. O'Keefe, son of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Keefe of Greenwich Avenue, Greenwich, has conceived a scheme for supplying poultry with earth worms by electricity.

Mr. O'Keefe is chief storekeeper in the Navy Yard at Portsmouth, N. H.

His plan of operation is to push two brass rods into the earth several feet apart with a wire attached to each rod, the ends of the wire being connected with an ordinary telephone magneto. Twisting the handle causes the earth between the poles to break and all shapes and sizes of angle worms come to the surface. This is caused by the vibration of the magneto in the damp ground between the poles.

The scheme, it is said, should prove of practical value to poultry raisers as well as fishermen. If angleworms can be called up by telephone whenever they are wanted through tickling the earth, the problems of economically feeding hens and procuring fish bait would seem to be simplified.

Mr. O'Keefe recalled that he had seen earth worms driven to the surface by electricity in lightning rods. Then he experimented with the telephone magneto. He and some of his friends have tested his apparatus with success.

STEAMER RESCUES 340 FROM THE HAMMONIA

Spanish Naval Authorities Say All Passengers and Crew of German Ship Were Saved.

LONDON, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—A radio dispatch received by Lloyds from the British steamer Kinfauns Castle reports that the steamer rescued 340 persons from the German steamer Hammonia, which sank Saturday evening at 6:26 o'clock in latitude 41:30 north, longitude 10:30 west.

The Kinfauns Castle is due to reach Southampton Tuesday morning.

VIGO, Spain, Sept. 10.—The naval authorities report that all the passengers on board the German steamer Hammonia were saved when the vessel foundered eighty miles off this port while on a voyage to Cuba and Mexico. The cause of the disaster is not known. British steamers effected the rescue of the passengers and crew.

30 SWIRLING BARGES IN SWIFT RIVER TIDE

East Ninety-sixth Street, where more than thirty coal barges, laden with about $1,000,000 worth of soft coal, had been tied up on Saturday after they had been pulled over from the Jersey shore by tugboats. Each of the heavy boats held from 600 to 1,100 tons of coal. They were owned by the Burns Brothers Coal Company and various other distributers.

Arthur Kenny, pilot of the fireboat Cornelius W. Lawrence, usually tied up at the foot of East Ninety-ninth Street, saw one of the heavy boats break loose in the ebbing tide shortly after 6 o'clock in the afternoon, and immediately he notified Capt. Francis H. Kiernan, who started the craft in pursuit. Firemen Felix McCarthy and John Macaulay managed to get a line on the boat as she twisted and turned in the rushing waters, and the Lawrence started back up the river to tie up the captured boat.

Moots Rushing Barges.

When the Lawrence was about opposite East Ninety-third Street with her captured boat she ran into a string of rushing barges, all tied together like links of sausages in groups of eight to ten boats. They had worked loose from their moorings in the heavy tide, and had started down the river. Lines tying the boats together also parted.

The Lawrence sent up distress signals, in the hope that tugboats would respond and help tie up the drifting boats, and managed to get twelve of the boats linked together and manoeuvred toward the shore. Fearing that the boats might break loose again and wreck themselves upon the rocks or in crashes with steamboats, Captain Kiernan ordered all women and children from the barges to the fireboat. Nearly a dozen persons were taken aboard the Lawrence.

After tying up these twelve boats the Lawrence started for nine others. While she was chasing these fugitives the original string of twelve pulled their lines loose in the heavy tide and again started down the river. Swirling and turning in dangerous circles, the boats caught other coal barges from piers further down the stream, so that the fleet swept on in ever-growing menace to other shipping as the number of uncontrolled boats was increased. Ends of piers were crumpled and holes were smashed in the sides of the boats, but none sank.

The siren of the Lawrence attracted many other municipal boats and railroad tugs to the work of clearing the river and also called thousands of spectators to the Queensboro Bridge and pier ends, whence eyes were directed on the efforts of the pilots to put lines on the swinging coal barges. The fireboat William B. McClellan rushed from its post at Astoria to aid in the work, and the police boat Manhattan, in command of Inspector William Bailey, also came up.

Railroad tugs dropped their tows and their crews fought for hours in efforts to get the barges tied up, lest any of the big Sunday pleasure boats or the Boston and Providence steamers should fail to receive warning of the danger and take their usual courses through the channel. Both the Patchogue and the Cutchogue of the Long Island Railroad Company snared boats and tied them in. The Allentown of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, in command of Captain E. B. Ford, also dropped her tow and went to work. Tugs of the New Haven road also worked, as did the tug Commissioner of the Merritt and Chapman Derrick and Wrecking Company.

So swiftly did the jam of boats rush in the ebb tide that the tugs had long and arduous work, because their skippers had to avoid being crushed by the wild boats, and also keep an eye out for the dangerous rocks and ledges jutting their ragged crests through the river's waters.

Several of the boats were chased as far south as Twenty-second Street, where six were finally tied up at a pier there. Four more were moored at Twenty-fourth Street, two at Twenty-eighth Street, two at Thirty-eighth Street, and two at Thirty-first Street. Captain Ford of the Allentown managed to drag a line of seven into Newtown Creek, and then he hurried out to tie up others along the eastern shore of the river. Still another boat was reported sinking in the river, but neither the Fire nor Police Department could verify that rumor.

Policemen along the Manhattan waterfront, and life savers at the Volunteer Station at the Cygnet Club at West Eighty-fourth Street saw the danger to any big passenger boat that might be in the river, and hurriedly broadcast warnings by telephone to the ship companies. Wireless transmission sets also sent out warnings on the wave length used by the big broadcasting stations and the ships operating in the harbors.

Peril That Big Boats Escaped.

"It was one of the most serious moments I have ever seen in this river," said Captain Ford of the Allentown. "Those heavy barges would have crushed a big passenger boat before a captain could get out of the way, and the ledges and narrow channels made them even more dangerous, because a captain might have to choose between crushing his ship on a ledge or a coal barge."

With a crew of five men, Captain Ford tied up nine of the boats. At first he towed seven into Newtown Creek and two more later, among them the G. Scully, the Maltese III., R. Killian, Arthur L., John Collins, John Hickey, Lake Michigan and the Cape Roman. He said he had been informed that some of the boats belonged to the Tracy Towing Line, Inc., of 1 Broadway.

Nearly all of the boats had at least one man each upon them, but they were powerless to prevent the swirling of the craft. Many stood on the ends of the craft as they ran by the piers, and attempted to lasso pier projections, so that the boats might be tied up. Some of the ropes caught, but snapped under the strain of the tide, which, Captain Ford said, was ebbing at full strength during the worst of the fight with the boats.

Many of the men on the boats also had their wives and children with them, and the firemen insisted upon taking them off as soon as they caught up with the boats in mid-stream. These families were returned to the boats after they had been tied up at the piers and all danger was past.

BIG GRAIN SURPLUS EXPECTED IN RUSSIA

Margin of 150,000,000 Bushels Will Pass From Peasants Into Open Market.

DIFFICULTIES OF EXPORT

More Profitable to Sell the Crop in Russia and Buy Foreign Goods With Proceeds.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Sept. 8.—The export of Russian grain is not only a matter of the available surplus, says a writer in today's Economic Life. There is also the question of price as compared with the outer world.

The latest figures on the crop show that for all Russia and the Ukraine the total will be not more than 40, perhaps only 30, per cent. below the pre-war average. This means that after paying taxes and retaining enough for their own use there will be a margin of upward of 250,000,000 poods, or 150,000,000 bushels, left in the hands of the peasants which will pass into the open market. The greater part will be reserved for internal consumption, but it is probable, says the writer, that some 10,000,000 bushels of wheat will be available for export from the Ukraine.

The fact that the southern province of Ukraine is listed as a famine area is a concern of the Government, but it does not affect the peasant co-operatives in the districts where there is a bumper crop. They naturally would prefer to buy agricultural implements from the Germans or Czechs, whose prices are barely a quarter of those of Russian goods. But wheat prices in Kiev run from 2½ to 3½ gold rubles per pood—$2 to $3 per bushel—much higher than anywhere in Europe except Poland.

The writer concludes, therefore, that export is most unlikely, as few find it more profitable to sell wheat in Russia and buy foreign goods with the proceeds converted into gold or foreign currency.

In point of fact grain prices here present one of the most serious problems before the Russian Government. Next year if the harvest is good the question will become really acute. The reason for this, say the majority of Russian peasants, is that they reckon simply in terms of grain rather than gold. They say now, "Before the revolution we got clothes, boots, plows, tools, &c., for so many pounds of grain. Now they cost us four or five times as much. When we grumble we are told the workers demand high wages. It looks to us as if in this workers and peasants' revolution the workers have got the interior of the melon and the peasants are getting the rind."

But peasant grumblers don't matter this year when the great majority are pleased to have a little money in their pockets. Despite the high prices the peasants are buying freely and industry is getting a corresponding stimulus. To take one case out of millions, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns that more bricks have been sold in the past three weeks to peasants in the Kiev Government than in the three war years of 1914-15-16.

But next year, with the harvest around the prewar normal, the peasants may be astonished to find the soaring prices of goods still higher than ever and wheat down to a dollar or 80 a bushel. Lenin knows this. He told the Communists in Congress last Spring that it was better they talk less and devote more time to the peasants and to saving the peasants from exploitation by middlemen in both edible grain and the purchase of manufactured goods.

With the State trusts and co-operatives dealing with the peasants according to the capitalist system of getting as much as possible for goods and paying as little as possible for grain, the situation constitutes one of the matters that will engage the attention of the All-Russian Communist Congress opening Nov. 7, at which Lenin is expected to be present. He knows, if the rest of the party does not, that it is by no means the least important issue.

RETURN COLEMAN LETTER.

Cohalan Backers Think Endorsement May Cause Embarrassment.

The Cohalan Nominators, the committee which will place Surrogate John P. Cohalan in nomination for re-election on an independent ticket, have returned to the office of John B. Coleman a letter written by him endorsing Surrogate Cohalan for renomination and re-election and joining the Cohalan Non-Partisan Committee of Lawyers.

Mr. Coleman, who is in Europe, is a brother of Frank J. Coleman Jr., the Republican candidate for Surrogate. The letter in support of Surrogate Cohalan was written before the brother was designated by the Republican County Committee. The Cohalan Nominators expressed the belief that in returning the letter it might prevent some embarrassment.

It was said at the headquarters of the Lawyers' Committee that pressure had been brought upon some of its members from both Democratic and Republican sources to withdraw. In one case, at least, a member of the committee would probably be removed as a member of the Tammany Law Committee, it was said.

MEXICAN NEWSPAPER SUSPENDS IN STRIKE

El Universal Halts Publication "Because of Lack of Guarantees for Work."

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 10.—The suspension of the publication of El Universal and all his other publications because of "lack of guarantees for work" was ordered last night by Felix F. Palavicini. This action followed the dispatch of several messages to President Obregon, Governor Gasca of the Federal District and the President of the Chamber of Deputies, calling their attention to the situation "which has thrown out of work the employes of El Universal, against their will, through a strike which does not exist."

The statement issued today by the Compania Periodistica Nacional, of which Senor Palavicini is the President, says:

"Because of lack of guarantees for work, this company had decided definitely to suspend the publication of all its periodicals, confident that some day it will be able to resume its labors when liberty of the press is maintained."

All the machinery, the stocks of paper and other equipment of the plant of El Universal were placed under an embargo this afternoon by the National Paper and Type Company, an American concern, as a measure of protection both for the company and for Senor Palavicini.

The course of Senor Palavicini was the culmination of charges and countercharges between the editor and his supporters and the syndicalist leaders. Senor Palavicini asserted that a strike did not exist, inasmuch as the employes of El Universal had no grievances and were prepared to work. A memorial to that effect was prepared by them and presented to the Chamber of Deputies Saturday morning. The memorial precipitated a lively debate, which ended when the deputies gradually departed from the chamber, leaving it without a quorum. The debate doubtless will be resumed tomorrow morning, when Palavicini's friends are prepared to interpellate the Government on its attitude.

Official intervention thus far has been confined to the placing of armed police at the entrance to the building of El Universal "to prevent any disorders."

Rumors that similar action by the syndicalists was to be taken against the Excelsior led that paper Saturday night to request a police guard.

RAID BERLIN'S LUNA PARK.

Tax Collectors Seize Cash Boxes and Public Get Free Shows.

Copyright 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—There were exciting scenes last evening in Luna Park, a huge pleasure resort in a suburb of Berlin. While the fun was at its height there suddenly appeared in motor lorries a large number of tax collectors accompanied by a strong force of armed police.

Distributing themselves over the grounds they seized all the cash boxes at the entrance to the various entertainments. The reason for this action was that the pleasure resort owed the City of Berlin 3,000,000 marks in accordance with the 100 per cent. entertainment tax.

The Director and other employes resented what they regarded as legalized highway robbery and this led to disputes and the use of physical force. Eventually the Director was arrested and also several other employes.

In the confusion immediately following the raid German discipline collapsed. The employes at the park lost their heads and for an hour the public enjoyed the free use of the water shute, wiggle-woggle and all the other eccentricities common to such resorts.

Five Nights at the Five Pines, by Avery Gaul. A haunted house, in a little fishing village on Cape Cod, was recently purchased by a New York woman who is a writer. A well-worked out tale which makes the flesh creep with its atmosphere of mystery. $1.75.

Stubble, by George Looms. What happened to a country boy when, after the war, he went to a desk job in a factory instead of back to the farm. The Van Roon, by J. C. Snaith. The story of a painting in which many sides of human nature are revealed. The Van Roon is discovered in the old antique shop kept by Uncle "Si" Gedge. This Freedom, by A. S. M. Hutchinson. "Can a married woman have a business career and still do her duty by her husband and children?" A vital situation, well staged. The feminist will disagree with the logic and the conclusion, but a good many folks will agree with both. "If it is not so popular as 'If Winter Comes' that will be both Mr. Hutchinson's fault and ours—his, because he has indulged in a style that is both hectic and muddled; ours, because we, as a public, would rather do anything in the world than think." $2.

Cappy Ricks Retires, by Peter B. Kyne. "Cappy" masquerades as a novel, but is really a succession of short stories, in one of which the business sagacity of "Cappy" is pitted against that of his friend Gus Readell; in another of which the steamer Narcissus, bound for Manila, falls into the hands of German plotters and is headed for the German fleet of sea raiders. But the chief engineer throws the monkey-wrench into the plan—and the ship's machinery—changing the course of events. $2.

SAY SOLDIER KILLED WATCHMAN IN HOTEL

Fort Totten Artilleryman Thought Victim Was Trying to Rob Him, Police Declare.

FLUNG DOOR OPEN, FIRED

Awakened Suddenly When Man Registered at Box in Chatham Square Hostelry for Workers.

An artilleryman from Fort Totten, Enrico Albiti, 26 years old, was seized by the police yesterday in the Globe Hotel, 190 Park Row, at Chatham Square, and held at the Oak Street Station on a charge of slaying the hotel watchman, Julius Godarno, 50, of 9 Prince Street, who was found dead on the second floor with a bullet wound close to his left eye.

The hotel is frequented by workingmen, longshoremen mostly, and there were seventy-four of them on this floor, each in a small enclosure, arranged in rows like bath houses, when the roar of a shot in one of the narrow passages awakened everybody.

But none of the frightened guests was able to tell the police anything about the shooting other than that he had heard it. The dead watchman, lying in a smear of blood, about twenty-five feet from the room occupied by Albiti, but out of view from it, in an intersecting passage, clutched a nightstick, and beside him was a time-clock, which showed he had keyed it at a station at 4:10 o'clock.

Albiti was arrested because he was the only man in the place with a revolver. The police said he denied the shooting, then admitted it, and said he merely intended to frighten the watchman because he had aroused him too early, as he had left a call with the clerk for 5 o'clock. Afterward at the station Albiti told detectives, they said, that he had fired because Godarno sought to rob him.

The police said investigation of Albiti's room disproved his allegation of attempted robbery by the watchman. The door fastens with a bolt on the inside and cannot be opened from the other side without smashing the door. The top of the room or enclosure is covered with a wire netting, which had not been broken.

On the outside of the room is an iron box, containing a key to the time clock, which was the last one used by Godarno. It was thought that Albiti had not noticed this box or known of its purpose, and when Godarno made a noise in using it the soldier, suddenly awakened, had imagined some one was trying to rob him and had opened his door and fired as the watchman moved away.

The Adjutant at Fort Totten, Whitestone, L. I., said Albiti had been a member of that garrison for a month and had served two enlistments, one in the army and the other in the navy. His record was good. Albiti obtained leave of absence for two days on Saturday morning, and when he left the fort his service revolver was left behind, also his uniform, as required by the new military rule.

According to Albiti, he got leave to attend a wedding here yesterday. He applied at the hotel for a room at 1 P. M. on Saturday, saying he was very tired. The manager said that so far as known Albiti had not been out of his room. Albiti said his parents lived at 134 White Street.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10.—Percy Seddon, a construction engineer of New York, died in the Presbyterian Hospital this morning from the effects of veronal. He was found semi-conscious in the St. Charles Hotel last night.

A letter to him from his wife said she was living at 300 West Forty-ninth Street, New York. County Morgue officials received a telegram from her tonight saying she would arrive here tomorrow.

The coroner's records stated that death was due to veronal "taken with suicidal intent." Tonight a brother-in-law identified the body and declared that Seddon used veronal to induce sleep. The record then was changed to "accidental death."

Cardinal Tacci flew for twenty minutes and Cardinal Ranuzzi for half an hour. Both expressed great satisfaction with the experience.

This is the first time a Cardinal ever flew. The plane was piloted by Colonel Armani of the Italian army.

CALLS STYLES HERE 'FRILLY'

Least Distinctive Among American Cities, Says Chicago Expert.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—There are not only distinctive American fashions, but each important city in this country has its own distinctive styles, governed largely by geography and its own customs and necessities, according to Madame Benati, director of the Fashion Art League of America, which opens today its semi-annual convention.

New York, according to Madame Benati, is the "frilly city." Styles there are really less distinctively American than in any other American city, mainly because New York is closer to Europe, not merely geographically but sympathetically, she said.

Ericsson Club Endorses Calder.

United States Senator William M. Calder received a letter yesterday from Axel Josephson, a lawyer, of 290 Broadway, informing him that he had been endorsed for re-election by the John Ericsson Republican Club. Mr. Josephson said that the club had been formed to bring American citizens of Swedish birth and descent living in New York City into the Republican Party.

Child Burned to Death by Bonfire.

Myrtle Fahey, 4, of 2,588 Madison Street, Ridgewood, Queens, died last night in the Wyckoff Heights Hospital, Brooklyn, from burns received when playing around a bonfire with companions yesterday afternoon. The child's dress caught fire, and she ran burning through the streets to her home. Dr. Leslem took her in an ambulance to the hospital.

Street, Brooklyn, had lacerations of the scalp, serious injuries to his left eye and fractures of the left arm and hand. His wife Emma had cuts and bruises about the head and body.

Police Seek to Fix Blame.

The Clifton police are investigating to determine responsibility for the accident, but have made no arrests. They have been unable to verify reports that the stop-signal at the crossing did not work properly and that there were se many trees beside the road that the driver could not see the train coming. The accident happened at the Van Houten Avenue crossing. The train was going west, from Newark to Paterson, and the automobile was going south. Demmeit and O'Keefe are both electricians working in New York.

Harris Fahnestock, the banker, and Mrs. Fahnestock, of 15 East Sixty-sixth Street, were injured when a taxicab in which they were riding collided with another automobile at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street early yesterday morning. Two of the four men riding in the other car were hurt. Mr. and Mrs. Fahnestock were taken to Flower Hospital in another taxicab, which a policeman commandeered. After receiving treatment they went on home. Mr. Fahnestock's face and hands were cut and bruised, and his wife received a scalp wound and lacerations of the right knee. It was the second time the Fahnestocks had escaped serious injury in an automobile accident. Mr. Fahnestock is a member of Fahnestock & Co., bankers and brokers, of 2 Wall Street.

Yesterday's accident was almost a head-on collision. The taxicab in which the Fahnestocks were riding, driven by James Reading of 40 College Avenue, the Bronx, was going north on the avenue, taking them home. It collided with a touring car, traveling south, and driven by its owner, William McLean, 26 years old, of 576A Morgan Avenue, Brooklyn. In the car with him were Michael Rogan, 25, of 201 Kent Avenue, Brooklyn; Harry Thompson, 27, of 914 Lorimer Street, Brooklyn, and John Diamond, 29, of 98 Temple Avenue, Hackensack.

Thompson's nose was broken, and he was taken to Roosevelt Hospital in a taxicab with Rogan, whose left eye was hurt. Rogan left after treatment, but Thompson remained at the hospital. According to the police, the drivers of the two cars blamed each other for the accident. Fifth Avenue traffic was delayed a few minutes until the injured were taken away and the damaged cars were dragged out of the roadway.

Child Hurt Friday Dies.

After suffering for almost forty-eight hours from injuries received in an automobile accident on Friday night, Eleanor Popaczewski, 5 years old, of 348 Henderson Street, Jersey City, died yesterday in the Jersey City Hospital. She was run down by an automobile driven by Thomas Somliaro of 256 Johnston Avenue, Jersey City. Somliaro was arrested after the accident. Following the girl's death, an assault charge against him was changed to one of manslaughter.

Mounted Policeman James J. Fagin was knocked off his horse and probably fatally wounded on Staten Island last night by an automobile which escaped after the accident. Unconscious, Fagin was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital at West New Brighton, suffering from a fracture of the spine and concussion of the brain. His horse, Mexican, was also seriously injured, and may die with his master.

Fagin lived at 33 Grove Street, Manhattan, but was transferred recently to the sixty-fifth precinct at West New Brighton. The accident happened about 10:15 o'clock last night, when Fagin was patroling on Richmond Avenue, near Graniteville. The automobile flashed out of the darkness, it is believed, and struck the policeman from behind almost before he knew it was approaching. His head struck a telegraph pole beside the road when he was thrown off the horse, which was hurled on its back.

People further down the road said they saw an automobile containing three persons, with a New Jersey license, roaring down Richmond Avenue toward the New Jersey ferry landings a short time after the accident. The witnesses took down the license number, and an alarm was sent to New Jersey. It is believed the car escaped by the Elizabethport ferry at Mariners Harbor or the Bergen Point ferry to Bayonne.

While playing at 166th Street and Franklin Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon Arnold Wohlman, 4, of 1,109 Franklin Avenue, was struck by an automobile operated by Lester W. Passenger of 1,213 Broadway, Albany, N. Y., receiving abrasions of the right hand and hip and possible internal injuries. The child was taken to Lebanon Hospital.

Joseph Shushan, 67, of 456 Riverside Drive, while in front of his home was struck by a motorcycle, which escaped. The injured man was taken to St. Luke's Hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg and a fracture of the left leg.

Anthony Guriero, 4, of 3,132 Villa Avenue, Bronx, while crossing 204th Street, at Jerome Avenue, was struck by an automobile and received contusions of the head and left arm. He was taken to Fordham Hospital.

George Kramer, 20, of 615 East 140th Street, while crossing the roadway on the viaduct bridge of 155th Street, was struck by a taxicab driven by William Meehan of 405 East 168th Street. He received contusions of the right leg.

Henry Lee, 65, of 311 West Thirty-third Street, while crossing Eighth Avenue at Thirty-second Street, was struck by an automobile owned by Mrs. Mary Feldman of 80 Bank Street and operated by John Godfrey, 28, of 90 Ninth Avenue. Lee was taken to Bellevue Hospital with a possible fractured skull. Godfrey was arrested on a technical charge of felonious assault.

George Lukovits, 14, of 520 East Eighty-second Street, while riding a bicycle in Central Park, ran into an automobile belonging to the Goodyear Rubber and Tire Company on the East Drive near Seventy-second Street. He received a laceration of the scalp.

Woman Crossing Street Is Struck.

Jennie Bieder of 117 East 113th Street was struck by an automobile while crossing in front of 1,967 Third Avenue. She was taken to Harlem Hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the left arm.

While driving a motorcycle on Reservoir Place, near Kingsbridge Road, the Bronx, Patrolman John Weber, 26, of 97 Lasalle Street, attached to the Kingsbridge Station, was thrown from the machine when the gear chain broke. He received abrasions of the forehead and left arm.

Samuel Barasch, 40, a taxicab driver, of 728 Driggs Avenue, Brooklyn, was held in $2,500 bail by Magistrate Mosse R. Ryttenberg in Yorkville Court for examination Sept. 19 on a technical charge of homicide. Barasch was arrested after a taxi he was driving Saturday night struck and killed Anna Bonmerto, 7 years old, in front of her home at 409 East Seventy-fourth Street.

"If the public cannot come to recognize that a summons by a traffic officer is a courteous invitation from the courts to an offender, or alleged offender of traffic laws to visit our courts, and instead of accepting it in this light, protest and refuse the acceptance, then we would be compelled to go back to the old and unfortunate system of arrest and this I hope will never again be the case," said Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb in the West Side Court yesterday in fining Clancy Walthom of 266 Montgomery Street, Brooklyn, $20 for disorderly conduct for refusing to accept a summons for speeding.

Walthom was driving an automobile at Broadway and 122d Street when stopped by Patrolman J. Minick of the West Forty-seventh Street Station.

An automobile containing two men and two women collided with a surface car at Third Avenue and 107th Street last night and five persons were hurt. The police say the automobile, which was going east, apparently tried to beat the car over the crossing. The automobile was wrecked and its occupants were trapped in the wreckage. Passersby who heard their screams pulled them out. Except for broken glass, which injured a passenger standing on the front platform, the surface car and its passengers escaped harm.

Miss May Gordon, 28 years old, of 236 Grand Street, and Miss Minnie Robbins, 27, of 17 Charles Street, passengers in the automobile, were taken to Reception Hospital. Morris Zuerfler, 29, of 1,398 Clay Avenue, the Bronx, driver of the car, and Sam Schneider, 23, of 494 Grand Street, another passenger, were treated by an ambulance surgeon. The surface car passenger injured by glass was Frank Sciantl, 27, of 314 East Twenty-fifth Street, who was not taken to the hospital. William Smith of 1,196 Third Avenue, the motorman, was unhurt.

UNPAID CHAUFFEUR SHOT EX-DRY AGENT

'Mysterious Charles' Scandalis, Recently Dismissed, Probably Will Die.

ASSAILANT IS HIS COUSIN

Pappas Says He Had Driven Car for Scandalis Five Weeks and Needed Money.

Charles Scandalis, a Greek by birth, who for several months was a general prohibition agent, for some of the time on the staff of Zone Chief John D. Appleby, in charge of New York State and New Jersey, was shot and probably fatally wounded Saturday night in front of the bottling works of John Calandrialis, on Pearl Street, Fair Haven, N. J., by his cousin, Charles Pappas. The shooting followed an argument which arose when Pappas demanded his pay from Scandalis for driving his car for him for the last five weeks.

Pappas was arrested at Asbury Park yesterday afternoon and was taken to Red Bank and committed to the jail at Freehold without bail. County Detectives J. R. Rue and John M. Smith said that Pappas confessed the shooting, but contended that it was in self-defense, as his cousin was advancing upon him with an iron bar. John Wilkinson, a negro employ of John Calandrialis, who witnessed the shooting, said that Scandalis fell at the first shot from Pappas's automatic revolver and that Pappas fired again at the prostrate body. Wilkinson was held in $500 bail as a material witness.

Scandalis was prominent last Winter in the alcohol cases in Bridgeport, Conn. He had been used as an "under cover" man, working with the general agents. He was usually referred to as the "Mysterious Charles," in the court cases in which he figured.

Chief Appleby said last night that he had heard stories that Scandalis had been engaged in bootlegging on the side and that several weeks ago he dismissed him from the service. Scandalis lived at the Peninsula Hotel at Seabright, N. J., all the summer and recently leased a home at Fair Haven. He bought a $2,000 automobile from H. Lobel several weeks ago on which he paid a deposit of $1,200. Lobel seized the car yesterday morning. Immediately after the shooting Scandalis was rushed to Long Branch Hospital, where it was said last night that he had but little chance of recovery.

RELATIVES VISIT JAIL TO SEE ALICE THORNTON

Arrest Puzzles Young Woman Held With Two Others in Bergen Murder.

Alice Thornton, the nineteen-year-old New York girl held without bail in Hackensack, N. J., in connection with the killing of John Bergen, movie actor, by George Cline, location manager, in Cline's home at Edgewater on Aug. 25 last, began to realize her predicament yesterday. When she was indicted and arrested last Friday she appeared dazed and was unable to sleep on her first night in jail.

Her grandmother, Mrs. Elisabeth Harris, and her uncle, George Harris, with whom she lives at 814 West 136th Street, visited her yesterday. They said she did not understand why she had been accused of murder, that she had told all she knew about the shooting and did not see how any one could imagine she had any guilty part in it.

Miss Thornton received permission to attend the Salvation Army religious services in the jail yesterday, but decided not to go because she feared she would attract too much attention as the only woman prisoner. Charles Scullion, Cline's brother-in-law, who is also charged with the murder, attended the services, but Cline remained in his cell. The three will be arraigned in court in Hackensack tomorrow. They will be represented by State Senator William B. Mackay Jr. as counsel.

GREET NEW HARLEM PASTOR

Mount Morris Baptist Church Members Welcome Rev. Weston Smith.

The Rev. H. G. Weston Smith, new pastor of the Mount Morris Baptist Church in Fifth Avenue between 126th and 127th Streets, preached his first sermon, "The Great Partnership," to a large audience yesterday and later was welcomed by the congregation, which includes more than 500 resident members, and is one of the best known in Harlem. The new rector is only 32 years old and come to this city after a successful ministry in Greenville, Pa., where he was attached to the First Baptist Church. He is a graduate of Bucknell University, Crozier Theological Seminary and in 1916 got the degree of A. M. from the University of Pennsylvania.

In his sermon he said that when John H. Jewett went to the pastorate of the Carr's Lane Church in Birmingham he felt very conscious of the fact that he was stepping into a very eminent succession. Mr. Smith succeeds the Rev. Carl Wallace Petty who was called to Pittsburgh.

"But there were two elements at work which made Mr. Jewett's pastorate at Carr's Lane an eminent pastorate," he added. "In the first place Mr. Jewett and the church were both conscious of the fact that they faced a very big task and they were reasonably humble in the presence. In the second place Mr. Jewett and the church were both impressed with the conviction that the work of the Carr's Lane Chapel in that lower section of Birmingham was a work given to them in the very providence of God and that it could not therefore fail to succeed if pastor and people worked willingly and confidently."

Widow of James Watkins of Cornwall to Fight Bequest to Order.

Special to The New York Times.

CORNWALL, Sept. 10.—A will of James Watkins of Cornwall, just offered for probate in Special Surrogate Taylor's court in Orange County, leaves his estate to Cornwall Lodge, No. 84, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, which honored him for years with various offices. The money is to be applied toward a fund for a new Odd Fellows' home in Cornwall.

The amount of the estate is said to be upwards of $10,000." Watkins drew the will two years ago. Mrs. Mary Watkins, the widow, has asked for a construction. She maintains that under the law, a testator with a wife living cannot leave more than one-half of his estate to any benevolent or fraternal order.

LA MODE EXQUISE

The Wanamaker Store had the distinction a fortnight ago of being the first to present to America a few of the new Parisian modes. They were the creations of Jeanne Hallee—now Anna—which caused the first furor of the new season in Paris.

Now—today—the Wanamaker Store introduces to New York the fashions of other couturiers, whose openings came later.

GOWNS SUITS WRAPS

What will be the fashion?—all Paris asked for weeks. The couturiers did not give any intimation of it. Nor did the Paris races in June. One would hear whisperings that the mode would be influenced by the Venetian, Persian and Chinese. But the dressmakers kept their secret.

The result was that the surprises—when the fashion was revealed—were all the more glorious, as you will see on Monday.

Referring to the new fashions, that great genius, Jean Patou, said:

"We are now returning to pre-war elegance—a more complete and refined elegance—and I am confident that our Parisiennes will quickly pick up the traditions, and we will again see the assemblies of perfect elegance which we knew before the war."

Paris also sends us adorable new Fashions for Petites Filles and Petits Garcons

Smart coats in wool velours, serge or agnella—some with hats to match reflecting phases of the grown-up mode, but all very youthful. In white, beige and the new bright shades.

For the wee baby—a fascinating set, including cap, coat and afghan, of white matelasse.

$1,000,000 IS ASKED FOR PHI BETA KAPPA

Society Plans Headquarters Here to Defend Liberal Education.

WILL HONOR 50 FOUNDERS

Officers and Delegates From Leading Colleges Will Meet Tomorrow in Cleveland.

Phi Beta Kappa is planning to raise $1,000,000 and provide a permanent headquarters in New York City to defend liberal education against the inroads of vocational training in high schools and colleges in the United States. It is also hoped that a permanent memorial of the society's Fifty Founders will be established at the College of William and Mary in Virginia.

Officers and senators of the society and delegates representing all of the leading colleges and universities in the country will meet in Cleveland tomorrow to discuss these wider policies of the society. President Edward A. Birge, of the University of Wisconsin, who is also President of the society, says that "our life and our work during the twentieth century will depend in large measure on the conclusions there reached."

For a number of years a progressive element in the society has desired to increase its activities in the cause of higher education. In a statement Dr. Birge said:

"In the last century election to Phi Beta Kappa meant that the student had reached success along lines of study universally accepted as standard in higher education. Today the tendency toward vocational education is so great that there is urgent need for an active, coherent organization, both within the colleges and outside of them, of the forces that stand for liberal education. Can a better centre be found for such an organization than is offered by Phi Beta Kappa?

"As the first step in such a movement comes the provision for a central office, now temporarily provided, and which it is proposed to make permanent. The fraternity has reached an age and grown to a greatness which forbids it to refuse the challenge that the present day brings to all lovers of learning."

Dr. Oscar M. Voorhees, National Secretary of the society, said the council at Cleveland would consider the offer of an anonymous donor to add one-tenth to all funds raised by the members during the next five years as a fund to carry on this work and maintain a central organization in New York. There are 45,000 members of the society, and it is expected that they will raise from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

INSISTS ON EQUALITY FOR HINDUS IN CANADA

Councillor of State From India Visits Dominion, Telling Canadians They Add to Indian Troubles.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Sept. 10.—Insistence on equality for Hindus in other countries is the claim of the Rt. Hon. V. Srinivassi Sastri, member of the Council of State of India, who reached Montreal yesterday.

"Rightly or wrongly," said he, "many of the young men find in the failure of Canada and other countries to extend to the Hindu resident within their boundaries full citizenship an evidence that their nationality will not be accorded the full privileges of membership in the British Empire. This is not the sole cause of political agitation in India, but it has been made an important one, and frequent references have been made to the fact that in Canada the Hindu is forbidden the franchise, whether or not he is a British subject."

Dr. Sastri's mission to Canada is largely in an attempt to obtain for the Hindus living in Canada voting rights. There are in Canada about 1,200 Hindus, of whom 1,100 reside in British Columbia, and they want the franchise. This issue has been much debated in Canada at various times, but the feeling in British Columbia is against it just as in California a feeling exists against Orientals. The position is more awkward for Canada, since the Hindus are British subjects.

"With the extension of the franchise in India, and the further development of that country as an integral part of the British Empire," Dr. Sastri said, "it is rather puzzling to those who are now taking their first steps in political freedom to find that in the most important dominion the man freely recognized as a British subject is barred from the franchise. From this it is argued that the white man is not willing to give full liberty to India. That adds another difficulty in the way of those of us who believe in the British connection."

HONOR MISSION WAR HEROES

Memorial Tablet Unveiled at Mount Loretto, Staten Island.

A bronze tablet in memory of the twenty boys from the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, at Mount Loretto, Pleasant Plain, Staten Island, who died in the great war, was unveiled in the institution church of SS. Joachim and Ann on the occasion of the thirteenth annual reunion of alumni there yesterday. The presentation to the institution on behalf of the alumni was made by Sergeant William Heidelberg a former mission pupil. It was accepted by the Rev. Mallick J. Fitzpatrick, rector and director of the school.

The Rev. Dr. John J. Sheridan, a former student at the mission and chaplain in the war, spoke. Six-years-old Catherine Oats, a pupil at the mission, unveiled the tablet. The Rev. Thomas J. Campbell, S. J., the Rev. John Duffy and George S. Duval, a benefactor of the institution, were present, as well as 1,600 children of the mission and 500 guests.

The inscription on the tablet, which is set in the wall of the vestry, is as follows:

"In sacred memory of the young heroes of the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin who made the supreme sacrifice in defense of their country during the war, 1917-18."

KILLED BY BLOW OF FIST.

Chicagoan Knocked Down by a Policeman Dies at Cell Door.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Fred Silas, 28, was killed by a blow from the fist of Police Sergeant Thomas Burns today when he attempted to attack the Sergeant with a knife after the latter interfered in a fight in which Silas was engaged. After the knife was taken from Silas, he reached for his hip pocket as though for a revolver. Burns knocked him down, then took him to the police station.

As they were preparing to lock him up, Silas fell to the floor. He was taken to the County Hospital, but was dead upon arrival.

Which is the best advertisement in this newspaper?

IF you were to go back over this paper with the conscious intention of choosing the best advertisement, there would be slight chance of your finding it.

If an advertisement is good, you seldom think of it as an advertisement at all; you merely act on it. Furthermore, the advertisement may not be addressed to you or your kind. Until you know the exact aim of an advertisement you cannot judge it.

And unless each advertisement has an exact aim, true to the definite objective of a complete campaign, it is not a good advertisement.

If you ever exclaim, "That's a clever advertisement!" it probably isn't an affective advertisement.

"You," said Demosthenes to his rival orator Æschines, "make them say, 'How well he speaks.' I make them say, 'Let us march against Philip.'"

One of the great historic compliments was that of the country yokel who said he did not like David Garrick's acting because he didn't seem like an actor, but acted just like a person in ordinary life.

This country bumpkin felt he was not getting his money's worth (theatre tickets evidently were costly even in the eighteenth century). Advertisers sometimes suffer from similar myopia when criticizing "copy."

Good advertisements are impossible without two elements: one, the human element—a good writer; the other, a definite aim. Without the latter, the former is futile.

We have worked out and proved out a method for determining the aim in advance of the writing of a syllable. It is not a secret, and if you are interested we shall be glad to discuss it with you.

ONCE a month, or more frequently, we issue a publication called Batten's Wedge. Each issue is devoted to a single editorial on some phase of business. If you are a business executive and would like to receive copies, write us.

DR. HOLMES FINDS RUSSIANS CHEERFUL

Most Optimistic People in Europe, He Says—Well Fed, Clean, Contented.

BUSINESS GOOD, NO IDLE

Thinks Use of Church Treasure for Food Threatens a Schism Like the Reformation.

The Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, returned yesterday on the Red Star liner Zeeland from a trip to France, Belgium, Germany, Austria and Russia. He confirmed the pessimistic opinions of the majority of returning Americans regarding conditions in Europe. The only city he visited where the people looked cheerful was Moscow, where he least expected to find optimism, he said. In Germany and Austria, he said, the people went about as if they had nothing to hope for.

"The Russian people whom I saw in the streets," said Dr. Holmes, "looked well fed, clean and contented. I assumed that they realized fate could have nothing worse in store for them than what they had passed through and that the future therefore appeared brighter than it did to the people in Austria and Germany. Their clothes were, to say the least, variegated. Some wore the Russian native costume supplemented with a number of picturesque patches of odd cloth, while others wore ordinary clothes turned out by machinery judging from the fit.

"Business is increasing in Moscow. There are no idle people in the streets. Communism seems on the wane. Merchants are buying and selling as they did before the war.

"There are no free rides any more in Russia, either in the street cars or on the railroads. Every one has to pay except officials and guests of the Government. An ordinary ride in a street car costs 300,000 rubles. A room in a hotel costs 12,000,000 to 20,000,000 rubles, without meals. My daily expenses in Moscow were about the same as they would have been in a New York hotel."

Dr. Holmes said that a revolution was occurring inside the Orthodox Greek Church in Russia similar to the Reformation in England 300 years ago. The trouble started, he said, by a split between the aristocratic hierarchy of the church and the peasant priests over the question of giving some of the church treasure to the Government last January to purchase food and other necessities for the people. The high priests and pillars of the church opposed the idea, resisting by force of arms in some cases. The peasant priests were united in favor of the plan. Dr. Holmes predicted that the schism would result in sweeping changes in the doctrines and service of the Orthodox Greek Church.

NEED PRIVATE HOSPITALS.

Dr. Copeland Asks Support, as City Lacks Sufficient Beds.

In a statement issued yesterday on behalf of the United States Hospital Fund, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, urged that the people of New York support the privately owned hospitals. He said that there were not nearly enough beds in the city institutions to take care of the sick of New York and that private hospitals were a vital necessity.

"In some communities," said Dr. Copeland, "it is the policy to have the city itself take over the care of the sick. From early times in New York the community has chosen to delegate to private institutions the care of the suffering.

"Were it not for the beds in the privately endowed institutions of this city our State would be beyond words. Out of the many thousands beds in the hospitals of New York, more than 75 per cent. are in the so-called private hospitals. The city itself, through municipal hospitals, takes care of the infectious and contagious diseases, some of the incurable and a considerable portion of the acute cases. But a majority of the surgical cases, most of the obstetrical cases and the great bulk of the medical service is rendered by the private hospitals. Every citizen, therefore, has a personal interest in the successful maintenance of these institutions."

RAID PEEKSKILL RESORTS.

Police, Suspecting Gambling, Rout Inmates and Warn Proprietors.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 10.—A squad of seven policemen led by Chief Henry Burke visited five alleged gambling houses here early today and routed out between sixty and seventy "knights of chance." No arrests were made, because of lack of evidence.

The police visited the places suddenly, but the occupants in each place had a chance to lock the doors and delay the policemen. It is believed that stakes and other evidence of gambling were removed before the police got in.

Twenty-five men fled from one place. Reports had reached the police that poker and craps games were being played. Chief Burke warned the proprietors of the various places against permitting similar gatherings in the future.

Troopers Off for Syracuse Fair.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 10.—Thirty-five troopers of the State Constabulary belonging to Troop K left their barracks here today, bound for the New York State Fair at Syracuse. They were in charge of Captain John A. Warner and Lieutenant Eugene C. Roberts. They took their horses and will give an exhibition drill and help patrol the grounds. Sergeant E. W. Holloway was left in charge of the barracks.

Completes New Synagogue.

Congregation Shaarey Zedek, founded in this city in 1837, has just completed a new synagogue at 212-216 West Ninety-third Street, with a seating capacity of over 1,500, it was announced yesterday. The building has facilities for religious school and social and recreational activities. The Rev. Dr. Elias L. Solomon, President of the United Synagogue of America, recently was elected Rabbi.

Girl Killed in Motor Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Eva Hacen, 15 years old, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Hacen of Newburgh, was killed in an auto accident on the State Road between this city and Goshen last night. Five persons were in the car, which was wrecked. Mrs. Hacen and Ernest Taylor, who was driving the car, were badly injured, but two others escaped injury.

Patient Plunges 3 Floors; May Die.

Mrs. Ray Martinello, 31 years old, of 425 North Ninth Street, Brooklyn, for ten years a patient in the chronic ward of the Kings County Hospital, jumped from a third-floor window of that institution early last night to the sidewalk below. She suffered serious injuries to her back and is not expected to live.

URGES WATER POWER TO CUT COAL BILL

State Commission Says Use of Hudson Would Save 2,000,000 Tons Yearly.

DEVELOPMENT IS URGED

Construction of Fourteen Storage Reservoirs at a Cost of $24,292,000 Is Recommended.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 10.—If further water power developments in the Hudson River are made, 2,000,000 tons of coal will be saved annually, a report on the water power and storage possibilities, just issued by the State Water Commission states.

The report shows that on the upper Hudson, including its tributary, the Sacandaga River, 222,000 horsepower are still undeveloped. To produce this amount of power, 2,000,000 tons of coal annually are required. Frank M. Williams, State Engineer, directed the report, authorized by the law of last year, which directed the continuance of investigations previously conducted by the State Conservation Commission of the water power resources of the State.

With the exception of the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers, the Hudson is the most important stream as regards water power in the State. Data given in the report show that 368,000 horsepower on the upper Hudson are available, of which a little over one-third is now developed.

The development of this unused force depends on the construction of a system of fourteen storage reservoirs, having a total capacity of 70,000,000,000 cubic feet. Such reservoirs, with the principal ones located at Sacandaga, Gooley, Pisseo Lake and Schroon Falls, would cost $24,292,000.

The storage value of these reservoirs would many times exceed their cost, and they would not only increase the available water power of the Hudson, Sacandaga and Schroon Rivers, but also mitigate flood damage with its unsanitary conditions and improve navigation as well, the report states.

The document summarizes the surveys and investigations which have been made of the storage and power possibilities of the Hudson, the first of which was made in 1867, and the last by the State Engineers' office in 1921. The watershed of the Hudson is described and the source of the river is stated to be Lake Tear-of-the-Clouds, which lies at an elevation of 4,322 feet above sea level in the centre of the triangle formed by Mounts Marcy, Skylight and Gray. The average rainfall on the Hudson River watershed is given as forty-one inches, although on the headwaters of the Sacandaga River the rainfall is believed to be more than sixty inches a year. The runoff, or stream flow, of the river has been measured for various periods at twenty-nine stream-gauging stations, so that accurate knowledge has been obtained of the power-producing capacity of the stream.

PUT SIGN ON COURTHOUSE.

Gold Letters Identify Putnam County Landmark, 108 Years Old.

Special to The New York Times.

CARMEL, N. Y., Sept. 10.—After being a landmark for 108 years without any inscription upon it, the Putnam County Court House here has been equipped with a gold-lettered sign so that strangers can identify the structure.

The new sign, placed on the panel of the portico, reads: "Putnam County Court House, erected 1814."

This is the ancient Court House in which grand jurors often convene to find that Putnam County is so orderly and peaceful that there is nothing to do but organize, adjourn and go home.

According to tradition, in 1844 an 18-year-old youth sat on his casket there while a preacher prayed for him and then was taken to the rear of the Court House and hanged for first degree murder.

The County Jail in the rear of the building is closed for lack of prisoners.

AVOIDS BRIDGE DISPUTE.

Port Authority Refuses to Umpire Newark Bay Case.

The Port of New York Authority sent a letter to Acting Secretary of War J. M. Wainwright yesterday, declining the invitation of the Government to act as umpire in a dispute between the City of Newark and the Central Railroad of New Jersey over the height of a bridge over Newark Bay. The Port Authority suggested that the New Jersey State Board of Commerce and Navigation was the proper body to act.

The plans of the railroad call for the construction of a new bridge with a clearance of thirty-five feet above the water. Previous plans, which called for a clearance of thirteen feet and eight inches, were referred to the New Jersey board by army engineers and were disapproved. Congressional authority for the construction of the bridge has been granted, subject to the approval of the Secretary of War.

How to Cut Factory Costs!

The First Step: From the experiences of other successful manufacturers, pick the methods which improve upon the methods at present used in your plant.

The Second: Compare the output from your present equipment with the output of the most modern equipment now available for your use.

HOW about your plant? Is it an alibi or an inspiration to your sales force?

Can it produce today at prices that make customers willing to buy?

Have you squeezed out the lost motion, eliminated the useless overhead, scrapped the old equipment that doesn't give your workmen a fighting chance against the modern factory now going up for your competitor?

Necessity has driven hundreds of plants to new experiments in economical production. A score of important new processes were developed only yesterday. New machines have been perfected so much more efficient as to make their replacement of former models a sound business investment.

Have you been over your operations step by step, in the light of other manufacturers' experience?

Methods That Cut Costs

The easiest and surest way to make this very essential canvass of your plant is through a copy of FACTORY, the Magazine of Management.

The "FACTORY idea" is to provide a means by which busy manufacturers in every line may exchange proven plans for efficient management. The country is searched for the new, the significant in manufacturing. "Has it actually paid?" is the question our editors ask about every policy or method. "Has it actually cut costs?"

Equipment for Cutting Costs

Just as FACTORY's editorial pages lay before you a panorama of modern methods, so for the equipment to put these methods at work in your plant, turn to FACTORY's advertising pages. You will find here not dry statements and unsupported claims, but news in the cutting of costs, reports of convincing tests, pictured experiences with new equipment, improved materials, money-saving supplies. Hoists that multiply man-power. Floors that save replacement charges. Time recorders that check "time out" of men and "time idle" of machines. Containers, cleaners, heaters, trucks—all the important devices for effective management are here catalogued in such a way as to make for each manager a simple but sure way to choose just the equipment he needs today in his own plant.

"Who Makes It?"

To Know a Magazine—

Know Its Publisher!

ON Wednesday, September 20th, there will be placed on sale in your city the most brilliant, beautiful magazine published. If you read only one magazine it should be this. If you read several, this should head your list. A World Survey in 7 articles; play—book—art—poem of the month; 8 short stories; 4 serials; Norman Hapgood's editorials—24 great features. Reserve your October HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL today.

Will Europe be dry in 1950? The World War on Booze is being fought on three continents. We furnish all the inspiration and most of the money. To know how extensive present prohibition campaigns are, see October HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL.

Will your Grandson work only 3 hours a day? Will he get electricity from the sun? Will he be happier? Read Marconi on miracles science will do for us in the next fifty years, in October HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL.

* * *

Two rats were twins. One ate bread and apple; the other bread and milk. One grew to be five times the size of the other. Did vitamins do it? Read the astounding truth about the vitamin hoax in "Doctors and Drug Mongers," by Paul H. De Kruif, in October HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL.

* * *

Besides this, four other equally interesting and informative articles—plus Norman Hapgood's editorials—make up the monthly world survey. Do not miss "Germany Turns to Religion," by Gerhart Hauptmann.

* * *

A young girl loses her father—her only friend. She and her mother are totally out of sympathy. Over rough places she works out her life. Is that an interesting story?—of utmost importance to every parent? Begin "Her Own Life," the new novel by Robert Herrick, which answers the questions that keep every mother and father awake sometimes. Diverting, amusing, nevertheless it stretches the conscience and understanding. Do not miss it, nor "Men Like Gods," H. G. Wells' new novel starting in November. Nor, any of the other three serials, by Upton Sinclair, Gouverneur Morris, and Sir Gilbert Parker—now in HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL.

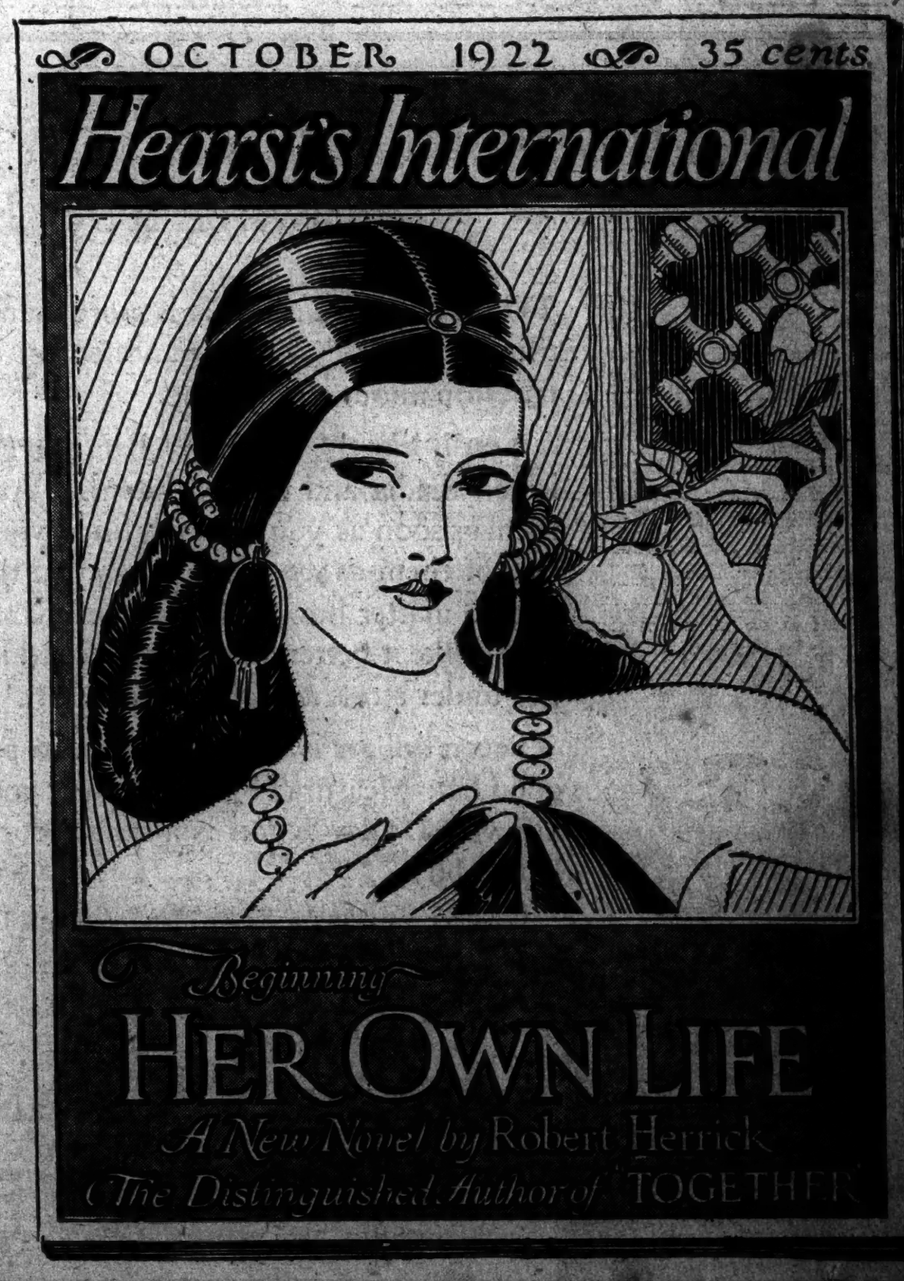
"I saw him crucified" gives us a new side of the creator of Sherlock Holmes. A. Conan Doyle pictures the crucifixion as told by the junior centurion on duty at Mt. Calvary—one of eight short stories in the October issue of HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL.

HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL—is growing in circulation faster than any other magazine—is as interesting as it is instructive; brilliant as it is beautiful. It fulfills its epigrammatic policy, "Have fun while you read—but know something when you get through." It is the sort of magazine one might expect would appear under the name of the most successful publisher in America.



What Mr. Hearst Has Done for the People

WHEN public officials were timid or intimidated by influences too powerful for them to resist, Mr. Hearst has often intervened as a private citizen before courts, Legislatures or Congress as a vigilant agent of the public interest. He is the only citizen who in cases of grave impending public wrongs against which public protest was impotent, has repeatedly used the WRIT OF INJUNCTION of a Federal or State Supreme Court Judge IN THE PUBLIC INTERESTS against public officials.

Private monopoly of city transit lines was making many millionaires, but strangling the growth of New York by depriving the city of real rapid transit. Mr. Hearst carried the fight against the privately owned surface and elevated road monopolists to the highest court in the State.

The fight for 80-cent gas was carried before the Legislature by experts employed by Mr. Hearst, AND WON in the Legislature and before the Public Service Commission. Temporarily nullified by the mistaken, arbitrary act of one Federal judge who decided that the act was confiscatory, Mr. Hearst carried the fight to the Supreme Court of the United States, where the decree of the Federal judge was reversed and the 80-cent law affirmed. Mr. Hearst's attorneys then sued and recovered TWELVE MILLION DOLLARS in rebates for New York City gas consumers of charges illegally collected by the GAS MONOPOLY while the litigation in the higher courts was pending.

* *

The Ice Trust, founded by the great speculator, Charles W. Morse, which had raised the price of ice to prohibitory figures in the tenement districts of New York in the hottest summer in ten years, was dissolved by Mr. Hearst, whose counsel found in the archives of the Maine State Capitol proofs that seven ice companies, pretending to compete in New York City, were all owned by Morse, and that politicians of both parties had been rewarded by gifts of stock for giving the Ice Trust exclusive docking privileges in Manhattan.

* * *

New York City owes its unequalled supply of pure water from the Catskill Mountains and Ashokan reservoir AND ITS LOW WATER RATES entirely to public ownership. This splendid water system would never have been created if a scheme of powerful capitalists and politicians to organize the Ramapo Water Company, a private concern, to enrich themselves, had not been defeated by a court injunction obtained by Mr. Hearst as a taxpayer.

* *

Another instance of use of the writ of injunction in the public interest, as a righteous instrument, for the benefit of the many, and to prevent a wrong, occurred last year when a secret bargain was made by Washington politicians to sell the entire German fleet, including the finest passenger ships in the world. The sale was to be to the largest shipping concern in Wall Street, operating under the British flag, employing only British crews and officers and bound by contract with the British Government "to do nothing detrimental to British shipping interests." Mr. Hearst as a taxpayer obtained an injunction from the Supreme Court in Washington forbidding the sale as unlawful. The injunction was later made permanent.

* * *

Another long and victorious contest for the people which Mr. Hearst carried through all the Federal courts up to the Supreme Court of the United States was against the ANTHRACITE COAL TRUST. It was a complete victory in a legal sense. The higher court convicted five great railroads of maintaining a secret monopoly of production, transportation and sale of coal. The dissolution of the Temple Iron Company, the monopoly agent, was ordered.

* * *

"Welfare legislation" is a new term applied to a great variety of laws initiated in many States, to make life safer, happier, or freer from pain. The Mothers' Pension Law, devised by the Hearst papers, was enacted against the opposition of the city administration preceding Mayor Hylan. Under it, more than eight thousand fatherless children are now kept at home with their mothers by State aid, instead of being sent to State institutions. The plan has worked so beneficently for the bereaved mothers and so economically for the State that other States are adopting it. Lady Rhondda, England's philanthropic, public-spirited noblewoman, sent a commission from London to study it.

The Hearst publications have also led in the advocacy of temperance, universal suffrage, the abolition of child labor, the equalization of taxation, good road legislation, the parcel post system, rural delivery, and better standards of living, better hours and better conditions for the producing classes generally.

SEA CAPTAIN HANGS HIMSELF AFTER ROW

Three Other Messages Left by Suicide in His Brooklyn Apartment.

The body of Edward Hanson, 38, a prosperous shipmaster, of 844 Forty-second Street, Brooklyn, was found yesterday morning hanging from a steam pipe in his bathroom. Hanson, who was six feet tall, and heavily built, apparently had thrown the cord over a valve on the pipe near the ceiling, tied a noose about his neck, and then jumped from the edge of the bathtub. His neck was broken.

The barking of Hanson's poodle dog and five puppies and the ringing of Hanson's telephone bell attracted the attention of Radnor Rudquist, in the next apartment, who telephoned the Fourth Avenue Police Station. Detective John Fitzsimmons and a policeman broke down the door, but Hanson was dead when they entered. Four notes were found on the dining room table, all signed "Ed." One, addressed "To My Best Friend," read:

"In regard to the meeting we had last night, I wish you luck, but I want to say that you know that John is the cause of breaking up three homes. You know that as well as I do."

Detectives say that Mrs. Hanson called at his house Friday night with a policeman and packed her clothes, which she took to the home of a woman friend in Warren Street, Brooklyn. A second note, addressed to H. Carlson, 940 Forty-second Street, Brooklyn, said:

"I hereby leave everything to you."

In the third note, addressed "To My Best Brother," Hanson wrote:

"You are thinking of coming to a home of gold, but you will not find me there."

In the note was $30. "The brother is said to be in the Swedish Army.

The fourth note was addressed to a Captain Romberg, and contained $200. Information in the hands of the police is that Hanson had contracted with Romberg to furnish a crew of men for a vessel in Boston. This was Hanson's occupation, and $200 had been advanced him for expenses. The note was as follows:

"Please forgive me for what happened. I enclose the $200."

ARGUING PAIR ARRESTED.

Are Held in Connection With $1,460 Robbery Last April.

Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb in West Side Court yesterday held Charles J. Dryden, 37, of 74 West Sixty-ninth Street, without bail for examination tomorrow on a charge of suspicion of robbery made by Leslie Harrington, 54, who says he is a Chicago broker, stopping at the Wellington Hotel, Fifty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue.

Both were arrested Saturday night by Lieutenant Patrick Sheridan and Detective Peter Dolan of the Headquarters staff in front of the Pennsylvania Station. During the course of a warm argument the police say Dryden accused Harrington of being a confidence man wanted by the Chicago police, and Harrington said Dryden robbed him of $1,460 in this city last April.

On information received from the Chicago police Harrington was discharged in Night Court, while Dryden was held.

HATS : IN THE NEW YORK MANNER

The staying qualities of Weber and Heilbroner Hats

STYLE in a soft hat is a useless and deceptive thing if there isn't solid quality to make it permanent.

All men know this, but many forget it in the rush of early Fall hat buying.

Craftsmanship of the most skillful and painstaking character and materials of the finest are responsible for the staying qualities of every Weber and Heilbroner Hat.

And their style itself is long-lived—because it is correct. On the last day of the season it is just as assured, just as gentlemanly, just as becoming as on the day it was purchased.

Illustrated above is the Dellwood, $3.50. Schoble Superfine Hats, famous for their quality, $7. Other Weber and Heilbroner hats, $5.

KNOX HATS

The pride he takes in knowing it's a Knox

TO MANY MEN, a hat is more than "something to wear." There's an element of comradeship about a good one.

You'll like the new Knox hats that are ready in ten shades and twenty shapes. You'll like them as soon as you see their lines, you'll pick one of them as yours as soon as you try it on, but no matter how well you like it at the start, you'll like it better after it has proved its qualities under stress and hard wear.

Seven dollars is not a big price to pay for a good hat. Measured by days of wear you'll find a Seven Dollar Knox is a most economical hat to buy.

Whether you buy a Knox Hat for Seven Dollars or Forty Dollars, when it bears the Knox label, you know that it represents the utmost value that can be put into a hat at that price.

YANKEES WIN TWICE BEFORE 40,000 FANS

GATES ARE CLOSED AT 1:15

Police Turn Away 25,000 as Throngs Storm Polo Grounds—One Fatality Recorded.

JOE BUSH IS VICTOR AGAIN

Scores Twenty-Third Triumph of Season in First Contest—Schang's Hit Decides Second Battle.

Before a crowd that Business Manager Edward Barrow estimated to number 40,000 persons, the Yankees concluded the American League season at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. They defeated the Athletics twice. The scores were 10 to 3 and 2 to 1. As the St. Louis Browns did not play the champions increased their lead to a game and a half. Although the first game did not start until a few minutes after 2 o'clock, it was necessary to close the gates at 1:15. By that time every seat had been taken and the fans were standing three deep behind the last row in the grand stand.

"It is the biggest crowd that the Yankees have ever played to," said Barrow. "It may be the biggest crowd that has ever been in the Polo Grounds. Of that I am not certain. I estimate that when we closed the gates there were fully 25,000 more who were trying to get in."

When it became evident shortly after noon time that it would eventually be necessary to close the gates, the police established a dead line at 155th Street and Eighth Avenue and none who did not possess a ticket was permitted to pass that point. Until long after the first game had started the crowd grew steadily in the streets adjoining the Polo Grounds until the streets were jammed with automobiles and pedestrians. The viaduct was crowded. Coogan's Bluff, towering above the field, was literally black with those who had been unfortunate enough not to be able to procure tickets. Not during the world's series last Fall betWeen the Giants and Yankees had such a tremendous crowd flocked to the scene of so many diamond battles.

During the last mad rush on the gates just before the portals were closed J. Burke, a fan from White Plains, fainted in the crush and later died in a hospital.

Crowd Is Handled Well.

But in spite of the huge gathering there was little if any disorder. Outside the park the police were in complete control of the situation and inside the special policemen and ushers handled the immense gathering with dispatch. There was some confusion, of course, but for the most part the crowd was well behaved and orderly.

Hours before the gates were opened the crowd began to gather and by noon long lines of fans stretched away from the entrances both on Eighth Avenue and on the Speedway. In anticipation of a big outpouring the number of policemen had been increased and the officers were able to keep the fans in line. When the sale of tickets finally was stopped it became necessary to close the entrance at the elevated station at 155th Street to all those who did not hold tickets. Those without admission pasteboards were compelled to use the stairways at the southern end and then they ran against the impregnable barrier of policemen.

So great was the crush inside the park that the fans crowded into the seats behind the batting screen in the centre field bleachers and while the first game was in progress a section of this green canvas was pulled down and fans invaded the field. And as the Athletics went to bat for the last time in the ninth inning of the second game so many of the bleacherites in left, centre and right fields dropped over the fence on to the playing field that it was necessary to hold up the game for fully five minutes while they were being chased through the exits.

Unless the Yanks squeeze their way into another world's series they will not be seen in action at the Polo Grounds this season, for the next American League campaign rolls around their new park across the Harlem River will be ready. Thus it happened that after Waite Hoyt slipped a third strike over on Hauser in the ninth inning of the second game Colonels Ruppert and Huston held an impromptu farewell gathering in the press box.

Twenty-Third Victory for Bush.

In the first game Joe Bush registered his twenty-third victory of the season. Its number of games won he ranks second to Urban Shocker of the Browns, who has won twenty-four, but Bush has lost only six, whereas Shocker has been defeated fourteen times.

The first game developed into a regular field day for the Yanks. Connie Mack assigned a young left-hander named Fred Heimach to do the pitching for the visitors. His offerings were just like so much pie for the Hugmen. They pounded him for sixteen safe blows, netting a total of twenty-six bases, and won as they pleased. On the other side of the scorecard, Bush limited the Mackmen to nine safeties and, aside from the sixth inning, when the first four Athletes to face him hit safely and he appeared in imminent danger of retreating to the clubhouse in a shower of base hits, he was in control of the situation.

The invaders were the first to score. They grabbed a run for themselves in the first inning, when Jimmy Dykes hit the first pitched ball into the left field bleachers for a home run. Thereafter things were comparatively quiet until the third, when the Yanks jammed four runs over the plate.

Bush, the first man up, thumped a single through Galloway. Witt attempted to sacrifice, but forced Bush, Heimach to Galloway. Dugan singled to centre, and Witt advanced to second. Ruth walked, and the bases were filled. Pipp singled to left, and Witt and Dugan scored. When Walker made a wild return of the ball and it rolled to the Yankees' dugout, Ruth scored and Pipp rushed to third. Schang filed to Welch and Pipp crossed the plate with the fourth run.

In the fifth round the Yankees got another. There was one out when Ruth singled off Hauser's shoe. Galloway fumbled Pipp's grounder and Ruth reached third. Galloway held the ball when it was returned to the infield and Ruth made a dash for the plate and was safe.

Athletics Score Two Runs.

It was in the sixth with the Yankees leading by 5 to 1 that the Athletics became rambunctious and threatened to do dire things to Bush. They succeeded in getting two runs. Hauser singled off Ward's glove. Welch followed with a single to centre and Hauser stopped at second. Miller also singled and Hauser counted. Bruggy contributed the fourth single in succession, a blow to left, and Welch scored with Miller perching on third. On an attempted double steal, Miller was run down, Schang to Ward to Schang, Bruggy advancing to third on the play. Galloway fouled to Pipp and Walker fanned for the third time.

In their half of the same inning the American League champions collected three runs and sewed up the game. Scott singled to centre for a starter. Bush walked. Witt again attempted to sacrifice, but forced Scott at third, Heimach to Dykes. Dugan then dropped the ball into the left field bleachers for a home run and Bush and Witt scored ahead of him.

Not satisfied with a score of 8 to 4, the Yanks grabbed another run in the seventh. There was one out when Ward doubled along the left field foul line. Scott filed to Walker. Bush singled off the right field wall and Ward chocked in. The Yanks scored another run in the eighth when, with two out, Pipp hit the ball into the upper tier of the right field grandstand for a home run.

The Yanks got busy in the first inning of the second game. They made but one hit, but Harris issued two complimentaries, and the combination sufficed to produce two runs. Witt and Dugan both walked. Ruth sacrificed, Dykes to Hauser. Witt scored and Dugan took third while Pipp was being thrown out by Callaway. Schang singled through Callaway and Dugan checked in. Meusel forced Schang, and the session was over.

It was not until the fifth inning that the Athletics dented the plate. Harris opened the inning by making his annual single. He was forced by Dykes, Hoyt to Scott. Dykes stole second. He took third while Hauser was being expunged by Ward and Pipp, and scored when Welch singled to centre.

GIANTS BAT HARD AND DOWN ROBINS

JONNARD PITCHES WELL

Relieves Hill in Third Inning and Checks Rally—20,000 See Game at Ebbets Field.

Twenty thousand baseball fans saw the Giants play in true championship form at Ebbets Field yesterday. They watched the world's champions smother the Robins by the score of 10 to 4. It was the last contest of the season between these two teams. Of the twenty-two games the teams have played this year the Giants have won fourteen.

In crushing the Robins the Giants gave a sparkling display of fielding and batting. Every moment of the game they were right up on their toes in their support of Carmen Hill, the bespectacled twirler from Indianapolis who began the work in the box, and of Claude Jonnard, who succeeded Hill. No less scintillating were the McGrawmen at the bat. First they drove Dutch Ruether to the dugout and then they bombarded Leon Cadore with such ferocity as to bring their total number of hits up to seventeen.

Probably no sadder person was inside the field than Ruether. He started the game firmly convinced that he would win his twentieth victory of the season and thus gain an additional bonus from Squire Ebbets. But the Giants chased Ruether to the showers in the fourth inning.

Hill, in a previous game between the Giants and Robins, had been beaten by Ruether at the Polo Grounds, but yesterday both of them failed to last through the nine innings. After the Robins had made one run in the third inning and had three men on the bases with only one out, Hill was relieved by Jonnard, who stopped the rally after another run had been scored.

Bancroft Opens With Single.

"One out!" shouted the Brooklyn fans as Bancroft went to bat first for the Giants in the opening inning. With two strikes on him, Bannie gave the New York followers a chance to shout by driving a single over second base. Groh then tripled to the right centre field fence after Tom Griffith had made a gallant effort to make a screaming catch of his foul. Bancroft crossing the plate with the initial run of the game. Frisch went out on a long fly to Myers, Groh galloping safely home. Meusel filed to Tom Griffith. Young tried a bunt, but was out, High to Schmandt.

Hill got a good start for the visitors' half of the first inning when Johnston hit safely to left after Johnston had thrown out Kelly. The hit was of no avail, however, for Cunningham was caught stealing second on De Berry's throw to Johnston. Snyder reached first safely on a hard bounder to High, who made a wide throw to Schmandt. Hill was out, Olson to Schmandt.

Wheat got busy for the Robins in the latter half of the second inning, hitting to left for one base. Myers, however, filed to Bancroft and Schmandt, after knocking a high foul which hit one of the fans in a lower box, struck out just as Wheat stole second. Some of the fans objected to the decision. It did not matter, anyway, for Hill tossed out High.

For the second time Bancroft reached first, Ruether failing to locate the plate in the opening of the third chapter. On a hit-and-run play Groh singled to right, and Tom Griffith, in trying to get Bancroft going to third, threw low, the ball going to the stand and allowing Bancroft to score and Groh to reach second. Groh went to third on Frisch's out, Johnston to Schmandt, and home on Meusel's fly to Myers. Kelly closed the inning with another fly to Myers. But two runs were in, making the score 4 to 0 in favor of the Giants.

Ruether Connects for Double.

De Berry tried to rouse Brooklyn's hopes with a single in the third. He hit to centre, and then Ruether doubled to left. Olson smashed one past Hill. De Berry crossing the plate and Ruether scoring behind him. Johnston popped to Bancroft. Tom Griffith walked, filling the bases with only one out, the crowd meanwhile keeping up a deafening din. As Griffith trotted to first the game was halted while Jonnard went to the mound in place of Hill. It was a trying moment for Claude, who looked about him to see three Robins on the bases with two more to retire. Wheat, first to face him, filed to Young, Ruether scoring and Olson and Johnston each moving up a base, but hit by Myers a mighty blow of the score, but Hy was not equal to the emergency, for the best he could do was to send an easy grounder to Bancroft on which he was thrown out.

In the fourth Snyder lined over third for two bases after De Berry had made a nice catch of Cunningham's high foul. Jonnard struck out. Bancroft tried hard to retain his perfect swatting average and he was successful, for he smashed the ball just inside the left field foul line for two bases, Snyder crossing the plate with the Giants' fifth run. Groh kept up the merry work with a two-bagger to centre, Bancroft scoring. This was enough for Uncle Robbie, who yanked Ruether and substituted Cadore. Leon took the mound with two out and Groh on second. The first two balls he pitched to Frisch were strikes. On the next ball Frankie filed to Schmandt.

After Schmandt had been thrown out by Frisch on a clever stop by the Flash in the last half of the fourth, High doubled to left and De Berry singled to centre, the former scoring. Cadore fanned and Olson was thrown out by Groh.

In the fifth Meusel and Young were robbed of safe hits, the former on a difficult stop by Johnston and the latter on a running catch by Wheat of a fly in back of short. Kelly popped to Schmandt. The Robins retired in order.

Snyder singled to centre in the sixth after High had thrown out Cunningham. Jonnard tried to bunt, but was nailed on Cadore's throw to Schmandt, who saved the out with a one-handed catch. Bancroft walked for the second time, still preserving his 1.000 per cent. batting average. Groh filed to Myers.

The Giants came back to the attack in the seventh, Frisch tripling over Myers's head and Meusel singling past High, Frisch scoring. On Young's single to centre Meusel was caught at third on Myers's throw. Young taking second. Kelly knocked a single to centre, Young crossing the plate. Kelly stole second, and Cunningham was out o De Berry's throk of a roller in front of the rubber.

In the eighth the Giants scored three more on Bancroft's walk and singles by Frisch, Meusel, Young and Kelly. The Robins obtained one run in the ninth on Schwendt's double to right centre and De Barry's single.

BEARS IN EVEN BREAK.

Lose and Win in Twin Bill With Aces by Same Score of 6-3.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 10.—The Newark Bears split even in a double-header with Chief Bender's Reading Aces here today, losing the first game by 6 to 3 and winning the second by the same count.

In the seventh inning of the first game the visitors tied the score, a base on balls paving the way for their tally. They won in the ninth with a trio of runs which were handed to them on two misplays.

In the second contest, Barnhardt, the Bears' pitching ace, held the visitors at his mercy until the ninth inning, when they rallied and scored three runs.

RAY WINS SPRINT IN THE VELODROME

National Outdoor Mile Champion Easily Defeats Craw in One-Mile Event.

CHAPMAN IS BIKE WINNER

Program Marks First Attempt of Management to Hold Sunday Sports—Summonses Served.

Joie W. Ray, Illinois A. C. middle-distance star, showed a crowd of about 5,000 admirers yesterday at the New York Velodrome just how he won the National A. A. U. title for the seventh time last Saturday. Ray, competing in a one-mile run over the board track of the Velodrome, showed his heels to five rivals after a race of slightly more than six laps. The champion, breaking in front, won by almost half a lap over Andy Craw, Glencoe A. C. distancer, who was conspicuously out of place with his distance stride. Ray covered the mile in 4:27.

The event was one of a combined A. A. U. track and N. C. A. cycling program furnishing Sabbath matinee sport at gram which marked the first attempt at the Velodrome. Manager John M. Chapman and four others identified with the events were served with summonses to appear in court this morning for violation of the law against Sunday sports at which admission fees are charged.

Ray's opposition was expected from Harvey Lichtenstein, unattached, and Craw, Sol Silverstein and Frank Titterton, all of the Glencoe A. C. The contention, however, never developed. Ray merely jogged to the front with the bark of Johnny McHugh's gun and hit up a pace which left the others far in the ruck. Because of the lack of competition the spectators were deprived of the opportunity of witnessing Ray in one of the thunderous finishes for which the wonderful little Chicagoan is noted.

Mike Devaney, Millrose A. A. veteran middle-distance star, who finished fourth in the national half-mile title test last Saturday, scored a brace of victories in hollow fashion. Devaney won easing up in a 600-yard run and showed the way without being forced to let out in a 1,000-yard run. A three mile-chase resulted in a victory for Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C. distancer, who holds the five-mile title.

Chapman Wins Motor-Paced Race.

George Chapman, Newark cyclist, who has won the American motor-paced championship three times, pedalled his way to victory in the one-hour motor-paced race for the Velodrome championship, which served as the feature attraction on the cycling card. Chapman, riding a characteristic raceback, of the pace of Jimmy Hunter, scored in hollow fashion. When the hour was completed the three-time champion was three laps ahead of Lawrence Gaffney, Brooklyn cyclist, who finished second. Chapman covered 40 miles, 2¼ laps through the hour of riding. Gaffney rode over 39 miles 5¼ laps to gain second place.

Third honors went to Charles Verkyn, Belgian, who covered 39 miles 2¾ laps. Clarence Carman, Jamaica veteran, who formerly held the American title, was fourth, with 39 miles 1 lap. Georges Columbatto, the only other survivor in a field of six starters, covered 36 miles 4¾ laps. Vincent Madonna, Italian cyclist, who was expected to give Chapman a battle for the title, withdrew from the race after covering slightly more than fifteen miles. At the time Madonna was about half a lap back of Chapman.

In the early stages of the race Madonna rode like a sure winner. The Italian got off well and had the crowd cheering with his speedy riding for seven miles. Madonna worked up a lead of almost a lap on Chapman at ten miles, but soon afterward the Italian lost his pace and Chapman went into the lead. For about five miles Madonna kept up the pursuit. Then the Italian missed his pace again and withdrew, leaving Chapman to go on with practically no opposition.

Ohrt Outrides Seargent.

Hans Ohrt, San Francisco rider, scored in straight heats over Pierre Seargent, French cyclist, in a one-mile match race. Ohrt rode from in front through both heats, beating off spirited closing challenges by Seargent in each brush. In the first heat Ohrt went over the line the winner in 2:36, riding the last eighth mile in 12 3-5 seconds. The Frisco rider took the second heat and the race in 2:58 2-5, covering the last eighth mile in 12 3-5 seconds again.

Louis Benesatti, Unione Sportiva Italiana cyclist, scored a brace of victories in races conducted for amateur riders. Benesatti captured a half-mile handicap event in which he was allowed a start of twenty yards and later carried off premier prize in a two-mile open-paced event.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 10.—Brilliant riding on the part of Alfred Goullet enabled him and Alex McBeath to score a decisive victory over twenty teams in a 100-kilometer (62½ miles) race at the Velodrome here today. Goullett showed more speed and stamnia than he has displayed all season. The race was decided on a point basis with a sprint every two miles, making thirty-one sprints in all. Goullet and McBeath won the race with 104 points. Reggie McNamara and Cecil Walker finished second with 85 points. Orlando Piani and Alfred Grenda were third with 61 points, Harry Horan and Fred Weber were fourth with 56 points. WILL HAVE STRONG TEAM.

W. S. A. to Enter Four Stars in Title Swim at Manhattan Beach.

About the strongest available team of women swimmers will strive for the women's national 400-yard relay swimming championship for the Women's Swimming Association, in the title test scheduled for Saturday afternoon in the Olympic Lagoon at Manhattan Beach. This event will be one of the championship features of a two-day aquatic carnival. The W. S. A. officials already have selected three members of the team. They are the Misses Helen Wainwright, America's premier all-around woman swimmer; Gertrude Ederle, the remarkable swimmer who recently shattered five world's records in a 500-meter swim and established a sixth, and Aileen Riggin, Olympic diving star, who is a capable free style swimmer. Selection of the fourth member of the quartet rests between the Misses Doris O'Mara, national junior half-mile champion; Helen Mearly, national fancy diving titleholder, and Ethel McGary, runner-up for the half-mile title. Miss Ederle is expected to swim the first leg for the W. S. A. Miss Wainwright probably will swim anchor. Because of the calibre of the swimmers on this team it is expected that an assault will be made on the 400-yard relay record.

TO HOLD WRESTLING BOUTS.

Promoter Wellman Will Stage Series of Matches to Decide Titles.

After thoroughly combing the far corners of the country, Promoter Bill Wellman is proceeding with final arrangements for the series of wrestling bouts he plans during the approaching season for the purpose of deciding middleweight and light-heavyweight titles. The series will open on Sept. 20 with a card of bouts at the Queensboro A. C. Long Island City. A squad of twenty-five grapplers will strive for the middleweight title. Promoter Wellman has accepted the entries of more than thirty wrestlers in the light-heavyweight division. Helmer Myre of Mason City, Iowa, recognized champion, has entered to defend his 175-pound title.

Brady and Hausner to Meet.

A twelve-round bout between Eddie Brady, Brooklyn featherweight, and Jack Hausner of the east side features the program which will be offered this evening at the Broadway Exhibition Association, Brooklyn. Brady recently defeated Babe Herman, California featherweight, and is confident he will add Hausner to his list of victims.

Edwards Meets Martin Tonight.

Danny Edwards, Pacific Coast negro bantamweight, and Terry Martin of Providence will furnish the action tonight in the principal bout at the Oakland A. A., Jersey City. The lads are scheduled for twelve rounds. A ten-round semi-final will bring together Frank Danunzio and Whitey Hall, rival welterweights.

MISS M'GARY SETS U. S. SWIM RECORD

Establishes New American Mark for 200 Yards at Glen Island —Her Time Is 2:44.

Miss Ethel McGary, promising young swimmer of the Women's Swimming Association, yesterday established an American record for 200 yards over a fifty-yard open course, in the feature event of the W. S. A. aquatic carnival held off the clubhouse of the Huguenot Yacht Club, at Glen Island. Miss McGary, in scoring a signal triumph in a 200-yard scratch race, swam the distance in 2 minutes 44 seconds. This time was said by veteran swimming officials to be unprecedented for this distance over a fifty-yard straightaway course in open water. Application for an American record will be made by Miss Charlotte Epstein of the W. S. A., on behalf of Miss McGary.

Miss McGary scored her victory by a margin of about three yards on Miss Ethel Baker, a clubmate. Miss Lillian Stoddard, another wearer of the W. S. A. emblem, was third, less than a yard back of Miss Baker. The event furnished a keen test from the start. Miss McGary was hard pressed throughout by her rivals. In the closing sprint, however, Miss McGary's sustained speed burst carried her to victory.

Miss Helen Wainwright, women's all-around swim champion, came near breaking a record in a fifty-yard swim. Miss Wainwright swam to victory in the fast time of 29 seconds, within two-fifths of a second of the record for this distance. In scoring her victory Miss Wainwright showed the way by four yards to Miss Doris O'Mara. Miss Frances Cooney finished third.

Miss Aileen Riggin, Olympic diving champion, accounted for a brace of victories. She captured a 100-yard swim by a margin of five yards in 1:10, and in a fifty-yard backstroke test was triumphant by a matter of two yards in 40 seconds.

The summaries:

50-Yard Swim—Won by Miss Helen Wainwright, Women's Swimming Association; Miss Doris O'Mara, Women's Swimming Association, second; Miss Frances Cooney, Women's Swimming Association, third. Time—0:29.

Six-Meter Yachts In Second International Race Today

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The second of the series of races between the American and British six-meter yachts for the possession of the British-American Cup, won last year by the British yachtsmen, will be held off here tomorrow. The race will be sailed over a triangular course of two miles to the leg, twice around, for a total distance of twelve miles. As tomorrow's race will give the yachts a chance to prove their qualities on a reach, and as the British yachts are particularly fast on a reach they are expected to make a better showing than in the first race yesterday. The American yachts are now leading by 20 points to 10. The British boats went to City Island today and were hauled out for cleaning, but will be back in the water in the morning. The American craft were not hauled out.

BEST BITS OF PLAY BY CHESS MASTERS

Tactics of Experts in Recent Tourney as Revealed by the Details of Games.

Another small selection of the more important games played between the leaders in the recent international chess masters' tournament has come to hand from London. It is the intention of the British Chess Federation to bring out the entire collection of 120 games in book form, with annotations by the masters themselves, but this will take time. Meanwhile readers of THE TIMES have enjoyed the very cream of what the famous experts have contributed to chess literature.

NET PLAY STARTS TODAY.

Rockaway Hunting Club's Annual Tennis Tournament to Open.

The annual junior invitation interclub tennis tournament will start on the courts of the Rockaway Hunting Club at Cedarhurst, L. I., this afternoon, and will continue for the next two days. Entries have been received from the Meadow Club of Southampton, the Maidstone Club of Easthampton, the Islip Club, the Piping Rock Club of Locust Valley and the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club. The players will compete for a challege cup of which a leg was won by the Rockaway Hunting Club last season.

Horse Show Notes.

Men and women and horses will make up the two central groups of figures at the National Horse Show this year. The horses will begin to be assembled from the time the prize list is issued, which will be in about two weeks. Another assembly, even more important, is being started at the club of the show, which is made up each year of horse-loving enthusiasts. Its membership lasts just the week of the show, reaches into the hundreds, then melts away and is renewed the following year.

The announcement that starts this club of the National Horse Show for 1922 is just now going out. It will reach a great number of representative New Yorkers, and the club fees for the week are $10, admitting at all times not only to the Armory, Squadron A's, Ninety-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, where the show is to be held for the week beginning Nov. 13, but also to the club box, the successor of the great club box of the shows at Madison Square Garden in the old days, now, in the Armory, a large part of the portico of Mount Vernon, overlooking the entire show.

In addition, subscriptions for women's season tickets—for which $10 is to be charged—are being asked for. Owing to the very large increase of feminine equestrianism in New York, Brooklyn and the suburbs the past year, it is anticipated that the demand for these will be very large.

The twentieth annual Mineola Horse Show has just issued its prize list, and, announcing its dates as Sept. 27, 28 and 29 on the Horse Show Grounds of the Mineola Fair, promises a series of events that will equal, if indeed they do not eclipse, the very many successful shows that this organization has held. With Charles W. Smith, Secretary-Manager, and Robert C. Baird, I. Cornell Romsen, Lott Van de Water Jr. and Henry W. Underhill, the officers of the Agricultural Society of Queens-Nassau Counties that is behind the Mineola show, all has been arranged for a successful presentation of sixty-three classes during the show's three days.

These are the announcements as to the judges: Roadsters and breeding classes, Carll Burr, Secretary of Commack, L. I.; saddle-horses, ponies under saddle and ponies in harness, R. Lawrence Smith, Smithtown Branch, L. I., and of the National Horse Show; pole mounts, D. Stewart Iglehart, Jr., of Milburn Jr., both of New York City; hunters and jumpers, Frank A. Bonsal of Monkton, Md.

THEMIS IS FINAL STAR CLASS VICTOR

Defeats Dawning by Thirty Seconds in Twelfth Race on the Sound—Title to Main.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Sept. 10. Benjamin L. Linkfield, with his little sloop-like yacht Maia flying the burgee of the Bayside Yacht Club, won the championship of the Western Division of the Long Island Sound Star Association, for which the last of the series of twelve races was sailed this afternoon over the course of the Port Washington Yacht Club. Although Maia did not win today, she took the title through her previous victories in the series.

A fairly strong southwest breeze was blowing when the fourteen Stars lined up for the start. Because of the delay of some of the yachts in reaching the scene from the week's cruise up the Sound, it was not until 3:35 o'clock that they got under way.

The race was won by a Bayside Yacht Club's entry, Themis, owned by Van Winkle and Pingry. She crossed the line thirty seconds ahead of Dawning, owned by Messrs. Elder and Reeve of the Port Washington Club. The finish was one of the most spectacular in all the races of the year, only 7 minutes and 6 seconds separating thirteen of the fourteen yachts to finish. William Guggenheim Jr. started with his Orion, but did not finish.

DEMPSEY MAY SAIL FOR EUROPE SOON

CHAMPION SEEKS ACTION

Again Declares His Willingness to Meet Any Contender for the Heavyweight Title.

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and his manager, Jack Kearns, will sail for Europe on or about Nov. 6, according to plans disclosed last night by Kearns. Kearns said the heavyweight champion will make another trip to Europe for the purpose of engaging Joe Beckett, England's heavyweight champion. This will serve in the nature of a preliminary for Dempsey before a return match against Georges Carpentier, for which the champion practically was signed on his visit to Europe last Spring. Both matches will be held in England. Kearns added, however, that if the proposed bout between Dempsey and Harry Wills, negro challenger, is arranged before the outdoor season ends, Dempsey's European plans will be revised. Permission granted for a Dempsey-Bill Brennan bout, and a clash between the champion and Billy Miske, likewise, will cause a revision of the title-holder's plans to go abroad.

While it was generally expected that Dempsey would make another trip to Europe, particularly in view of his declarations to this effect upon his return from abroad several months ago, the fact that he was planning to leave on Nov. 6 did not become known until yesterday. In acknowledging his plans for a European trip, Kearns had the following to say:

Dempsey Seeks Action.

"There's no use having the champion remain idle. We are ready for anything that comes along, but right now there seems little prospect of any action for Dempsey, unless some promoter makes an acceptable offer for a bout between Dempsey and Wills. To date, however, I have received no such offer. We are contemplating another trip abroad. Unless something develops in the way of ring action for Dempsey we will sail about Nov. 6 for England. In England plans are being made for a match between Dempsey and Beckett. I have an offer for such a bout to be held late this year or early next year. Then there is the return match against Carpentier which was practically closed before we left England on our trip earlier this year. As far as Dempsey is concerned the Carpentier match is closed. Carpentier, too, was agreeable when we discussed a return match abroad. Whether he has since changed his mind I do not know.

"English boxing followers are keen to see Dempsey in action against their heavyweight champion. If our present plans go through, Dempsey will tackle Beckett as a sort of warm-up match for the return bout with Carpentier.

Ready to Meet Anyone.

"I think the most unenviable life is that of a ring champion who can not get action. I have such a man in Dempsey. He is ready for any and all boxers who aspire to his title. This includes Wills, Willard, Brennan, Miske, Greb, Gibbons or anybody else. But because no promoter can be found who can conduct the one big match, a meeting with Wills, and opposition is encountered in the efforts of promoters to arrange a match between the champion and any of his white rivals, Dempsey must remain idle.

"Jom Coffroth is here with a proposition for Dempse yto box under his auspices. Coffroth want sto promote a Dempsey-Jack Johnson bout. As yet nothing has been accomplished in this direction."

Dempsey and Kearns left last night for Syracuse, where the champion will be a guest today at the State Fair. The champion and his manager will return to this city tomorrow. Kearns has an appointment tomorrow with Jim Coffroth to discuss prospects for a bout between Dempsey and Jack Johnson, former champion, which Coffroth is eager to conduct in Mexico City. The champion is scheduled for a boxing exhibition in Boston the latter part of the week. His plans, thereafter, are undetermined.

VELODROME BOUTS TONIGHT

Nable and Lee Will Clash in 12-Round Feature Match.

The New York Velodrome will hold its first popular-priced boxing show this evening, weather permitting. A card of forty rounds of boxing is scheduled, featured by two twelve-round battles in which bantamweights and featherweights will exhibit their skill. The show originally was scheduled for last week but inclement weather necessitated a postponement. Danny Lee, Harlem bantamweight, and Sammy Nable of the east side, will clash in one of the principal bouts. This contest is expected to produce an opponent for Joe Lynch, holder of the world's bantamweight championship. Lynch has consented to meet the winner in a bout during the indoor season at Madison Square Garden.

The other twelve-round bout will be between Kid Sullivan, Brooklyn's hard-hitting featherweight, and Sammy Sieger of the east side. This is a return match. In the previous bout between these two boxers Sullivan was awarded the decision. Sieger is confident squaring accounts in the approaching battle. The six-round bouts will be between Jim Montgomery and Billy Hamilton, middleweight rivals, and Murray Layton and Phil Rosenberg, former amateur boxers. In the four-round preliminary Lew Guglielmini and Sid Terris, bantamweights, will be opponents.

Boxing Notes.

Mike McTigue, Irish middleweight, who has been sojourning in Ireland and England for the past two months, is planning to return here. The Irish boxer, according to Joe Jacobs, his manager, has booked passage and will sail for America within ten days. Jacobs is planning an extensive campaign for McTigue. Bots against Bryan Downey in Toronto and Happy Littleton at New Orleans are in prospect.

The bout between Earl Baird, Seattle featherweight, and Billy Murphy of Staten Island, which was scheduled for Cisco Park, Staten Island, last week, will be held tomorrow night. The contest was postponed because of rain.

Reconciled to the fact that he must wait until the arrival of the next outdoor season before getting another chance at Benny Leonard's world's lightweight championship, Lew Tendler, Philadelphia southpaw, is proceeding calmly about the business of destroying the hopes of other ambitious lightweights. Tendler will tackle Ever Hammer, Chicago veteran, in a bout at Philadelphia tonight and he will follow this encounter with a meeting against Pal Moran, New Orleans lightweight, at the New York Velodrome on the night of Sept. 19. On Sept. 25 Tendler is scheduled to box Pinkey Mitchell, Milwaukee welterweight, in a bout to be held at the Auditorium, Milwaukee.

Phil Glassman, manager of a string of boxers topped by Lew Tendler, has announced he no longer is looking after the pugilistic affairs of Kid Williams or Patsy Wallace. Williams is the Baltimore veteran who once held the bantamweight title. Wallace not so long ago was regarded as one of the leading flyweights in the country.

GOLF

Another golf championship has become a part of the past—one of the greatest in the history of the U. S. A., greatest in point of calibre of the competing field, quality of golf played, in the efficient manner in which it was conducted by the Brookline Country Club.

Out of the most scintillating galaxy of golfers that were tied off in any championship has emerged a mere boy with the 1922 title. In wishing, Jess Sweetser of New York and Siwanoy, and of Ardsley, has demonstrated what many have firmly believed, that he is destined to become, if, indeed, he is not already, one of the great golfers of all time. Certain it is he has demonstrated that he possesses the cardinal attributes that combine to make a golf champion. First of all, the shots; second, that complete control over mind and muscle essential to be a great golfer; third, the will to win, without which success is as a mirage in golf or any other sport; last and most essential of all, a thorough sense of sportsmanship, a combination of sterling qualities seldom found in one barely turned twenty.

Jess Sweetser is a champion in whose victory the Metropolitan District has reason to rejoice. His task at Brookline was one no golfer before him ever was called upon to perform. He is no mere flash in the pan, having come through the fire, he will doubtless be a factor in golf for many years to come.

The Brookline Tourney has once more proved the grip that golf has on the American people. No longer can it be said—though that idea has long become fossilized—that golf is an old man's pastime. It has become a game, and a strenuous one, for the young as well as for the old. But the younksters are the ones who are superceding the old in titular affairs. In the semi-final round, Chick Evans, at 32, was the old man. The other three were youngsters of 20. Furthermore, no finer gathering of sportsmen ever assembled than that which met at Brookline. And no more democratic.

A word about the conduct of the tourney. At St. Louis a year ago it was thought that the millennium had been reached in tournament conduct. But, utilising the experience of the past, the Country Club officials even surpassed St. Louis, though the arrangements at the Mound City were perfect. Such men as James W. Wheeler, Harold W. Pierce, Huntington R. Hardwick, Robert S. Weeks, Samuel M. Felton, John L. Wylde, in fact, every committeeman, has reason to feel proud of the part he played in making the tournament a success. It was efficiency to the thirty-second degree, efficiency made possible by common sense, civility, cordiality, politeness, and all without ostentation.

SWIMMING

Reports from abroad leave no doubt that European delegates to the International Federation of Swimmers will use every effort to bring about strict enforcement of the rules covering world's swimming records at the next general meeting of the organization. If they succeed in their purpose no record made in tidal water will be accepted hereafter and many of the marks already sanctioned and registered will have to be stricken from the official table.

The contemplated step seems unreasonable, unfair and against the best interests of the sport, for the new interpretation of the record laws will prevent standards being set over a number of the best courses in existence, courses subject to tidal rise and fall, yet affording virtually still water conditions. Under this heading may be classified, for instance, most of the great baths in Australia, built along shore and enclosed on the outside with pilings which allow the tide to run in and out; the Olympic lagoon at Manhattan Beach, the basin at Belmar, N. J., the famous course in Honolulu harbor, and a long string of sites in this and other countries used for championships and important water carnivals.

Tidal changes do not cause perceptible current over these courses and, while swimmers may be favored by unnoticeable flows in covering a given distance straightaway, this hardly can be the case when an event necessitates negotiating the laid-out stretch an equal number of times in each direction, so that any trifling advantage gained on one lap is offset on the next.

A few days ago the Women's National A. A. U. one-mile swimming championship was decided over the 110-yard course in the Manhattan Beach lagoon and W. J. Howcroft of Liverpool, Secretary to the Amateur Swimming Association of Great Britain, was among the appointed officials. Shortly before the race was started he conceived the idea of testing conditions by dropping matches at intervals along the course. The experiment was convincing, for the matches drifted across the lanes under the influence of a breeze blowing at right angles to the course, but showed no tendency whatever to make headway in either direction lengthwise to the course. Yet if the proposed amendment goes through at the gathering of the international authorities four world's records erected by Miss Helen Wainwright in the title event will be denied recognition.

Moreover, should the point be carried to its logical conclusion, and absolutely still water required for record performances, virtually every outdoor record claimed in future will be open to challenge, since it often happens that currents are caused even in lakes and ponds by winds, sunken springs and streams flowing in or out. Actually there will be no vouching for the standard conditions of any open water course.

Advocates of the restrictive measure maintain that its passage is imperative to prevent abuses, but this is not apparent. The federation can guard against abuses by insisting on signed statements by reliable officials that conditions complied with requirements. These testimonials will protect in so far as possible. For, let it not be overlooked, if there are in any country prominent officials ready to render questionable affidavits concerning conditions, which is hard to believe, they will not hesitate to sanction records made over short courses or lacking in other respects. Thus the barring of tidal water records will serve only to rob champions of record laurels fairly earned.

POLO

To their undisputed title of champion polo four of Great Britain the Argentine players have now added the open championship of the Polo Association of the United States. Whether the victories of the South Americans over Shelburne and Meadow Brook, the two strongest American combinations in the title event, entitles the visitors to the undisputed championship of the polo world, as some would have it, is a moot question, susceptible to argument. Argentina's representatives make up, unquestionably, an unusually formidable polo team. They were much better than any four the British could bring against them during the visit of the South Americans to England for the Spring and Summer tournaments, and they demonstrated in their two matches in the open championship tournament that they were superior to the two American teams, which were admittedly the best entered in that event.

It should be considered, however, that the United States players easily demonstrated their superiority over British polo in June a year ago, and that neither Shelburne nor Meadow Brook as they lined up at Rumson during the past fortnight were representative of the best that we can put on the field—not the best by a margin of exactly nine goals. In other words, if America's best players—the team that would represent the United States in a real world's championship event—were combined, they would rank at forty goals. This team, under the ranking of the Hurlingham Club, would be stronger than the South Americans by a matter of ten goals; that is, they would be expected to score ten more goals than the Argentines in meeting them on even terms. It would, of course, be made up of Stoddard, Hitchcock, Webb and Milburn, and there is little doubt that this international combination could defeat the visitors with comparative regularity. The Argentine victory leads again to the desire that the South Americans face this best American combination in a match, or series of matches, before they leave for home next month. Captain Lewis L. Lacey has expressed himself as willing to entertain a challenge along these lines. Certainly it would be a most attractive series of competitions.

Argentina deserves the greatest credit in its sporting ventures. The team has played in four countries in the last eight months and its players have endeared themselves to their opponents and all others with whom they have come in contact by their charm of manner and true sportsmanship. They were undefeated in Britain during the first week of competition on these shores, playing, as they were, on strange fields, on surfaces heavy from rains and of a texture quite unfamiliar. They were mounted, as well, on ponies unacclimated and far from their best condition. Players and mounts are now in tip-top shape again, save for two of the latter which probably will not be available for some time. The play of our South American guests at Philadelphia this week and next and at Meadow Brook later in the month should attract even more attention because of their decisive victory in the championship tournament.

BASEBALL

With only three weeks left of the present baseball season, the outcome of the two major league pennant races is still far from certain. Both the Giants and Yankees improved their positions yesterday, while their chief Western rivals were idle on account of rain, but they will have to travel at a fast pace to win the pennants in their respective leagues. At the present time the world's champions are in a much better position than the American League leaders. The Yankees still have eighteen games to play and all of them are scheduled for hostile fields, while the Giants will stage all of their remaining contests at the Polo Grounds. After meeting the Athletics in a single game in Philadelphia today the Yanks will leave on their final tour of the West. From present indications the Yanks' games in the West, which will be played during the next two weeks, will settle the outcome of the American League race.

Although the Yankees are now enjoying a lead of a game and a half due to their two victories over the Athletics yesterday, they will have to fight hard to maintain their hold on first place against the assaults of the Browns. Except for the fact that the Yanks are starting their trip in the lead, the Browns are in a better strategical position than the New York Club. While the Yankees are playing the White Sox, Tigers and Indians on foreign fields, the Browns will be meeting the weak Eastern clubs, the Athletics, Red Sox and Senators. It is not at all unlikely that the series between the two contenders for the pennant starting in St. Louis on Saturday will definitely decide the winner of the American League championship.

While the Yankees are touring the other half of the circuit the Giants will be playing the strong Western clubs of the National League at the Polo Grounds. At the present time the world's champions have a lead of four and a half games over their nearest rivals, the Pittsburgh Pirates, but they are certain to encounter some strong opposition during the next fortnight when they meet the Cubs, Reds, Pirates and Cardinals in succession. Although the lead which the Giants now enjoy is a substantial one, their position is none too secure because of the present woeful weakness of their staff of pitchers. Only the fact that the strong Western teams were playing among themselves and thus preventing each other from advancing any considerable distance toward first place, enabled the slumping Giants to retain their hold on first place during the past few weeks. The coming four series with the Western clubs will undoubtedly decide whether the Giants are to repeat their pennant winning performance of last season.

TURF

Kai-Sang must be hailed as the king of the three-year-olds. His victory in the Lawrence Realisation on Saturday at Belmont Park gives him a clear title to the crown. In that race he beat Bunting, usually considered his present most formidable rival, and also defeated Rockminster. As Rockminster, in the Huron Handicap at Saratoga, gave a ridiculously easy beating to Whiskaway, which had already twice defeated Morvich and once defeated Snob II, the deduction is that Kai-Sang is the best three-year-old of the season. It is true that Whiskaway was not at the top of his form in the Huron. It is also true that in this race he showed nothing whatever, not even a flash of greatness or speed, and that he was nosed out of show money by as ordinary a racer as Hephaistos. Despite the fact that it was announced by the Clark Stable after the Huron that the race was a mere tightening up for the Saratoga special three-year-old championship, in which it was hoped that Whiskaway would meet Kai-Sang, Bunting and Pillory, it is to be noted that a couple of days later Whiskaway was removed as a possible starter in the special, which, because of poor track conditions, was finally canceled. It is hardly fair to Kai-Sang to go behind the open record. Whether Whiskaway was in top form or not, he was disgracefully beaten in the Huron and then declined the special. The record thus far gives Kai-Sang a clear claim to the three-year-old honors of 1922. In the Realization he did everything that could be asked. He went his distance, carried his weight, beat his field, and made excessively fast time.

Due praise should be accorded both Bunting and Rockminster for their showing in the Realisation. Bunting gave a fine exhibition of speed and gameness. As the margin of Kai-Sang's victory was so small, Bunting undoubtedly also surpassed, as well as the winner, the time made by every victor in the Realization in previous years except that made by the one and only Man o' War. Rockminster, to only two lengths and a half behind Kai-Sang, ran an extremely fast race—a race good enough to win in many a former year. In view of the 2:42 2-5 in which the one mile and five-eights was run, all three contestants proved that they are first-class three-year-olds, while Kai-Sang and Bunting proved, both by their speed and courage, that they have something of genuine greatness.

TENNIS

With the national tennis championship tournament so far under way that, as a result of two days' play at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, only a quarter of the original competitors remain in the competition, congratulations belong to the Philadelphia organization for the management which has made this rapid progress possible under circumstances which have done full justice to contestants and spectators. For the rest, the sole interest of the tennis fan is centred in one question—Who is going to win?

In nearly every sport the defending champion is the favorite in the betting, while, owing to a peculiar twist of psychology, almost everybody hopes he will lose. Much the same sort of thing appertains to the situation in tennis. Tilden, the champion, is expected to retain his title. At his best, and in full command of what amounts to the greatest variety of attacking strokes possessed by any player, he should do it. His most formidable opponent, of course, is Johnston. In the californian's favor it is to be said that, while he was in poor physical trim a year ago, he is now in the "pink." Moreover, in the Davis Cup challenge round Johnston was better than Tilden. If Johnston can play against Tilden the sort of tennis he did at Forest Hills, he has a slightly better chance, for the reason that he is less affected by his surroundings and by the attitude of the gallery than the temperamental Philadelphian. The gallery will undoubtedly favor Johnston, but that will make no difference to him. He does not care. He plays his best tennis under all conditions, and forgets the gallery completely. Tilden is more sensitive to the general attitude, but it is at the same time quite possible that, if he thinks a gallery is unappreciative, it will so exasperate him that he will play better than he might ordinarily. The fact remains that Johnston has as good a chance at ever he had in his whole career of beating Tilden at Philadelphia this week. He plays quite as effective average all-around tennis, though incapable of reaching the supreme heights that Tilden does at his marvelous best. But can Tilden do what he could not at Forest Hills? Can he reach his best form of other years? If he plays as poorly as he did with Richards in the doubles he will be swamped.

Of the other competitors, only Richards, Williams and Patterson need to be seriously considered. Richards and Williams would have to be keyed up to a pitch they have reached only two or three times in their careers to beat either Tilden or Johnston. Patterson would have to play better tennis than he has shown at any time in America this Summer. But in behalf not only of Patterson, but of his compatriots, Anderson and Wood, as well as of the Alonsos of Spain and Shimizu of Japan, it is difficult to express the gratitude of the American tennis public for what they have contributed toward the game this season. Splendid sportsmen are they all. Americans have long known that of the Australians and of Shimizu. But it has been one of the most pleasant circumstances in connection with the Davis Cup matches and the preliminary rounds of the national championship to note the attitude of the Spaniards. The Alonsos and De Gomas have known as well and as genuinely as imagination could desire how to accept adversity as well as success, and even how to go to the extreme of giving the other fellow the benefit of any possible doubt. That sort of thing is what has made tennis the unique game it is.

ARRANGES TO SEAT 15,000 POLO FANS

Meadow Brook Club Expects Big Crowd at Waterbury Trophy Play Beginning Sept. 27.

Preparations have been made by the Polo Committee of the Meadow Brook Club to care for a crowd of more than fifteen thousand spectators each day during the play for the Monty Waterbury Trophy in the international tournament at Westbury, Long Island, beginning on Sept. 27. So great has been the demand for tickets that it has been necessary to erect a stand on the east side of the international field, in addition to the big grand stand on the west side, on which the finishing touches are now being put.

While the matches at Meadow Brook are more than three weeks away, the demand for reservations has exceeded everything except the competitions for the International Polo Challenge Cup. Recollections of the big matches of 1911, 1913 and 1914 were revived by the big grand stand, painted robin's egg blue, the Meadow Brook color, now lining the west side of the great expanse of green.

The big stand comprises a unit of the stands that will be used at the International matches in 1924 when the English send a team here in an effort to recapture the cup. The Polo Association has agreed to take the stand over at the conclusion of this tournament and will look after its maintenance until the big matches two years hence.

Ticket reservations may still be made at the New York offices of the Polo Committee of the Meadow Brook Club at 347 Madison Avenue.

HESS EASY VICTOR IN BICYCLE RACE

State Champion Takes Two-Mile Handicap on Ocean Parkway Course.

Riding from scratch, George Hess, New York State amateur cycling champion, yesterday captured the two-mile handicap race which featured the handicap cup race series conducted under the auspices of the Empire City Wheelmen at Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn. Hess scored his victory in comparatively easy fashion, leading Walter Heichel, 15-year-old cyclist, by a comfortable margin.

Bill Napier, a veteran cyclist, rode to victory in the quarter-mile race, in which he started with an allowance of forty yards.

In the struggle for points Lake Muller showed the way. He finished third in both the two-mile and quarter-mile events, for eight tallies. Heichel was second with seven, and Hess and Napier tied for third each with six.

Terre Haute Wins Pennant.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Terre Haute won the pennant in the Three-Eye League, which closed its twenty-second season today. Moline, occupant of seventh place this season, won the pennant last year. Decatur was second and Peoria third.

NOTED GOLFERS IN MET. OPEN TOURNEY

Entry List Is Composed of 120, Who Start Play for Title at Lido Wednesday.

One hundred and twenty entries have been received for the annual open championship of the Metropolitan Golf Association, which will be contested over the Lido Club links at Long Beach, L. I., beginning next Wednesday. Many famous players will seek the honors over the famous seaside links—honors which were won last Summer by Bob MacDonald of Bob o' Link. The most noted pair and one which probably will carry practically all of the gallery on the morning of the first day is made up of Gene Sarazen of Pittsburgh, the new national open champion, and Jim Barnes of the Pelham Country Club, who won the title a year ago at Washington. They will start at 10 o'clock.

Among others from out of the district will be Ben Parola of Titusville, Pa., who succeeded Sarazen as professional at that course. Parola has been coming very fast and last week broke the record for his course that was established by the national champion. C. H. Hoffner of the Philmont C. C. is another Pennsylvania entry, together with W. D. Robinson of the Philadelphia Cricket Club and Bert Battell of Johnstown. From overseas is entered Captain H. C. Tippet of the Royal North Devon, England.

SLAVERY AND TYRANNY.

No better example of clear thinking and plain speaking have we for a long time had than Governor MILLER's address at Johnstown on Saturday. Grappling directly with the fundamentals of the strikes and of labor-union policies, he drew the proper distinctions and pointed out the essential needs. Compulsory work is as far as possible from the Governor's thought. To force a man to labor when he preferred to leave his job would be slavery. On that point Mr. MILLER agrees with Mr. GOMPERS. But the Governor went on to argue that workingmen engaged in producing the necessaries of life cannot be permitted to conspire together to rob or terrorize the public. That would be to set up a tyranny within the State—a thing fully as intolerable and abhorrent as slavery.

With great vigor and boldness Governor MILLER asserted that a searching test of American democratic institutions will lie in the spirit and the methods by which is met in the near future this great problem of reconciling liberty with authority and with the safeguarding of the general welfare. He had only scorn for those labor politicians who threatened him with punishment at the polls if he continued to make use of the State Constabulary to maintain order when it was disturbed by industrial troubles. The labor leaders have barked up the wrong tree if they think to frighten or sway Governor MILLER. His words throughout were those of truth and soberness. His impartiality, his incisiveness and his firm grasp of realities were in refreshing contrast with the timid and dodging attitude of too many Congressmen. Most of all do they shine by comparison with the utterances of Mr. GOMPERS, rising up in behalf of the oppressed poor at the Hotel Ambassador, Atlantic City.

A NEFARIOUS PLOT.

With true British perfidy, Mr. H. A. L. FISHER has taken advantage of the absence of Mr. HUGHES in Brazil to try to get poor old Uncle Sam into an involvement. The Assembly of the League of Nations is trying to get Europe to go on with the work of disarmament which has already been well begun. That alone can be construed as an insult to America, since, if Europe disarms, her head-shaking volunteer advisers on this side of the Atlantic will have lost one of their chief topics of conversation. A convention was lately signed regulating the traffic in arms. Mr. HUGHES, in reply to a request that America associate herself with the signatories of the convention, declined, as was his duty, but declined politely. Europe is now presuming on this courtesy by wondering if there is not some other way in which America can be persuaded to work with the League for the suppression of a trade which makes a great deal of trouble, but which cannot be suppressed without our consent. The moral seems to be, Never be polite to Europe.

But the crafty FISHER goes further than this. It is known that when the naval limitation treaties were signed at Washington last Winter there was talk of trying to get their provisions extended so as to apply to the minor naval Powers not represented at the conference. The most convenient method for treating with these Powers en masse is through the League of Nations, to which virtually all of them belong. Mr. FISHER suggests that the League try to find out if America won't co-operate at least to this extent, and also give the League the benefit of its advice on land disarmament.

It will be obvious to the Hiram Johnsons and Jim Reeds that this is probably the most dangerous threat against our liberties since the Battle of New Orleans. It is subtle, as European diplomacy is apt to be. It is based on the understanding that the Washington conference is about the only achievement of the Harding Administration, to date, which seems likely to defy the ravages of time until November, 1924. To extend and complete the work of that conference would be another triumph for an Administration which is going to need all the triumphs it can get. Mr. FISHER evidently hopes that the Administration's ambition may induce it eventually to co-operate with the League, which, as Dr. NANSEN brutally pointed out, is the only League there is—Mr. HARDING'S Association of Nations being still in the future, or, rather, in the past.

It is a very Machiavellian plot, for its devisers probably count on the Administration's desire to make some sort of compensation to the pro-League Republicans who were so admirably gold-bricked in 1920. But here, we think, the European plotters overreach themselves. The pro-League Republicans are all in the fold. They may not have liked their medicine, but they had to swallow it. As for the rest of the conspiracy, we feel confident that the Administration will let the results of the Washington conference remain incomplete rather than admit that the League exists after Mr. LODGE has said it is dead. In the meantime, however, all good patriots should be on guard lest Europe disarm of its own accord and deprive us of our grievance.

ELECTRICITY AND GAS.

Tonight there will be a banquet celebrating the birthday of the electric light industry. That is no novelty in the experience of EDISON. His genius has created several industries which are distinguished from most other modern improvements in that they owe their conception and development to an individual rather than to co-operation of many minds and improvement in details rather than to basic conception. Other inventors have contributed details to the electric light, but that does not alter the fact that there would have been nothing to improve without EDISON'S original idea, and that it was full fledged from its infancy. From the beginning engines and dynamos were coupled as a unit and devices arranged to prevent variation in voltage and candle power. He provided safety fuses from the start and underground distribution, which others of authority thought impossible. The service could not have been supplied without a method of measuring it for payment, and he provided a scientific and practical meter. Economy and efficiency were secured from the first day by the mechanical handling of coal and ashes.

But not even EDISON foresaw the future of his invention. Otherwise he never would have provided a plant which at first supplied hardly more than a thousand lamps. The same plant now serves 21,500,000, and that is only a small fraction of the total industry. A single company now sells annually $93,000,000 worth of lamps. The public paid a half billion for light which would have cost two billions last year alone, if it could have been furnished at all on the methods which electricity displaced. Of twenty million of homes in the nation eight millions are wired for electric lighting, and wherever the electric light goes there also goes capacity for all sorts of power.—There are twenty million electric appliances in use in this country and hardly a fraction of them would have been possible unless the electric light had led the way for sweepers, washing and ironing machines, sewing machines, and even ranges.

It is not a little singular that the use of gas has shown an increase smaller than but almost as surprising as the growth of electricity in every year of this century, with the single and natural exception of the coal strike year 1902. In 1901 the consumption of gas was 101,000,000,000 cubic feet. In 1920 it was 319,000,000,000. What gas has lost in lighting use it has more than made good by application to domestic and industrial heat uses. The candle power has yielded to the heat value as the unit of supply and cost, and the flat rate for all consumers has yielded to methods adapted to increase the use by the largest consumers. Gas is as superior to oil as electricity is to gas. If the mantle can adapt gas to heat as well as it can to light, it will set a stride which it will be difficult for electricity to beat. It is not to be forgotten that more homes are piped than are wired, and there will be no such difficulty in using more gas as there still is in using more electricity, due to the cost of wiring.

TOO QUICK DESPAIRER!

Sad news, if true, is sent from Washington. Mr. JOSEPH WARREN FORDNEY, Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has consented to let American valuation, the apple of his eye and his tariff, disappear or survive only in the wretched residuum of it in the McCumber bill. Last April Mr. FORDNEY gave solemn warning that "it would be American valuation or Congress will stay here till the snow flies." Last week the Republican whip ordered all the Republican absentees to be back in Washington today. The Republicans of the House were to stand like a rock against the Republicans of the Senate. Whatever may be thought of American valuation—and most of us think meanly of it—who could have expected to see Mr. FORDNEY'S basaltic resolution turn to butter?

He holds or held that American valuation is the one and only impregnable base of a real tariff. Has the dauntless one fled from such a base? Has he, long inured to the rigor of the Saginaw Winter, dreaded the first feeble Washington snowfall? One hates to believe it. One hates to lose an illusion. Even if all weaker knees deserted American valuation, Mr. FORDNEY should be its Casabianca. Not till they see confirmation of the tale strong as proofs of Holy Writ will the good credit it. Even if it be true, and the friends of foreign valuation conquer in conference and on the floor, it will be a consolation for all admirers of this stern and rockbound protectionist that there is balm for his disappointment, for, under whatever system laid, the duties imposed by either House or Senate bill—though the latter has heaped Himalaya upon Himalaya—are so mountainous that, if ROSWELL D. HOBB or Pig Iron KELLEY could now revisit Washington, he would rub his dazed eyes to find himself almost a free trader by comparison.

RUSSIA'S REAL WEALTH.

During the dazzling display of the Russian Crown jewels a Bolshevik dropped a gem of a remark. Apropos of a diadem of ears of wheat he said: "This is the true wealth of Russia; not platinum, nor diamonds wrung from the sweat of workers, but Russia's own natural grain, her noblest jewel." But Russia is despoiled of that real wealth as truly as of the Czarist jewels. She can endure the loss of her public jewels far better than the near famine which all Russians must suffer so long as the Soviets are implacable in their policies.

The real robbery of Russia is not the confiscation of what exists, but the drying up of the sources of production. The country districts will not sustain the cities and the cities will not sustain the country until each produces a surplus above its necessities. Property and profits are the mainspring of human activities. The nation which is administered only for the benefit of the proletariat is doomed to perpetual poverty for all. Machinery is the sole hope of abundance for the poor, and machinery cannot be had without capital and reward for capital. The doctrines which have produced apparent scarcity, if not actual famine, in Europe's chief granary are the true destroyers of Russia's wealth.

PANDEMIC CHEMISTRY.

Some of the war gases are being put to peace-time uses in freeing whole forests of pests, in clearing swamps of mosquitos and in ridding fields of certain rodents. This but suggests the innumerable ways in which modern chemistry is coming to the help of man in agriculture, in industry, and in the convenience and comfort of living. And the standing army of chemists is not only growing but is becoming a great defensive force for which the colleges and universities are the chief recruiting centres. There has just been held in Pittsburgh a national meeting of American chemists under the presidency of "the best beloved chemist of America," Dr. EDGAR SMITH, Professor Emeritus of the University of Pennsylvania. If the authors of the papers presented had alone been in attendance, the audience would have been both considerable and distinguished, for there were 457 papers included in the program besides the informal discussions.

The range of the subjects will indicate into what a varied ministry this once black art has come as a science. There were thirty-one papers in the field of biological chemistry having to do with the nutritive value of foods, with ferments and molds, with energy expenditures, and with the curious and illusive ways of vitamins. Incidentally, the baking industry is rapidly coming under scientific control. There were twenty papers on fertilizers, forty on industrial and engineering chemistry, twenty-six on gas and fuel, and twenty-one on that widely used product whose structural formula is not yet known, cellulose. Then there were twenty-four papers on petroleum, its problems or products; thirteen on sugar, fourteen on medicinal products, twenty-four on dyes and their uses, eight on water, sewage and sanitation, twenty-four on leather and twenty-three on rubber. Only a few years ago anything relating to rubber was as secret as Friar BACON'S concoctions, but now nearly all the great companies have contributed of their special knowledge to the common good.

In addition, there were more than a hundred papers on subjects in both physical and organic chemistry, representing what is called pure science, though it is significant that the Chairmen of both these sections were associated with an industrial company. There were also eleven papers that had to do with the history of chemistry, as ful. of incident and romance in its stories of man's scientific wanderings in the real land of the atomic lilliputians as Gulliver's imagined travels or the Arabian Nights.

Topping all was a paper by Professor WILDER A. BANCROFT on "Pandemic Chemistry," the suggested purpose of which is to teach all who will listen, not to be chemists, but rather to know about chemistry. Every boy and girl and in time every man and woman should through school, newspaper, book and magazine have this knowledge. If our high school students were to approach the science in this way, they would have a larger view than if they tried to grasp the complex problems of atomic structure and to fill their minds with the names of elements; then, too, more of them might be inspired to study it. The great chemical exposition to be held this week in the Grand Central Palace gives the public an opportunity to get some comprehension of what the vast range of this science now is. Such knowledge should become "pandemic."

GOLF IN AMERICA.

It seems to be conceded by all that the amateur golf championship, won by SWEETSER on Saturday, reached a higher level of play than was ever seen in a similar contest, in this country or in Great Britain. Few of the admired and renowned heroes of the links of other days could have stood long before the onset of our modern youthful prodigies. The course at Brookline is not the most severely testing that could be named, but even at Pine Valley, which BERNARD DARWIN declares to be the most difficult golf layout he ever saw, and at the National Links at Southampton, where trouble lies thick, our modern school of golfers showed their superiority.

At Brookline there were four prominent British entrants—two former champions and two who had held the position of runner-up. One of them unfortunately failed to qualify and the others faded from the scene early. As in the previous international matches for the Walker Cup, the Americans exhibited far the better game. This means a great advance since the years, not so long ago, when the foreign foeman trembled when he heard the sound of a British cleek.

A GRAMMARIAN'S FUNERAL.

What means this sudden illumination of The House of a Thousand Candles? Every one is burning with a thousand-candle power, and all bring into a shameful, pitiless light the strange and sinister phrase, "different than." If anywhere the English language is to make its last rally, it will be in Indiana, its capital, its heart. And who so worthy to fight for it as Mr. MEREDITH NICHOLSON, most persuasive and pervasive of Hoosiers? He unbares his troubles in a letter to our neighbor, The Herald:

> Within a few years the abominable phrase "different than" has spread through the country like a pestilence. In my own Indiana, where the wells of English undefiled are jealously guarded, the infection has awakened general alarm. It was never in our Hoosier dialect; our Scotch-Irish ancestors didn't bring it to the Wabash.

Home-keeping youth or old folks have homely wits. Many of us have never heard this interesting expression, "different than." Is it registered in Mr. MENCKEN'S great compendium of and commentary on the American language? The French creoles of Old Vincennes must have said "different de." Not from them or their descendants can the expression have come to the Wabash. The English Commandant at Detroit, HAMILTON, captured Vincennes; but he must have said "different to," just as THACKERAY did, just as many or most Englishmen do. GEORGE ROGERS CLARK, who captured HAMILTON and Vincennes, may have brought the phrase from Boonsborough or the Falls of the Ohio or back-country Virginia. According to our humorous dictionaries, this is an "English colloquialism." Our learned American philologist in England, the late FITZEDWARD HALL, described "different to" as the result of euphony or the unconscious desire for euphony. Regarded in the light of "efficiency," the abracadabra of this age, "different to" should have been American, "different from" should have been English, if it is true that our English brethren are slower-paced than we.

"Different than" didn't need to be invented, if it didn't exist. Mr. NICHOLSON says that "now it may be heard daily," even in the Capital of Letters. School teachers use it. College graduates use it. He "lately" heard it employed by an alumnus "of Yale." Mr. NICHOLSON doesn't hide his mischievous purpose in revealing this awful secret, and probably he is much less worried about intruding and spreading "different than" than the charm and spirit with which he can't help writing make him seem. "Different than" arises, clearly, from the notion of comparison in the adjective. It isn't pretty. What of it? Neither was Chief Justice SHAW. It seems superfluous, yet the English language revels in a wealth of synonymous expressions.

If "different than" really be spread over the country, its fate can't be settled, though all the professors and all the grammarians and Indiana itself make a solemn league and covenant against it. It may flourish for a season and then be cut off, as the wicked should. It may rise from "slang" to "vulgarism," "colloquialism," be pushed into good society, and fall at length from the purest and most prismatic mouths and pens. Many of our most respectable words were tramps and outcasts once. If we are willing to cry, with Mr. NICHOLSON, "Blacksheep! Blacksheep!" at "different than," it is with full comprehension of the fact that the excellent tribe of grammarians, the precisians and all others who strive to be correct and correctors, have as much power to prohibit a single word or phrase as a gray squirrel has to put out Orion with a flicker of its tail. Against the supreme god, usage, even Indiana fights in vain.

PRICES IN KENTUCKY.

The eighteen-year-old Kentucky girl whose attempted elopement led her grandfather to offer a reward of a hundred dollars "for her detention unmarried" has been detained in time by an automobile accident, and thereby some delicate legal and economic problems are brought to the front. Who detained her? Not the person who first identified her after the break-down, but the maker of the automobile. Hard as it may seem to deliver good Kentucky money to some Detroit millionaire, a nice sense of honor could find no other way out.

Those who know or have heard of the surpassing merit of Kentucky girls may be disturbed to find them quoted at only a hundred dollars apiece on the hoof, but this is probably a matter of supply and demand. The crop is large in Kentucky and the price declines accordingly. Nor should defenders of the sanctity of matrimony object to the stipulation that this reward would be paid only for a return unmarried. A good wife is more precious than rubies, and a valuation which might correspond to current economic conditions so long as the lady is only under option would be absurd if she had once promised to love, honor and obey. Young women who think this price affronts their sex ought to stop and wonder if their grandfathers would ever offer a hundred dollars for their return. Greenwich Village is, or used to be, largely populated by those who have been bribed to stay away from home.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Another Plot Discovered.

In spite of all the pessimistic talk that can, and indeed must, be heard these days, the country, if not exactly safe, is in no immediate danger and will be in none as long as Councilman JAMES A. WATSON of Boston is on guard—or on deck, if the more colloquial expression be preferred. Being a Bostonian, Mr. WATSON frequently consults the dictionary, and he looks there for more than help in the spelling of hard words. At any rate, he found more, recently, when he had occasion to read what the big book that still bears the honored name of WEBSTER had to say about that precious vocable, "Constitution." Besides the spelling, he discovered, as he promptly informed the Boston Public Library in a letter demanding the exclusion of this hitherto respected volume from its shelves, that the dictionary "is a part and parcel of the Anglo-Saxon, monarchical propaganda which is insidiously undermining the sturdy Americanism of this country and weaning its people away from the standards set by the Revolutionary fathers."

What's more, he proved it up to, and even beyond, the hilt by showing that secret plotters, British or bought by British gold, have dared to replace the noble phrases of the old editions with others only too successfully designed to make the youth of the land hate and despise its institutions.

America Now Forgotten.

Old NOAH, Mr. WATSON disclosed to the library authorities, took pains to say that "in free States the Constitution is paramount to laws enacted by the Legislature, limiting and controlling its powers, and in the United States Government the Legislature is created and its powers designated." But does the dictionary called WEBSTER'S say that now? Far from it. Instead appear these awful words:

> The principal or fundamental laws which govern a State or other organized bodies of men, and are embodied in written documents, or are implied in the institutions and customs of the country or society.

Is it any wonder that Councilman WATSON shudders at such a change and that with impassioned eloquence he exclaims:

> Not a word about the Union, the United States or anything really American. It is as British as London Bridge. It is just one more straw which shows how the Anglo-Saxon wind is blowing. It is one more attempt to undermine the old ideals upon which this Union was founded, and to set up an Anglo-Saxon monarchy under the name of the United States of America.

Only His Children Worrying.

Nothing better could illustrate, perhaps, the extent of the somethme Kaiser-a fall than the fact that when he, once all-powerful and indisputable, but now only a lonely old man, is moved to marry again, just as so many other lonely old men have been, he encounters exactly the sort of opposition from his children that a like intention excites in social circles which he once would have considered almost infinitely far below his own.

There have been rumors again and again, since the former Kaiserin died, of an approaching marriage at Doorn. These reports hitherto all have been denied officially, but that is far from proving that there was nothing in them. The latest story names a handsome, flaxen-haired Princess, widowed and with children of her own, as the object of the deposed monarch's affections, and this time the usual denials are not forthcoming. Instead there are published detailed accounts to the effect that WILLIAM'S sons and daughters are seriously alarmed and are hastening to Doorn with vehement protests.

Their plea is that such a marriage would be injurious to dynastic interests by unduly complicating the prospects of a monarchical restoration. As both the interests and the prospects are little more than the misty imaginings of a hope which even the Hohenzollern heirs must know are vain, the chances are that the real fear is of a further division to be made of such property as still remains in the Kaiser's hands. That is what usually embitters the dislike of a stepmother felt by adult stepchildren, and there is no reason to doubt that it is at work in this case.

In this instance, as in most others like it, the sympathy of outsiders will be with the father, not with the children. The general tendency now is to hold the Kaiser weak and unfortunate rather than fiendish, and to feel that if he wants to marry—and anybody will marry him—why shouldn't he? Why that should not be the feeling of his offspring is perfectly comprehensible, however, and certainly they will prevent his marriage if they can.

At Least They Are to Be Tried.

With fifty-eight inhabitants of Williamson County indicted as murderers for their participation in the Herrin massacres, it no longer can be said that the Illinois State authorities are either unwilling or unable to act against criminals who are protected by the public sentiment of their vicinage. Indictment by a Grand Jury is one thing, however, and the obtaining of convictions from petty juries is quite another.

It is still to be demonstrated, therefore, that the killing of non-union miners in that particular county can be punished. That the indicted men would there get a fair trial is considerably more than doubtful, but of course it is not they, but the prosecution, that would want a change of venue, and to get that will be difficult if not impossible.

As it happens, not all of the killing was done by the strikers. Theirs was the sensational and wholesale slaughter, but guns were used first by the mine guards and some of the mine officials were provocative and the reverse of tactful. The illegal acts on both sides have been the subject of seemingly honest and thorough investigation, and the numerous indictments at least prove that Williamson County is not beyond the reach of justice, as was the boastful claim of the miners during and for some time after the massacres.

Catholics in Ireland.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have never entered the Irish controversy, and do not intend to do so now, but the reported statement of Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the Lord Mayor of Cork, which reads in part, "The Church has been a bad influence in Ireland. For the last thirty years, or until 1916, it had enormous power, * * * the priests are afraid of losing their power, that is why they are against the Irish Republic," should not be allowed to pass without some comment.

Cardinal Logue and the Bishops of Ireland supported the Free State proposals because they represent the sanest and the best element in Ireland, and from a spiritual standpoint a world-wide church which believes in rendering to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's.

The Catholic Church has been a constructive power in Ireland for many years, and if the Irish people have not lost their aspiration for national life it is on account of the conservative work of the Catholic Church.

I can assure the widow of the Catholic Lord Mayor of Cork that any money she may raise, either in France or in this country, by attacking the Catholic Church will prove for her cause a curse and not a blessing. WILLIAM E. KERRIGH.

An Alien's Citizenship.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To refresh the mind of F. C. P. regarding the constitutional rights of a naturalized citizen, which he apparently would deny, I would quote this amendment to the Constitution:

Article XIV.—Citizenship Rights Not to Be Abridged. 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

I am not a Gomperaite, but if that venerable gentleman chooses to air his views in a lawful fashion let him do it. Every citizen is entitled to empty his lungs. Let F. C. P. read a good book on Government, and then light his pipe and think.

Automobile Cases in Court.

To the Editor of the New York Times:

Homicide cases arising out of automobile accidents in the Magistrates' Courts of New York, from the standpoint of criminal law, are most difficult. It is very hard to make out even a prima facie case, for the reason that each case must be approached on the assumption that the chauffeur or driver had no intention of committing a crime, so that everything depends entirely upon facts out of which criminal intention may be inferred. In spite of the difficulties involved these cases are presented by deputy assistants assigned to these courts who are, as a rule, the most inexperienced men attached to the District Attorney's staff.

One Price for Men and Eggs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Gompers makes his war cry "Organize—Organize—Organize." May I suggest that the retail grocers organize and fix just one price for eggs, whether they be good, bad or indifferent. When Mr. Gompers buys eggs for his own use, tell him that they got the one-price idea from him. When one wants a carpenter or mason, the boss mason sends one or more men, and the men have to be accepted whether they be good, bad or indifferent.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why, may I ask, are the permanent benches along Riverside Drive, on the river front by Grant's Tomb, being placed with their backs to the beautiful river? Does no one care for the wonderful sunsets and the outlook across and up and down the Hudson in preference to that on a city street?

THE SONNET.

As some old, rare and mellowed instrument
That master hands, dust long ago, have played,
So is the sonnet: I am half afraid
My very touch may seem irreverent;
For, as some ancient jar keeps redolent
With dust of roses that bloomed but to fade,
So is the sonnet's sweetness poignant made
With dust of great ones who before us went.

In it old Petrarch made his lover's moan;
Will Shakespeare made a form of it his own:
Blind Milton, Wordsworth and the lyric Keats
Are of the dead that live still in its beats.
When to a sonnet I put humble pen,
I summon back the great to earth again.

ROSELLE MERCIER MONTGOMERY.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

A Growing Sense of Injustice in Hasty Orders of Restraint.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Commenting upon Mr. Daugherty's injunction against the railway shopmen THE TIMES, after "second thoughts," says:

> "It is already intimated from Washington that the Attorney General himself will ask for alterations [in the terms of the injunction]. He may move to strike out certain parts that are apparently not warranted by Federal law or are in conflict with it, and to omit provisions that, whether legally justified or not, are manifestly absurd and incapable of execution. The Judge has the power and discretion to do this if the Attorney General does not propose it."

Has THE TIMES nothing to say in disapproval of the action of the Attorney General, taken not in haste or precipitately, but two months after the strike, in asking for an injunction containing prohibitions that are "apparently not warranted by Federal law or are in conflict with it"? Has THE TIMES nothing to say in disapproval of the action of a Federal Judge who, out of hand, grants a restraining order simply because the Attorney General asks for it, and in terms in which the Attorney General asks for it, although these terms involve "parts that are apparently not warranted by Federal law or are even in conflict with it" and "provisions that, whether legally justified or not, are manifestly absurd and incapable of execution"?

To be sure, Judge Wilkerson was appointed to the Federal bench only very recently, but he has had long years of experience in Federal practice and can hardly entertain the belief that even upon application for a restraining order a United States Judge has only the ministerial duty of signing on the dotted line—even when the Attorney General of the United States presents the dotted line.

I know that THE TIMES does not underestimate the importance to our national well-being of strengthening respect for and confidence in our courts and in the fair-dealing of the law officers of the country. But does not THE TIMES also see an important correlation between the ominously growing sense of injustice suffered even in our courts and the disregard of "law and order" by the Attorney General of the United States and by a Federal Judge? Restraining orders, granted with careless disregard of law and sense, may, as you suggest, be modified to conform to law; but the evil that they do lives after them. The whole fabric of law is thereby impaired.

Incorporation of Labor Unions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Banks and insurance companies are compelled to incorporate and to comply with certain rules and regulations as a condition precedent to existence. Railroads, gas and other public utility companies are strictly regulated, even to the extent of having the rates they are permitted to charge prescribed by public commissions.

Public interest demands that labor unions be incorporated as a condition precedent to their existence, and making them subject to supervision by the State in the public interest. The State ought to have the right to examine the books of any union in the same manner that a bank examiner examines the books of a bank. Sometimes when a bank fails, its officers are held criminally responsible, but under the present state of the law the officers of a labor union appear to be wholly irresponsible.

Although the Supreme Court of the United States held in the Coronado mining case that labor unions were suable as an organization, yet a number of State courts have reached the opposite conclusion. This means that if labor unions in States where they are not suable perpetrate an outrage such as that at Herrin, civil redress is practically impossible. In view of the plight in which the Herrin outrage places Illinois, the next Illinois Legislature ought to pass a law making it compulsory for labor unions to incorporate, and prescribe for their regulation after incorporation.

Approval of the Injunction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If only the public had some way of expressing in concert their approval of the action of Attorney General Daugherty in obtaining the injunction against interference with those who would exercise their right to work! Mr. Gombers and the unions express themselves as loudly against such action that President Harding and the Attorney General might think it the voice of the people and fear a mistake had been made in trying to protect the unorganized public, but fortunately our President believes in doing the right as he sees it. But how is he to feel the approval of the many who merely think he has done the right thing? This is just one voice of appreciation of this action.

A Limited Vocabulary.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mark Sullivan's statement that the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt did not use profanity has created a deal of discussion. I knew Colonel Roosevelt when he was a Police Commissioner in New York and came into rather intimate contact with him from that time until his death. I have been with him while he was in paroxysms of anger and while he was in equally violent paroxysms of pleasure; for his emotions were ever strong. Colonel Roosevelt was never remarkable for self-restraint, nor for hesitating to give full utterance to his feelings. In all those years I never heard Colonel Roosevelt curse or swear.

Martial Law at Terminals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is manifest that the injunction obtained by the Attorney General will be ineffective for the purposes sought even if sustained by the courts in face of the Clayton act. Would it not be simpler and more effective for the President to declare the rights of way, terminals and all other properties of the railroads under martial law, enforcing the same with Federal troops? Such action is now justified by the lawless acts of the strikers and their sympathizers and by their open hostility to the Government.

Responsibilities of Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Sailors who strike at sea are tried for mutiny. Soldiers who strike are tried as deserters. The public forbids firemen, policemen and postmen to strike. Will not public opinion soon be against allowing railroad employes or coal miners to strike?

It is left to each man to choose what he will do. In peaceful times no one is forced to be a soldier. But a man having chosen to work on railroads or in mines should stay at his job the way a sailor or policeman has to.

CONSPIRING TO STRIKE.

Lawful Acts of the Individual May Become Unlawful in Combination.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial of today on "Uncivilized Strike Methods" goes to the seat of the disorder. The action by the Department of Justice is directed only at the symptoms of the disease. The iniquity is in the strike itself.

We have submitted to such primitive coercive methods so long and so supinely that it would seem we have come to accept the consequences as something incidental and unavoidable, and listen with all seriousness while Gompers or some other advocate, knowing no interest or moral code but his own, declaims about the sacred right to strike. There never was a greater fallacy. The right of an individual to quit work and to remain idle if he can afford to do so without becoming a public charge is unquestioned. Not a few persons seem to believe that all lawful acts may likewise be lawfully done in regulated combinations with others, yet it is a principle of the law of all civilized nations that not only unlawful acts become the more criminal if done by combinations of many, but that lawful acts may become unlawful by combination, if the just exercise of the rights of others or of the lawful operations and necessary intercourse of society is thereby infringed. Such a combination is conspiracy, and the conspiracy is committed when such a combination has been entered into, though no further combined act may have taken place.

No normal individuals would expect to take their private disagreement into the public highway, and there hold up traffic while they fought out their differences. The law is adequate for such a contingency. It would be a breach of the peace. Any peace officer would be able to recognize it as such, and the individuals concerned would be promptly apprehended and the crowd dispersed. By what process of reasoning is it that by multiplying the individuals by a hundred or a thousand the mob becomes immune? The strike is a manifestation of the mob and of the mob spirit. It is a caricature of Government when the mob claims exemption from law. One of the main objects of all justice is protection by the interposition of law between blinding interest or excited passion and the object complained of. The mob tramples down this wall of safety. It disregards the rights of property. It seeks to overawe Legislatures and courts of justice. The time has come when mob methods for the settlement of disputes between employer and employe, whether in public or private employment, intrastate as well as interstate, should be forever done away with. It is a survival of barbarism and has no place in an organized State.

Before we can compel the employe, unionized or ununionized, to abandon primitive, illegal, uncivilized and unsocial methods we must provide adequate means and methods of adjudication, determination and enforcement of remedies in all cases of difference or dispute which now customarily result in the walkout, shutout, strike and other blackmail, blackjack and coercive methods.

Believing, with you, that the people have taken to heart the mischief of strikes, and that if the way were indicated would give more than verbal expression to "Never Again," the following is offered as a basis of approach:

The Platform—That the public peace and security of life, liberty and property are not henceforth to be disturbed or threatened by strikes or shutouts. To that end,

(a) There shall be established an industrial court, with jurisdiction to hear and determine all of the infinite variety of questions which are usually stated to be the occasion of so-called industrial disputes, making the jurisdiction of this court as broad as the circumstances require, and with powers of enforcement by all the means provided to our courts of broadest jurisdiction.

(b) The enforcement, through appropriate legislation, of publicity in respect to the proceedings and records of the labor unions. The public has the right to know what funds are being collected and accumulated, and for what purpose funds are being used and what orders are being issued. Whether forced to incorporate or not makes little difference, so long as the public supervision and information in respect to the transactions of the unions be secured.

(c) Appropriate legislation to prohibit any employer, individual or corporation from acting as collecting agency for any labor union, for dues or other contributions from its employes.

(d) Prohibition of Strikes—To prohibit by appropriate legislation any agreement, combination or concurrent action by two or more persons for the purpose or with the intent or in effect tending in any manner to prevent, interfere with, limit or curtail the production, transportation or distribution of any necessary of life, or other article or product of general use or consumption;

And providing, furthermore, that any person, either individually or in his capacity as an officer, agent, employe or otherwise of any organization, corporation, association or other affiliation, who shall issue, publish or otherwise communicate or cause to be issued, published or otherwise communicated any order, call, notice or information, or do any other act or thing, with intent to further, encourage, direct, authorize or permit any such action as heretofore prohibited, shall be guilty, &c., with appropriate penalties for violation.

Before public opinion would back such a program in its enactment, in the first instance, and still more important in its enforcement, the reasonableness and justice of the provisions must be made apparent. That must be shown by the provisions for the establishment and jurisdiction of the industrial court, a court in which there would be no technicalities of pleading or of practice, which would make the resort to the strike wanton and wholly unnecessary to any one man or group of men seeking justice.

If we can provide that sort of tribunal and jurisdiction (and they have been able to do it in Kansas), he alone could complain whose purposes require the methods of the hold-up rather than the persuasion of reason and justice.

SAYS CHURCH NEEDS TO REVIVE HEALING

Committee Report to Episcopal Convention Emphasizes Faith in Power of Prayer.

WOULD NOT BAR DOCTORS

Declares Best Results Follow Co-operation of Pastor and Physician and Patient's Faith.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 10.—Both the duty and the need of the fuller recognition in its largest sense of the ministry of healing in the Episcopal Church are clear and pressing, according to the report to the triennial convention which was made public today of the Joint Committee to consider the fuller recognition of the ministry of healing in the Episcopal Church.

The Chairman of the committee is Bishop Boyd Vincent of Michigan, and Bishop Manning of New York City is a member. The report is expected to cause a lively discussion. The committee has been at work three years.

"Your committee," says the report, "confidently reaffirms these propositions:

"That God has infinite blessings of power in store for those who seek them by prayer, communion and active trust; that both the clergy and the laity of the church have too often failed to turn to God with such complete trust as will draw these powers into full service; that Christ still fulfills, in Christian experience, His power to give life and to give it more abundantly; that the faith which realizes His presence is capable of creating a heightened vitality of spirit which strengthens and sustains the health of the body; that what he was less than the spirit of man was included in the work of redemption; that the restoration of harmony of man's mind and will with the divine will often brings with it the restoration of the body; that the full power of the church for corporate intercession in this connection has been too little realized; and that confidence in the efficacy of prayer for restoration of health has not been sufficiently encouraged.

Calls for Faith in Power of Prayer.

"Here, then is the first great need of the Church today in the revival of her ministry of healing. She must renew and set more confidently and constantly on her faith in power of prayer. * * * and especially in the power of her corporate intercession, to heal the sick, whatever the means or process by which the blessing comes.

"But with this strong faith in the contributory power of prayer, the Church must not lose sight of the other truth that medical science is the handmaid of God and the Church in this matter, and should be fully recognized as the normal means appointed by God for the cure and healing of the body. She must be thankful for all progress made in medicine, surgery, nursing, hygiene and sanitation. She must believe that all these means of healing and preventing disease and removing suffering are gifts which come from God and are to be used faithfully also for the welfare of mankind. Experience as well as reason shows that the best results are to be expected where there is a cordial co-operation of the pastor and doctor with the patient's perfect faith in the value of the ministrations of both.

"'Special' gifts of healing must be recognized, too. There can be no question of the mysterious influence of one unique personality upon another personality, and often for good in the case of the sick. How far such gifts correspond today to those recognized in the Holy Scripture and what the true nature of their power is whether spiritual, or psychic, or physical, or all three, is very uncertain. But in these days, when science is revealing such mysterious inter-actual actions of the human mind and body it seems the part of wisdom in the Church not to commit herself hastily and officially to any opinion or form of these phenomena. But she has the right to say to any her own clergy and laity who believe that they possess such powers of healing that they should prepare themselves by care and prayer, and even medical study for their proper and safe exercise and to use them with the approval of their Bishop and in sympathetic conference with qualified Christian physicians.

"Prayer Groups" Endorsed.

"'Prayer groups' for intercessory prayer for the sick, even with the laying of hands on patients present, seem, in many cases, worthy of all encouragement; provided that the leader, clerical or lay, does not recklessly assume in every case to be himself a 'healer'; provided that the manual act is regarded as only symbolic; provided that beneficial results are in simple faith, mainly left to God and not claimed, except on the certificate of a reputable physician familiar with the particular case.

"Of unction for the sick, based on St. Mark, verse 13, and St. James, v., 14, your committee spends with much hesitation, and, in regard to certain existing opinion and practice in this matter, only with passion. It would point out, however, that St. James emphatically connects the 'saving of the sick' with the prayer of faith, and that, as we know nothing of the anointing of the sick by our Lord or by His disciples after Pentecost and therefore no direct authority over the 'St. James emphatically connects the 'saving of the sick' with the prayer of faith,' and that, as we know nothing of the anointing of the sick by our Lord or by His disciples after Pentecost and therefore no direct authority for the use of unction for the sick until the fourth century, it cannot be assumed that the rite commended by St. James was intended for general or lasting use.

"But if by fuller recognition,' &c., is meant more than spiritual sympathy with every legitimate effort to revive the Church's faith in the power of her own ministry of healing—if it means this Church's official provision of stated forms of administration to the sick besides those already authorized in her Book of Common Prayer—then your committee would remind the Church that in several of the proposed revised offices in the Prayer Book and also in the proposed book of offices authorized by the House of Bishops in 1916, there are now prayers and other forms of pastoral ministration to the sick much more simple, direct and reassuring than heretofore.

"Your committee, in the words of the Lambeth Conference of 1908, does not recommend the sanctioning (at present) of the anointing of the sick as a rite of the Church; nor advise the prohibition of the anointing, if anointing be earnestly desired by the sick person; only care must be taken that no return be made to the later custom of anointing as a preparation for death."

In view of the request of the Lambeth Conference of 1920 to the Archbishop of Canterbury to appoint a committee 'to consider and report upon the use with prayer of the laying of hands, of the unction of the sick, and other spiritual means of healing, the findings of such a committee to be reported forthwith (but not yet reported) to the authorities of the national, provincial and regional churches of the Anglican Communion,' your committee does recommend that no further formal action be taken on these subjects by this Church at present."

Revision Up This Week.

The matter of revision of the prayer book will occupy much of this week in the conference.

This morning bishops preached in all Episcopal Churches of Portland and visiting and some of the local church bishops occupied the pulpits of other denominational churches.

The convention sermon was preached this morning in Trinity Church by Bishop Tuttle, who is presiding bishop of the Church.

Most of the 4,000 Episcopalians here went to holy communion early this morning. This afternoon there was a service of Sunday schools in the municipal auditorium. The principal address was by Bishop Rowe of Alaska. This evening there was a mass meeting in the auditorium, at which the speakers included Bishop Reese of Georgia, Bishop Wise of Kansas, the Rev. Dr. George C. Stewart of Evanston, and Judge P. B. Winter of Boise, Ida.

Tomorrow morning the House of Bishops will continue consideration of the resignation of the Right Rev. Robert L. Paddock as bishop of Eastern Oregon.

SULGRAVE VISITORS BRING BRITISH BUSTS

Statues of Pitt, Burke and Bryce Will Be Presented to American People.

SEND RADIO TO PRESIDENT

Delegation Headed by Sir Charles Wakefield Expresses Hope for Mrs. Harding's Recovery.

The White Star liner Adriatic arrived late yesterday from Liverpool with eight members of the British branch of the Sulgrave Institution who have come to present statues of Edmund Burke, William Pitt and Jane Bryce to the American people. The delegation includes Sir Charles Wakefield, former Lord Mayor of London, and Lady Wakefield, donors of the statues, and Miss Wakefield; Sir Arthur Allington Haworth, Junior Lord of the Treasury; Harold Spender, journalist and originator of the plan to send the statues to America; Sir William Letts and H. S. Perris, Director of the British Sulgrave Institution.

The party was met at the pier by John A. Stewart, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Sulgrave Institution here; Lucien Turcotte Picaud, Canadian M. P., and Mrs. Picaud; MacCallum Grant, Lieutenant Governor of Nova Scotia, and Mrs. Grant; D. B. Edwards, Acting High Commissioner for Australia in the United States; Mrs. C. B. Lowrie, Miss Ethel Armes, Mrs. F. Eldridge of the Colonial Dames of America, and many other members of the Sulgrave Institution. They were driven to the Hotel Biltmore, where an informal reception was held. This morning the delegates will call at the City Hall, where they will be received by a representative of the Mayor, who on account of other municipal engagements has found he could not greet the visitors.

Luncheon at Lawyers' Club.

After a luncheon at the Lawyers' Club the British delegates escorted by Col. William Lloyd, D. S. O., of the British Army, will be driven to the Van Cortlandt Museum, where a reception will be tendered them by the Colonial Dames of America and in the evening they will attend a dinner at the Army and Navy Club, given in their honor by Major Louis Livingston Seamen. Tomorrow they will be entertained at a private luncheon at the Piping Rock Club by Walter Jennings and in the evening they will start for Pittsburgh, where the statue of Pitt is to be unveiled on Sept. 14. After spending two days there the delegates will proceed to Washington, where the bronze statue of Edmund Burke will be unveiled and a statue of Bryce for the Capitol. Another statue of the late Ambassador to the United States and historian will be presented to Trinity Church, New York City.

The British delegates will also visit Minneapolis, Ottawa, Montreal, Louisville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Topeka, Lincoln, Sioux Falls, St. Paul, Duluth, Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo and Niagara Falls before returning to this city to sail for England on Oct. 10.

American Statues in England.

The delegates pointed out last night that American donors have given the St. Gaudens statue of Lincoln at Westminster, the Barnard Lincoln at Manchester, the Houdin statue of Washington in front of the National Gallery, and busts of Washington in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral, the Sulgrave Manor, and in the Liverpool Town Hall.

Harold Spender, who is a writer on The London Daily Chronicle, said that it was his idea to bring the statues of Pitt, Bryce and Edmund Burke to America. The better understanding between the United States and Great Britain today, he said, was the most vital thing for civilization and peace in the world today. Mr. Spender, the author, he added, the progress of the Sulgrave tower will be watched with close interest in England.

Sir Arthur Wakefield is a traveler, author and philanthropist. He played a prominent part in recruiting campaigns during the war. He became Lord Mayor of London in 1915. He is connected with the movement for encouraging the study of Shakespeare in the schools of English-speaking communities throughout the world and took an active part in the celebration of the tercentenaries of Shakespeare and Milton.

During the war he provided some thousands of copies of the plays of Shakespeare for the use of Y. M. C. A. here and abroad. He was also responsible for the printing and distribution of President Wilson's famous Congress speech, a copy of which was sent to every County Council school teacher in London. In connection with the Shakespeare movement, he presented to Dr. Walter Page, the United States Ambassador to the United Kingdom, with a first folio Shakespeare on the occasion of Dr. Page's retirement.

In connection with the tercentenary of Raleigh, he established the Raleigh Foundation for annual lectures on world history, under the auspices of the British Academy, the first lecture under its auspices was delivered by the late Viscount Bryce. He has presented pictures of great interest to the Guildhall Art Gallery, St. Paul's Cathedral and Bow Church, and also a fresco on the subject of "King Alfred Rebuilding the Wells of the City" to the Royal Exchange.

The Burke statue is a replica by George Thomas of the Bristol statue of the great orator by his father, the late Havard Thomas. It will be unveiled by President Harding, on a site given by the American Government at the corner of Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, about Oct. 16. The busts of Chatham and Lord Bryce are by the young British sculptor, W. Reid Dick.

Sir Charles Wakefield, in a talk with the reporters, said:

"Myself and every member of the delegation wish to express sincere sympathy for President Harding and to express the hope for the speedy recovery of Mrs. Harding. We sent a radio message to the White House from the ship this afternoon."

In speaking of the visit of the British Sulgrave delegates to America, Sir Charles said: "The object of the visit, as well as the general object of the Sulgrave Institution, is to promote Anglo-American friendship and understanding."

BARGE CANAL TONNAGE UP.

Grain Shipments From Buffalo Here Increase 1,545,836 Bushels.

ALBANY, Sept. 10.—An increase in the tonnages of freight transported over the New York State barge canal system is announced by the State Department of Public Works in a statement made public today. On the Champlain Canal the tonnage increased 25 per cent. over the corresponding period for last year, and on the Erie Canal the increase this year over 1921 was 40 per cent., the report said. The largest total tonnage of any week of the present season was reported during the week of Sept. 2.

A marked increase in the amount of grain shipped by the canal route was announced. During the present season 7,732,063 bushels have been moved from Buffalo to New York by the canal, an increase of 1,545,836 bushels over those transported during 1921.

RUNS CONSCIENCE FARE BUS

"Pay What You Please" Rule of Massachusetts Innovator.

Special to The New York Times.

FOXBORO, Mass., Sept. 10.—"Pay what you please" has replaced "pay as you enter" as the rule in Foxboro's transportation scheme. One can have an automobile ride anywhere within a ten-mile radius of the town on a "conscience fare."

"Of course, a man may drop a plugged nickle if he has a plugged conscience," says Edgar H. Bristol, local manufacturer, who originated the plan.

As a business proposition the new bus line is not on its feet, but hopes soon to be. The cars were purchased by a bank and mortgaged on proper estimates for depreciation. They showed a deficit of $46 the first week. But during the past week the deficit was only $5.71. The total deficit to date is $111.

RECORD BOLL WEEVIL LOSS.

Its Ravages in 1921 Cut Cotton Output 5,277,000 Bales.

The ravages of the cotton boll weevil were greater in 1921 than ever before and reduced production by 109.1 pounds per acre, according to figures compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture, the loss from all causes, such as climatic conditions, plant diseases, insect pests and defective seed, was 163.1 pounds per acre. The nearest approach to this figure was in 1909 with a loss of 144.9 pounds per acre, and the smallest loss was in 1911 with 91.5 pounds.

It is customary in the cotton trade to estimate the activity of the boll weevil in numbers of bales of cotton, although it is recognized that were the boll weevil nonexistent it would not necessarily follow that the crop would be increased by that figure. Thus, in 1921 the boll weevil was responsible on the acreage planted in preventing the production of 6,277,000 bales. The quantity damaged through other causes is estimated at 4,485,000 bales. The actual crop harvested was 7,954,000 bales. In 1921 the loss on account of the boll weevil was 37 per cent. greater than that in 1920, when the production of 4,956,000 bales was prevented by the pest.

The department has made estimates of the reduction of the cotton crop through boll weevils each year from 1909 to 1921. In 1909 the loss amounted to 1,348,000 bales, according to these estimates. In 1910 the loss was slightly less than in 1909, and in 1911 it was the least of any of these years, having amounted to 538,000 bales. From 1912 to 1919, inclusive, the loss fluctuated between 714,000 bales and 2,994,000 bales, the latter figure having been chalked up against the 1916 crop.

"The economic burden of the boll weevil can be made more understandable perhaps by comparisons," says the department. "For example, the picked crop of cotton lint was 7,954,000 bales in 1922 and the weevil prevented the production of 6,277,000 bales. Hence the damage to the crop was equal to 79 per cent. of the harvested crop.

"The cotton production that the weevil has prevented has greatly increased in the last two years. Expressed as a fraction of the full potential production of cotton, the damage by the boll weevil in 1921 was about 54 per cent., or, in other words, one-third of the potential production was prevented by this voracious pest. One-fifth or 20.5 per cent. represented the weevil damage done in 1920. Before that year the damage ranged from 14.3 per cent. of a potential production in 1916 down to 5.5 per cent. in 1914. Since 1909 the boll weevil became more destructive as the cotton crop than all other causes combined, having caused about 50 per cent. of all the damage to this crop. In 1910 the weevil caused about 50 per cent. of all damage, and in former years much less.

"When all causes of damage to a potential production of cotton are combined, the preceding statements made for the boll weevil alone become greatly enlarged. Therefore other causes of damage should be considered. For example, deficient rainfall, or moisture in the ground, has damaged the cotton crop to the extent of 33.1 pounds per acre when averaged for the years 1909-1921, and excessive moisture has damaged the crop 18.3 pounds in the same period. All climatic causes of damage have reduced the crop by 66.3 pounds per acre on the average.

"The combined damage to a potential cotton production in 1921, estimated at 10,712,000 bales, was greater than the crop actually harvested—7,954,000 bales. In fact, it was equal to the harvest and 34.7 per cent. more, because had there been no causes of damage to the potential cotton crop of 1921 the production would have been 18,666,000 bales instead of 7,954,000 bales, and the crop that was actually secured could have been obtained from 42.6 per cent. of the acreage that was cultivated."

ASKS US TO FIGHT FOR PALESTINE JEW

"USE FORCE IF NECESSARY"

Advocates Also Financial Aid to New Republic Against Arabs and Turks.

Representative Walter M. Chandler of the Nineteenth District, speaking last night at exercises at the Institutional Synagogue, at 67 West 116th Street, to celebrate the ratification of the Palestine mandate by the League of Nations, declared that if it becomes necessary the United States should use force to aid Great Britain in upholding the mandate and maintaining the rights of the Jews against the Arabs and Turks.

"I do not know how things are going to turn out, now that the Turks have defeated the Greeks," said Mr. Chandler. "My confidence is in that great nation, England, and if England finds that the Arabs and Turks may not respect the British mandate and the rights of the Jews, and it may be necessary for Britain to use force, and to call upon the United States, will advocate force, if need be.

"I, of course, donot know how far America may be willing to go in the matter of fighting to uphold the mandate, but I am sure any decent Government at Washington would be willing to help a struggling republic with money and with moral encouragement."

One of the objections voiced in opposition to making Palestine a Jewish homeland, he asserted, was that it violated the principle of self-determination. The population, he said, included 90,000 Jews, 110,000 Christians of all sects, and 500,000 Arabs.

"The Jews have a natural right to the country and I favor their possession and control of it," he went on. "Tell the Arabs to get back onto the land that was given to them by the Allies for their part in the war. If they are not satisfied with the Jewish administration, let them sell their land at a reasonable price and retire into Mesopotamia, and if they will not, then drive them out.

"An extended investigation convinces me that an overwhelming majority of the Jews in the United States are in favor of the establishment of a Jewish national life and homeland in Palestine. It seems to me that this country should give some financial help to the movement. It would be no more than what the United States Government has done for other of the small nations of Europe. It seems to me to be the duty of the richest nation in the world to help it with money in the form of a loan."

Representative Isaac Siegel said it would require 20 years for the promises held forth in the terms of the mandate to be turned into realities. Hard work, courage, hope and faith, he predicted, will accomplish the best things desired in the rebuilding of Palestine. Immigration must be induced to move to it and money provided for its development.

Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein of the institution presided. Rabbi Abraham Goldstein dore Goodman said the unusual achievement of beginning the establishment of Palestine without the usual violent means connected so often with the birth of a new nation promised much for the future. The mandate, he said, has definitely set forth once and for all time the national aspiration of the Jew. Other speakers were Rabbis M. A. Kaplan and S. L. Hurowitz and Dr. Samuel Rottenberg. The institution was assisted in the Palestine general fund through the Keren Hayesod.

NEWSPAPER CLUB'S OUTING.

Two Baseball Games and Boxing Bouts Enliven Clambake.

Two baseball games enlivened the clambake of the Newspaper Club and the Association of City Hall Reporters at Duer's Casino, Whitestone, L. I., yesterday. The first game, between teams captained by John H. Gavin, city editor of The World, and William H. Egan, station agent at the Pennsylvania station, resulted in a victory for the Gavins by a score of 6 to 12. The second game, between teams captained by Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and State Senator James J. Walker, ended in a tie, 6 to 6. Willis Holley, Secretary of the Park Department, was umpire.

More than a hundred attended the bake. Among the guests were Borough Presidents Julius Miller and Maurice D. Connolly, City Chamberlain Phillip Berolzheimer, Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, Assemblyman F. Trubee Davison of Nassau County, Congressman Daniel J. Riordan, Magistrates George F. Simpson and Thomas J. Nolan, Assemblyman Peter J. Hamill, Daniel L. Ryan and Travis L. Whitney.

After the bake there were four exhibition boxing bouts.

A STATE OF LABOR PEACE.

A Traveler Says 100% Americanism Makes Georgia So.

Labor troubles practically are unknown in Georgia, according to W. N. Banks of Grantville, that State, lately at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

"This happy condition may be due to the fact that we consider ourselves 100 per cent. Americans and do not allow any foreign agitators to linger long in our territory," said Mr. Banks.

"There is plenty of work, and wages are good, so that the laboring class has small cause for discontent. Georgia produces more cotton than any other State in the country with the exception of Texas.

"It is almost impossible to mention the word cotton in the South without following it with something about the boll-weevil. The boll-weevil is a small insect, but upon his behavior hangs the fate of the crop; he either ruins or leaves it alone. He hasn't been particularly kind to the cotton planters recently and many of them have turned to other avenues in agriculture and are raising corn and potatoes on a large scale. A great deal of tobacco is also raised in Georgia."

KILLED BY PITCHED BALL.

Batter Struck in Temple in Game Near Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—Struck by a fast inshoot while at bat in a game of baseball yesterday at Rosemont, Leon Scanlon, 19 years old, was instantly killed.

The game was between teams representing the Philadelphia and Rosemont factories of the Durham Carriage Works. Miles Donnelly of Bryn Mawr, pitcher for the Rosemont team, was arrested by the police and held to await the action of the coroner. The players said Scanlon stepped forward to meet the ball, but that it curved in and struck him on the temple.

BRITISH ENGINEERS FORM JOINT COUNCIL

Will Work With Other Nations for Peace and Utilization of Their Services.

Following the receipt of a message from M. Mowat of London, Secretary of the British Institution of Mechanical Engineers, Charles F. Rand, Chairman of the Engineering Foundation, has announced that leading engineering societies of England have formed the Engineering Joint Council, to work with engineers of the United States and of Canada and other British possessions toward concerted action for world peace and the advancement of engineering ideals "for the good of mankind."

Mr. Rand described the organization of British engineering bodies into a single unit as a big step in the movement to form a world union of engineers, which already has gained great headway in France, Italy and Czechoslovakia, direct contacts having been established by the engineering bodies of these countries with those of America.

Formation of the Council, according to Mr. Rand, who, with Colonel Arthur S. Dwight, recently was decorated by the French Government, resulted from a trip abroad of a mission of thirteen American engineers, headed by Ambrose Swasey of Cleveland, founder of the Engineering Foundation, to confer the John Frits gold medal upon Sir Robert Hadfield of London and Eugene Schneider of Paris, head of the Creusot Works.

Organizations represented on the British Council, Mr. Rand said, comprised the oldest and most famous of British engineering societies, and included the Institution of Civil Engineers, Institution of Mechanical Engineers, Institution of Naval Architects and the Institution of Electrical Engineers. One object of the British engineers, as well as of American engineers, is "to secure the better utilization of their services in the country's interests."

Coincident with Mr. Rand's announcement, Dean Mortimer E. Cooley of the University of Michigan announced that the Federated American Engineering Societies, of which he is President, has appointed a Committee on Affiliation with Engineering Societies Outside of the United States. The Chairman is Gardner S. Williams of Ann Arbor, a former member of the Michigan faculty.

RESUME SIBERIA MEETING.

Russians and Japanese Start Again —Radek Criticises Tokio Stand.

TOKIO, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—The Russo-Japanese conference at Chan Chung Fu was resumed today, according to word received here.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—The newspapers here, commenting on Japan's proposals to open discussion at the Chan Chun Fu conferences with the Russians only on the basis of the recent Dairen negotiations, indicate that Russia will not consent to the Japanese dictating the program of the conferences.

Karl Radek, Soviet Chief of Publicity, in an article in the Isvestia says:

"A compromise is possible only if the Japanese do not try to copy the rôle of Perry, the brave American seaman who, in 1854, went on a steamer to a Japanese port and compelled the Shogun Government to capitulate before American and European capital.

"The Soviet has shown at Genoa and The Hague that it will conclude only such agreements as are useful to it. It also can conclude agreements with Japan and give her something, but it must be understood there can be no talk of Russia's paying for such rights which Japan does not acknowledge for others at home."

A dispatch from Tokio Sept. 7 reported the conference on the Siberian situation at Chan Chun Fu as deadlocked. The Russians, it was reported, desired to negotiate a general agreement between the Moscow Soviet and Japan, while Japan proposed ipot inguations on the basis of the agreement reached at Dairen.

The delegates were unable to find a basis on which to proceed and adjourned the session in order to communicate with their home governments. The conference was called principally to settle the problems incident to Japan's military evacuation of Siberia.

Foundations That Endure

"All things to endure must have a firm foundation."

(From the book "Standards of Business" by Elwood E. Rice)

A FIRM FOUNDATION holds secure those famous buildings standing at the gateway of America. Their outline, traced with imposing grandeur against the sky, is world-renowned. Built upon solid rock, they are at once an expression of the progressive genius of America and among the modern architectural wonders of the world.

Business to endure must also stand upon a firm foundation—upon the immutable rock of principle. Knowledge of the soundness of a manufacturer's basic principles is your assurance of service and satisfaction in buying, selling or using the products of that manufacturer; such knowledge justifies your confidence.

The basic principles of concerns which are, by invitation, members of the Rice Leaders of the World Association are defined in its

Qualifications for Membership:

HONOR: A recognized reputation for fair and honorable business dealings.

QUALITY: An honest product, of quality truthfully represented.

STRENGTH: A responsible and substantial financial standing.

SERVICE: A recognized reputation for conducting business in prompt and efficient manner.

Note the Association's Emblem of Business Character, which portrays the above qualifications in word and symbol. "Be Guided by This Foundation": Honor, Quality, Strength, Service.

With no reflection upon concerns not enjoying membership, your full confidence is justified in manufacturers who use this Emblem. Look for it in members' catalogs, literature and advertising; on their stationery, salesmen's cards and products.

The Character Emblem of the Rice Leaders of the World Association indicates an enduring foundation. It is a dependable Guide to Buying.

PRINTERS TO DROP ONE BIG UNION PLAN

McParland, Head of Typographical Union, Finds Allied Crafts Hostile.

FEDERATION IS PROPOSED

Chiefs of Several Bodies Favor Closer Co-operation Among the Various Trades.

$13,516,178 RAISED IN 1922

Of This Total More Than $10,500,000 Was Spent to Push Fight for the 44-Hour Week.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.—The movement launched by the International Typographical Union to bring about the amalgamation of the various printing trades unions into one big industrial union virtually has collapsed. This was disclosed when John McParland, President, made public today his report to be submitted at the sixty-seventh annual convention of the Typographical Union, which opens tomorrow in the Hotel Ambassador. The nation-wide strike of printers in commercial shops for the forty-four hour week, which has cost the union more than $10,500,000, virtually has been won, Mr. McParland reported. He said there were now "fewer than 6,000 men on the strike payroll."

The International Photo Engravers' Union has denounced the one big union scheme as "thoroughly impracticable and unsound." The only printing trades union to support the proposal was the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, the report revealed. The International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Unions refused to join in an industrial union but favored "close co-operation" between the various unions.

The move for one big union of the printing trades was launched at the Quebec convention last year. It was intended to embrace printers, bookbinders, pressmen, photo engravers and stereotypers and electrotypers, with a combined membership of approximately 181,000.

Denounce the Project.

George L. Berry, President of the Pressmen's Union, and Matthew Woll, President of the Photo Engravers' Union, in a joint letter to Mr. McParland, denounced the project. They said, however, that they favored any federation that would "make possible a practical offensive and defensive alliance in the interest of all the workers of America." They explained that suggestions to make such a federation possible had not been accepted by the Typographical Union.

"The proposition of an amalgamation is thoroughly impractical and unsound," said the letter. "It was tried and failed, there being at one time but one printing trades union, the International Typographical Union. We are not willing to give consideration of the proposition of returning to a condition that to every student of industry proved an unqualified failure."

Favoring industrial union plan, Walter Reddi, President of the Bookbinders' Union, in his letter to Mr. McParland, said:

"The printing trades, as well as all organized labor, will inevitably form itself into industrial groups, not as a matter of choice, but through the irresistible pressure of necessity."

Charles A. Summer, President of the Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union, said his organization was "absolutely opposed to losing its identity as an international union or surrendering its autonomy, control or jurisdiction over the stereotyping and electrotyping crafts."

When the subject is presented to the convention, it is understood that the conservative element will urge that further efforts along this line be abandoned. The progressives and radicals, however, are expected to demand that the industrial union plan be pressed to a finish.

Calls 44-Hour Fight Won.

Mr. McParland declared that the strike for the forty-four hour week had been won after more than thirteen months' struggle. He said that 513 unions, with over 41,000 members, had established the shorter week, and eight mailers' unions, with more than 1,000 members, won the shorter work week. The typographical union raised $11,013,852 for the fight. Despite this enormous fund, the report indicated that the convention would be asked to vote for a still greater amount, Mr. McParland said.

One of the important matters to be considered by the convention, Mr. McParland said, was the question of further relations with the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which did not renew the arbitration agreement with the union which expired April 30, 1922. The union, it was explained, would not submit questions concerning its laws to arbitration.

The report of John W. Hays, Secretary-Treasurer of the union, showed that the membership of the International Typographical Union was 98,746, a decrease of 5,909 from 1921. Officers, however, explained that the membership actually was 75,000, the gain having been made since the report was completed on June 30.

The receipts of the union for 1922 totaled $13,516,178, while expenditures totaled $10,254,145, leaving a balance of $3,263,032 in the treasury. The average earnings of the members for 1922 were $1,795.44, while in the previous year they were $1,900.03.

More than 500 delegates are here for the convention, which will be in session until next Friday.

CONEY ISLAND DRESSES UP FOR ITS MARDI GRAS

'Added Lights Reflect Concessionaires' Hopes—Big Crowds Jam Subway Locals.

Coney Island, normally one of the most brilliantly lighted places in the world, is getting all dressed up brighter than ever for the Mardi Gras. More lights have been strung everywhere, and flags and bunting have been draped from the many amusement places.

Business men are depending on the celebration, which opens today, to lift them over the financial rocks that the weather has placed in their path this season. If it rains much this week there will be many empty purses among the concessionaires.

A large crowd was out yesterday, one of the best of the season, for New York's biggest Summer playground stays open only one more week. Many of the thousands who used the B. R. T. subways found that no expresses were running. The local trains were jammed to the doors. The majority of those who returned in the early evening were unable to get seats.

305-Pound Convict Wins Race Of Fat Men in Sing Sing Prison

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Sept. 10.—John Sancarato, weighing 305 pounds, won the fat men's race at Sing Sing Prison's annual field day games inside the walls today. All the inmates, Warden Lewis E. Lawes and several attendants attended the prisoners' athletic meet, which was to have been held Labor Day, but was postponed on account of rain. Some of the winners of events were as follows:

Sixty-yard hurdle race, won by Herbert Bennett; 100-yard dash, Henry Sexton; sack race, Vincent De Stefano; three-legged race, Harry Sexton and Frank Morris; wheelbarrow race, Montague and Austin; potato race, John Parlor; high jump, Jones; one-mile run (inside the walls), Austin.

MOTORISTS CHARGE $90,000,000 CHEAT

LOSSES $250,000 A DAY

Shortage of From One to Three Pints Found in Tests With Fraud Detectors.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—"Short-measure" selling of gasoline was estimated today by the National Motorists' Association to be costing purchasers $90,000,000 a year. This figure was based on an estimate that each of the 10,000,000 motorists of the United States buys two gallons of gasoline daily and that the average filching by "short-measure artists" amounts to two pints in each five gallons, resulting in a total daily loss to purchasers of 1,000,000 gallons valued at approximately $250,000.

The association announced its intention to combat "short-measure" selling. Recent tests with "fraud-detecting devices, carefully made under official auspices" by representatives of automobile clubs, the statement said, "developed the astounding fact that out of a number of purchases of gas in five-gallon lots there was a shortage running from one to three pints each in over 50 per cent. of the tests made."

These tests were conducted chiefly, it was said, in Cleveland, Louisville and Kansas City, although in one large city only one or two cases of filching were reported.

"No evidence has been found," the statement added, "that the fraud is countenanced by the oil companies, and in fact offers of assistance are being received from such companies."

ASSAILS M'KINLEY PLAN FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

American Farm Bureau Representative Answers Senator's Objections to Ford Offer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Opposition by Senator McKinley of Illinois to Henry Ford's offer for the development of the Muscle Shoals Federal power project was declared today by Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, to be founded on "a lifelong association" with the development of public utilities from which he had been unable to divorce his mind. Mr. Silver's statement was contained in a letter to the Senator in reply to the latter's expression on the Muscle Shoals question made public early in August.

Policies advocated by the Senator rejected his former association with the public service corporations, the letter said, and were based not on a program of furnishing cheap power, but on one of obtaining for the Muscle Shoals power "all that the public is able to pay."

Mr. Silver informed the Senator that the federation proposed development of the properties to supply power at the lowest possible cost, and favored a program that would result, "directly or indirectly," in benefits to the entire people.

"The policy you suggest," the letter continued, "would place such a high price on this power that it could not practically be used for the manufacture of fertilizer, and you advocate the sale of the power at the high prices instead of using it to secure a cheap factor in production."

Several statements by the Senator as to the meaning of sections of the Ford offer were denied by Mr. Silver's letter.

Regarding the fertilizer production, Mr. Silver's letter cited the testimony of representatives of the Judge Advocate General of the army that, regardless of profit or loss, Mr. Ford would be bound under his offer to manufacture fertilizer and, further, that the guarantee bound for 100 years his heirs and successors in the corporation which he proposed to form to carry out the contract.

ARRAIGN 15 SHOP OWNERS.

Hearings of Harlem "Black Belt" Prohibition Cases Adjourned.

Fifteen owners of cafes, restaurants, furniture stores and delicatessen shops in Harlem were arraigned before Magistrate William A. Sweetser in Washington Heights Court yesterday on charges of violating the prohibition laws. All the cases were adjourned for future examination.

The prisoners were arrested in raids made Saturday night by detectives under Inspector John F. Sweeney. Many resorts in the "black belt" were visited by the officers.

Alderman George W. Harris of 135 West 135th Street recently wrote Mayor Hylan complaining of alleged laxity in enforcement of the liquor laws in Harlem. He blamed Inspector Sweeney, who relieved Inspector Cornelius F. Cahalane, declaring that Sweeney got rid of Cahalane's experienced men who knew all the "bad" places.

Two Brothers Held After a Fight.

John Looras, 28, of 219 East Twenty-eighth Street, accused by his brother, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate Moses R. Rytenberg in Yorkville Court on a charge of felonious assault. The brother, Patrick Looras, 34, also was held in $2,500 bail. The latter was alleged to have thrown a bottle, which injured Thomas Duffy, during a quarrel between the three men Saturday night.

WILL TEST LODGE'S STRENGTH TUESDAY

Massachusetts Republicans to Decide Whether the Senator Shall Be Renominated.

FIGHT OVER GOVERNOR ALSO

Bitterness Marks Four-Cornered Contest for Democratic Nomination for the Senate.

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—The tumult and the shouting of a campaign that has shaken both parties and confused the voters in Massachusetts, have died away, save for the customary whirlwind drives by various candidates tomorrow. On Tuesday the Republicans will go to the polls to decide whether Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and Governor Channing H. Cox shall be re-nominated, and the Democrats will select their opponents to the Republican nominees.

There are contests in both parties also for the nominations for Lieutenant Governor, and there are six candidates for the Republican nomination for Attorney General. Congressional contests are few, but there is a scramble for legislative nomination, which will make the ballots almost unwieldly.

Joseph Walker, former Progressive and one-time Speaker of the State House of Representatives, opposes Senator Lodge. He has charged the Senator with being reactionary and with having failed to make plain his position on the prohibition amendment, which Walker favors. Senator Lodge in numerous speeches has defended his course in the Senate and has pointed out that, although he opposed the prohibition amendment, he voted for the Volstead Enforcement act.

Prohibition also crops up in the Republican contest for Attorney General. One of the candidates is Harold D. Wilson, former State Enforcement Agent, who raided a room on an upper floor in the Quincy House in Boston while Governor Cox was attending a banquet downstairs. Wilson charged that his replacement by another agent some time later was due to this raid.

Attorney General J. Weston Allen, who seeks the Republican nomination for Governor, has made an aggressive campaign, in which he has charged Governor Cox with failing to give him proper support in his successful attempts to bring about the removal of District Attorneys Joseph C. Pelletier and Nathan A. Tufts of Suffolk and Middlesex Counties, respectively. He has accused the Governor of being tied up with political rings within the Republican Party.

Governor Cox hired Fanueil Hall twice to make replies. He asserted that he did everything the Constitution would permit in connection with the District Attorney cases.

Many bitter personalities have marked the four-cornered contest for the Democratic nomination for Senator between William A. Gaston, Dallas Lore Sharp, John Jackson Walsh and Sherman L. Whipple. Walsh instituted a libel suit against Gaston and a Boston newspaper which has supported Gaston.

Seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor are Joseph B. Ely, John F. Fitzgerald, Eugene N. Foss and Peter F. Sullivan.

EYES ON MAINE TODAY.

Both Parties Confident in State and Congressional Election.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 10.—With the eyes of the entire country on the issue and spokesmen for both parties expressing confidence of victory, the voters of Maine tonight were prepared to go to the polls tomorrow to elect a United States Senator and four Congressmen, as well as a Governor, State Auditor, members of the Legislature and county officials. While last minute predictions of Republican leaders were that the State would remain Republican by a plurality of 40,000, the Democrats maintained that organizations of the Democratic women and other factors would bring about "a great surprise."

For the first time in Maine political history the names of women apepar on the ballots as candidates for State and county office. Eight women seek election to the Legislature, and one to the State Senate. Ten others are candidates for county offices.

While in the Federal field the tariff has been made the central issue of the campaign, in State affairs Governor Baxter relied on a "campaign of education," the aim of which was to make electors familiar with their system and machinery of Government. His opponent, former Attorney General Pattangall, adopted a platform of economy.

VERMONT VOTES TUESDAY.

Republicans to Hold Gubernatorial Primary With Two Contestants.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 10.—Only one office, that of Governor, will be contested at the Republican primary on Tuesday. The Democrats failed to poll a sufficient vote in the last Presidential election to make it mandatory for them to take part in the primary this year, and they have made their nominations.

Redfield Proctor of Proctor and Lieut. Gov. Abram W. Foote of Cornwall are the two gubernatorial candidates for whom the Republicans will cast their ballots. Mr. Proctor, a marble producer, is a son of the late Senator Proctor, and if nominated and elected will be the third member of the family to serve as Governor. Lieut. Gov. Foote is a farmer.

Congressman Frank L. Greene of St. Albans, Representative from the first of Vermont's two Congress districts, has no opposition for the Republican nomination for Senator to succeed Senator Carroll S. Page. Frederick G. Fleetwood of Morrisville is the unopposed candidate for Mr. Greene's seat, and Congressman Porter H. Dale of Island Pond will be renominated without opposition in the Second District.

Heading the selected Democratic ticket are Dr. William B. Mayo of Northfield for Senator and J. Holmes Jackson of Burlington for Governor.

MARYLAND SELECTS TODAY.

Contests for Senator France's Seat Feature Both Party Primaries.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10.—Contests for the nomination for United States Senator on both the Democratic and Republican sides will feature the State-wide primaries in Maryland tomorrow. The names of three candidates—William C. Bruce, David J. Lewis and William I. Norris—appear on the Democratic ballot, while the Republican voters will be called upon to decide between Senator Joseph I. France, who seeks renomination, and John W. Garrett, Secretary of the Washington armament conference.

There are five Congressional contests, all on the Democratic side. T. Alan Goldsborough, one of the two Democratic members of the State's Congressional delegation, has a three-cornered fight on his hands in the First District.

The other incumbents, J. C. Linthicum, Democrat, and Albert A. Lakeney, John P. Hill, Sydney E. Mudd and Frederick N. Zihiman, Republicans, are unopposed for renomination and their names will not appear upon the ballot.

Urges Prosecution for Misdemeanor of Pennsylvania's Ex-State Treasurer

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 10.—Prosecution of Harmon M. Kephart, former State Treasurer, on a charge of misdemeanor in office for alleged failure to keep correctly the accounts of his office as prescribed by law, is recommended by Attorney General George E. Alter in an opinion concerning the State Treasury audit made public today.

The Attorney General announced also that he would take steps to recover interest on money drawn out by Kephart for various payments and later restored by him and to obtain profits which might have been realized by the Carnegie Trust Company of Carnegie, Pa., through its use of money of the State in transactions wherein there were delayed deposits.

Both the proposed prosecution of the former Treasurer and the proceeding recommended against the trust company are based on the so-called "war emergency fund." In other instances, the Attorney General said, the statute of limitations operated against prosecution of Kephart and persons alleged to have received money without rendering service to the State.

Mr. Alter rendered his decision after a series of hearings held by Auditor General Samuel S. Lewis and himself on the report of certified public accountants commissioned by Mr. Lewis to make an audit of the Treasury under the act of 1811 requiring annual audits.

61% OF 900,000 WANT DRY LAWS MODIFIED

Literary Digest's Poll Also Shows Majority of Women Similarly Inclined.

BONUS VOTE SPLITS EVEN

Returns to Date Are 466,814 in Favor and 444,221 Against.

The "dampness" which predominated in the first 100,000 votes tabulated in The Literary Digest's poll four weeks ago is almost equally noticeable in the final gathering of more than 900,000 votes. More than 61 per cent of those who answered the ballots sent out have expressed themselves in favor of modification of the present dry laws, The Digest announces in the current issue.

"The women's vote, living up to numerous predictions, is revealing itself as 'drier' than the general average," says The Digest. "The present tabulation of feminine returns, covering 108,647 ballots, places the percentage of dampness in this poll at 55.3. Even if it is 'drier' than the general poll, the surprising fact to a good many publicists will be that the majority of more than 100,000 representative women is in favor of 'wetness.'

The vote by women shows 48,485 favoring strict enforcement, 39,914 favoring modification and 20,448 favoring repeal of the Volstead act. A tabulation of the main poll discloses the following results: For enforcement, 306,355; favoring modification, 325,549; for repeal of the prohibition law, 164,453.

In the bonus poll, being conducted simultaneously with the liquor poll, The Digest finds to date that 466,814 favor the proposition, while 444,221 are against it. Two factory polls added strength to the pro-bonus side of the argument, says The Digest. A poll of the Briggs Manufacturing Company, auto body builders, showed 2,296 in favor of and 136 opposed to the bonus. The poll at the Seattle Machine Works, Reading, Pa., showed 2,516 favoring the bonus and 339 opposing it.

CHEMICAL SHOW WILL OPEN THIS AFTERNOON

Effort Will Be Made to Instruct the Consumer in the Nature and Use of Products.

The eighth National Exposition of the Chemical Industries will open at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Grand Central Palace, and every day thereafter this week will be open from noon until 10:30 o'clock at night. Formal speeches will be made at the palace at 8:30 o'clock tonight. The principal topic is to be the manufacture of industrial alcohol, and the attitude of the prohibition advocates on the issue is to be presented by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League.

"The exhibition has more than 400 exhibitors, covering practically every branch of chemistry and its allied industries," said a bulletin from the Show Committee yesterday. "It will be interesting not merely to the expert, but to the layman as well, as a majority of exhibitors primarily aim at making their story clear to the visitor who is not an expert. In the matter of dyes, for example, a number of exhibitors aim directly at interesting the ultimate consumer, and go to great pains to make it clear to a woman visitor how she may dye gowns, curtains, &c., successfully.

"This exhibition covers a wider range of subjects than has been offered in the past. The Show Committee includes Charles H. Herty, President of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association; Charles L. Reese and Edward W. Payne, co-managers; Henry Howard, President of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers; Carl G. Schlusderberg, President of the American Electrochemical Society; Edgar F. Smith, President of the American Chemical Society; John E. Teeple, President of the Chemists' Club; Raymond F. Bacon, L. H. Baekeland, J. V. N. Dorr, Henry B. Faber, Bernhard C. Hesse, H. E. Howe, Percy C. Kingsbury, A. D. Little, H. C. Parmelee, R. P. Perry, T. H. Wagner, David Wesson and M. C. Whitaker."

RUSH FOR RUM PERMITS.

Association Urges Druggists to File Applications Immediately.

In a bulletin sent out yesterday the National Wholesale Druggists' Association, 54 Maiden Lane, urges its members to file immediately with their local Prohibition Director applications for the renewal of their basic permits for the calendar year 1923 to buy and sell alcohol and to use it in the manufacture of such articles as they may make. The regulations of the Prohibition Department provide that Directors shall receive applications any time after Sept. 1, and that all applications must be filed before Nov. 1.

Attention is called in the bulletin to the fact that separate applications must be made for each of the three classes of permits, namely: Wholesale dealers (Class B), retail dealers (Class I), and manufacturers (Class H).

The druggists are advised to see that the Government is furnished with the required data concerning their business.

ROB SHOP; LOCK MEN IN.

Three Armed Men Take Candy Store Cash and Lock Door.

Philip Feldman was in his father's candy store at 2,818 West Thirty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning, with a friend, Irving Lewis of 324 Saratoga Avenue. Three young men came in and, after threatening them with a revolver, robbed the cash drawer of $25. Then they locked the door and left.

Feldman broke the glass in the door, cutting his hand, and let himself out. He told Patrolman Huette of the holdup, and the reserves of the Coney Island Police Station searched the neighborhood for the robbers without success.

THINK WOOD ALCOHOL KILLED EX-SOLDIER

TWELFTH RED HOOK DEATH

Important Arrest and Two Indictments Expected—Evidence to Grand Jury Today.

Raymond Kirkpatrick, 35, an ex-soldier, of 2,024 West Boulevard, Cleveland, died yesterday at Bellevue Hospital, a victim, it is believed, of wood alcohol poisoning. He was picked up semi-conscious early Friday morning in front of 202 East Thirteenth Street and rushed to the first that his condition was serious.

Kirkpatrick rallied at the hospital long enough to tell the police that he drank "applejack" in a restaurant on Thirteenth Street. The two owners of the restaurant were subsequently arrested and held in Essex Market Court in $5,000 bail each on a charge of felonious assault for hearing on Sept. 15. They are John Kosen, 28, and Michael Chernoff, 32, both of 634 East Thirteenth Street. Their restaurant is located at 608 East Thirteenth Street. According to the police, the "applejack" was made of cider and wood alcohol.

An autopsy will be performed on Kirkpatrick's body to determine definitely the cause of death. His brother, William Kirkpatrick, arrived here from Cleveland yesterday.

Detectives of the Hamilton Avenue Police Station, Brooklyn, who have been seeking the source of the wood alcohol believed to have caused the death of twelve persons in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn last week, intimated last night there would be an important arrest in the case today. The detectives have followed up every clue. Their statement that they were hot on the trail of one whose arrest would be regarded as particularly important was taken to mean that the principal source of supply had been found.

Red Hook residents not engaged in making or selling liquors are aroused over the twelve deaths and have exerted themselves to further investigations. The twelfth victim died on Saturday at Wyckoff Hospital. He was John Streubel, 47, of 413 Sylvan Street, Glendale, Queens. The police learned that until six weeks ago Streubel had worked in the Red Hook section for fifteen years. They are certain that the poisonous liquor that caused his death was purchased in that neighborhood. Streubel had not been employed since he left his job in the Red Hook section, where he worked in a factory. He was President of the High Ground Benevolent Association.

District Attorney John E. Ruston will present the evidence gathered in the poison cases to the Grand Jury today. It was understood last night that he will ask for the indictment of Mrs. Arsmalina Vadala, who conducts a store at Conover and Sullivan Streets, and her clerk, Mike Caruso, and possibly others. Assistant District Attorney [illegible] shall Snyder has spent several days preparing the cases.

In the West Side Court yesterday Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb held Mrs. Susan Reed, 48, of 222 West Sixty-second Street, in $1,000 bail for examination tomorrow on a charge of violating the Mullan-Gage law.

Detective Arthur Sayler of the Fourth Inspection District testified that he found a five-gallon still on the stove in the kitchen of Mrs. Reed's home early yesterday morning. Reed, according to the detectives, admitted that she was using the still, but said she was making liquor for her own use. The detective said he found in the apartment several pint bottles filled with liquor and sealed as though for marketing.

IZZY EINSTEIN FOUND PROVIDENCE WIDE OPEN

More Than 700 Places, He Says, Where Whisky Can Be Bought, Some at 20 Cents.

According to Izzy Einstein, the most active and persistent raider of the prohibition land forces, the dry law is being more flagrantly violated in Providence, R. I., than ever it was here. Einstein and a squad of nine other agents, including Moe Smith, was sent to wage a war on the rum traffic in the Rhode Island capital. Einstein and Smith came back to New York for the week-end, and after appearing as witnesses in the Federal Court here today, will return to Providence tonight.

"The town is wide open, or rather was, when we arrived last week," said Einstein last night. "We made a total of about fifty arrests, but there are no fewer than 700 more places openly selling whisky. Providence is worse than New York ever was in its disregard for the prohibition law. Liquor is sold openly in all part not the city, in the most fashionable places as well as in the cheap dives along the waterfront. Several of the saloonkepers deliberately disregarded the summonses which were served on them to appear before the United States Commissioner. This is something that has never happened in New York.

"All the defendants arrested or served with summonses said they had never been molested before, and I guess that is true. Every one of them put up a battle with the agents. In one place the saloonkeeper threw a pitcher of whisky in my face. The so-called whisky is being sold in Providence at 20 cents a drink, the price alone indicating the character of the mixture."

Einstein, Smith and Agent Peter Reager were arrested in a civil action brought by one of the saloonkeepers. Einstein and Smith are sued for $10,000 each, and Reager for $5,000. Reager and Smith were paroled, but Einstein is under $10,000 bail furnished by David Karp, a Providence coal dealer. As soon as the agents were arrested Commissioner Haynes in Washington was notified and Mr. W. Anderws of the legal division of the Prohibition Department hastened to Providence, as did also Hugh McQuillan, head of the Special Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau. It is understood that action against the deputy sheriffs for making the arrests in the office of the United States Commissioner is being considered.

TAMMANY SEEKING 'PEACE' CANDIDATE

Murphy Sees Leadership Imperilled by Hearst-Smith Fight Over Governorship.

MAY PICK UP-STATE MAN

Justice Wagner, District Attorney Banton and Controller Craig Also Considered.

Facing a party split, not only in the State but in New York City, in the event of the nomination of either William R. Hearst or Alfred E. Smith for Governor on the Democratic ticket, Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, is hoping to bring about the nomination of a compromise candidate to preserve party unity, to maintain his leadership of Tammany and to prevent possible reprisals by Mr. Hearst and his friends.

This was described as the exact situation yesterday by men prominent in Tammany, who added that Mr. Murphy would maintain an open mind on the Gubernatorial nomination and would not commit himself to anybody until after the Democratic State convention had convened at Syracuse on Sept. 28. In the meantime, it was said, he would continue to spend most of his time at Good Ground, improving his game of golf and incidentally keeping his eye on the political ball in the hope of some development which would relieve him of the embarrassment of refusing to acquiesce in the nomination of Mr. Hearst or, if he should consent, of facing a fight in the convention led by former Governor Smith, which might not only take the convention away from him, but eventually wrest from him the leadership of Tammany Hall.

Some of Mr. Murphy's advisers were said to have become convinced that Mr. Hearst by the campaign for the nomination, conducted for him by William J. Conners, and Mr. Smith, by his letter to Franklin D. Roosevelt, announcing his willingness to run, if the majority of the delegates wished it, and by the general understanding that he would oppose Mr. Hearst by a speech in the convention, if necessary, had killed each other off, if there was to be a chance of party success.

To Groom New Candidates.

An effort has been made to groom several candidates who would be acceptable to Mr. Hearst and whom Mr. Smith and his friends would not be likely to oppose. Three New York City men were said to be on Mr. Murphy's list of preferred compromise candidates—Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner, District Attorney Joab H. Banton and Controller Charles L. Craig.

Of these Mr. Murphy's first choice was reported to be Justice Wagner, who is understood to have had several conferences with Mr. Murphy and the latter's son-in-law, Surrogate James A. Foley, of whom Justice Wagner was a colleague for years in the State Senate. Justice Wagner, while in the Senate, introduced much progressive legislation, including a number of bills sponsored by Mr. Hearst, and has never incurred the latter's hostility.

Mr. Banton is understood to have aspirations for the nomination, and his candidacy was said to have been advanced by his assistant, Benjamin F. Schreiber, formerly associated with Mr. Foley's law firm. Controller Craig, as an important members of the Hylan city administration, who has supported the Mayor's transit program and home rule principles, would not be expected to incur Mr. Hearst's opposition. Mr. Craig formerly was a law partner of Surrogate Foley.

May Go to Up-State Man.

Mr. Murphy also was said to have considered the possibility of trying to avoid a fight between the supporters of Mr. Hearst and Mr. Smith by suggesting that the up-State delegates select an up-State candidate, thus placing the responsibility for the nomination and for the campaign upon the up-State wing of the party.

Mayor George R. Lunn of Schenectady, who has been an avowed candidate, was said to have established relations with the Tammany leader that would at least lead to his consideration. J. H. Walrath, the Democratic Mayor of Syracuse, was said to be another up-State Democrat in whose possibilities Mr. Murphy had expressed interest.

Developments of the last week have convinced the Tammany leaders that the candidacy of Mr. Hearst, although he has disavowed it publicly, is real, and there has been some concern among them as to whether Mr. Murphy, to avoid the chance of a definite break between the organization and Mayor Hylan and, perhaps, to prevent a series of future attacks upon him by the Hearst newspapers, might not acquiesce in his nomination, as he did in 1906.

This, presumably, is the expectation of those promoting Mr. Hearst's candidacy and, in the opinion of well-informed Democrats, might have happened but for the position taken by former Governor Smith.

Mr. Smith's announcement of his willingness to run again, which was said to have been brought about partly by Democratic disinterested largely in national politics to prevent the possibility of Mr. Hearst using the governorship as a stepping-stone to the Democratic nomination for President in 1924, was timed to come just before the meeting of the Tammany Executive Committee.

Want No Break With Smith.

With the generally believed report that Mr. Smith had said that he would repeat on the floor of the convention the attacks he made upon Mr. Hearst at the Hotel Astor and at Carnegie Hall while he was Governor, if necessary to prevent Mr. Hearst's nomination, the announcement was considered by many Tammany men as notice to Mr. Murphy that he could not accept Mr. Hearst without a revolt of Mr. Smith and his friends. Such a break, it was said, might have far-reaching consequences in Tammany and was to be avoided at almost any hazard. Few of the leaders would wish to be placed in such a position, and it was said that Mr. Murphy would be reluctant to force a fight which might result in a serious challenge to his leadership.

Although Mr. Smith has been reported to be ready to make a fight if Mr. Murphy should decide to support a candidate friendly to Mr. Hearst, several Tammany leaders said they did not consider it likely. It was said to be probable that Mr. Smith in that case would be willing to step aside as a candidate and continue in his present business connections, satisfied in his main purpose of blocking Mr. Hearst's nomination.

The way to the Democratic nomination for United States Senator was said to be completely open, and that the election of a nominee would not even be considered seriously by the party leaders until an agreement had been reached on the candidate for Governor, if that should be possible. There was a general agreement that the Smith-Hearst feud could not be settled by naming either for Senator, as the friends of each would oppose the other for any place on the ticket.

Denies Officer-Wives Right To Allowance for Husbands

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The law authorizing an increased allowance to office-husbands in the Government service cannot be stretched to include officer-wives, under a ruling of Controller General McCarl made public today. He denied a claim entered by Surgeon Margaret R. Stewart of the Public Health Service, who holds the rank of Major.

The law was drawn to cover dependents, Mr. McCarl said, and as written it failed to include "lawful husbands" among the dependents in mind, although "there have been cases where the terms of the masculine gender in a statute have been construed to include females."

'GARVEY MUST GO,' NEGROES DECLARE

Three Harlem Mass Meetings Hear Leader of Improvement Association Criticised.

RAP LEAGUE DELEGATION

Stick to Domestic Problems, Speaker Urges—Garvey Reports Progress at Geneva.

"Marcus Garvey Must Go" was the slogan at three meetings of negroes held in Harlem yesterday by men and women who expressed dissatisfaction with Garvey's handling of the affairs of the Universal Negro Improvement Association.

A. Philip Randolph, an editor of The Messenger, speaking under the auspices of the Friends of Negro Freedom at New Douglass Hall, Lenox Avenue and 142d Street, discussed Garvey's reported visit to the headquarters of the Ku Klux Klan in Atlanta.

Randolph, answering the implied threat of those who sent him a human hand through the mails, declared that the incident would not cause him to stop his agitation against Garvey and the Ku Klux Klan. He discussed the affairs of the Black Star Line and other ventures headed by Garvey, and announced that meetings under the auspices of his organization would be held in all parts of the United States.

J. W. H. Eason, at the National Baptist Church, 135th Street and Fifth Avenue, told why he severed his connection with Garvey's organization and formed the Universal Negro Alliance. He opposed Garvey's action in sending a delegation of negroes to the League of Nations Assembly in Geneva to ask for a mandate over parts of Africa. Mr. Eason said that the negroes of the United States had plenty of problems of their own, and his organization aimed to stimulate negroes to face their immediate pressing problems and not to go to other countries to take up problems there.

J. Austin Norris of Philadelphia asserted that Garvey's assertion that his organization contained 4,000,000 members caused the British Government to refuse passports to African students intent on coming to this country and wanting their way through college.

Another meeting where Garvey's methods were criticised was held at Lafayette Hall, Seventh Avenue and 131st Street.

Garvey himself held a mass meeting at Liberty Hall, 120 West 138th Street. He announced the issue of the first number of The Daily Negro Times and reported in behalf of the delegation of his association to the League of Nations Assembly.

"The delegation reports that it is making splendid headway and has met with great success through the reception accorded its members by the various national groups that form the League," he declared in a statement. "The delegation was successful in drawing the attention of the League Assembly to the atrocities perpetrated upon the natives of the late German Southwest African colonies, now under British mandate. The matter was brought before the League by Delegate Bellegarde. The delegation now at Geneva is asking to have the late German colonies in Africa turned over to the negro peoples of the world under the auspices of the Universal Negro Improvement Association."

FIRE IN GARVEY'S BUILDING.

Blaze Threatens "Provisional President's" Business and Records.

Fire that threatened to destroy the archives of the "Republic of Africa," as well as those of the Black Star Steamship Company, occurred in the basement of a three-story brick building at 94 West 135th Street yesterday. The building is owned by Marcus Garvey, "Provisional President of the Republic of Africa," head of the steamship company and owner of a weekly newspaper, which also has offices in the building.

Smoke poured from the basement windows. Patrolman Mantik of the West 135th Street Station turned in an alarm and firemen quickly extinguished the flames. The cause of the fire was undetermined. The damage was slight. It was said that Garvey's personal records were in the building.

ITALY IS WORRIED OVER AUSTRIAN CRISIS

Foreign Minister Schanzer to Attend League Assembly If Lloyd George Does.

ROME, Sept. 10 (Associated Press).—Should David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, go to Geneva for the meeting of the League of Nations Assembly, Signor Schanzer also will proceed there for a discussion of the Austrian question, which is vital for Italy, says the Giornale Roma today.

The newspaper asserts that the Italian Government maintains it would rather go to war than allow any attempt on the part of Czechoslovakia or Jugoslavia to change the Austrian territorial boundaries as established by the treaties of Versailles and St. Germain. It adds that, in order that no country may have a pretext for the invasion of Austria, it is necessary that the economic situation in Austria shall be such as to avoid internal disorders.

Signor Schanzer is of the opinion that Austria's finances can be restored without the Allies granting further loans—simply by guaranteeing credits which bankers are ready to extend to Austria, Austria giving as guarantees her customs, railway earnings and the like.

The Italian Foreign Minister is intervening with the Allies to induce them to accept this plan, which he thinks might be completed by proclaiming Austria's neutrality, if guaranteed by the powers, together with a solemn reconsecration of Austria's boundaries as established in Paris in 1919.

Farewell to Father McEntyre.

The Rev. James T. McEntyre, for the last twenty-four years pastor of St. Teresa's Church, Henry and Rutgers Streets, today assumes the rectorship of St. Joseph's Seminary at Dunwoodie, N. Y. In recognition of his long service at St. Teresa's, a large congregation attended solemn high mass yesterday morning and many were present at a farewell reception last night. Father McEntyre is succeeded by the Rev. Father Joseph R. Cherry of Tarrytown, N. Y.

PLAN FOR MILLION AT SCHOOL TODAY

WILL PUSH NEW BUILDINGS

Greatest Proportion of Increase in Students Is Expected in High Schools.

TO AID BRIGHT SCHOLARS

Board of Education Working Out Scheme to Prevent Backward Children Retarding Others.

Upward of 1,000,000 pupils are expected to attend at the opening of the Fall term in the public schools today. No figures will be available for several days, but a large increase in attendance and registration is expected. President J. George Ryan of the Board of Education and Mayor Hylan will make a tour of the new school buildings in a day or two, Mr. Ryan said yesterday.

Accommodations for an additional 32,000 pupils will be available today, it was said. The greatest proportional increase in pupils is expected in the high schools, in some of which pupils may have to stand for one period.

President Ryan said that he was considering plans for regrading pupils and new methods of building which, if adopted, would, in his opinion, give a seat to every child within a year and a half.

"I have received a report made by the school authorities in one district indicating that 7,000 pupils in the section took the normal eight years to go through the elementary schools and about 15,000 took from twelve to thirteen years," he declared. "There is no reason why bright pupils should be kept back by those who are not capable. You can see that if a large proportion of the pupils in the schools taken from twelve to thirteen years to go through the elementary grades the tax on the physical capacities of the system is enormous. That is a situation which, if uncorrected, would mean that the part time and the congestion problems would never be solved.

"I am asking Superintendent Ettinger for a report as to the condition in the schools of the city with respect to the time taken by the pupils in completing the elementary grades. When that information is in hand we will have to work out a system for regrading pupils in such a way as to minimize the handicaps imposed by those pupils who take more than the normal time to do the years' work. What the solution will be, of course I do not know. It is a pedagogical problem.

"However, I am working on a practical plan for the erection of school buildings which is designed to have them put up in 12 months under business-like conditions. We must put the building of schools on a business basis.

The big rush of students in the high schools may put one half of the high school pupils on part time. Last year the high schools opened with 32,000 on part time and by the end of the year there were 40,000 on part time.

Great congestion is expected at Boys' High School and Commercial High School, both in Brooklyn. Manual Training High School in Brooklyn will send 2,200 pupils to its new quarters.

De Witt Clinton High School is expected to have a register of 8,000 students. This is probably the most congested high school in the city. Transfers from high

WORKERS' RISK LAW IS UPHELD BY SAYER

Denies Changes Will Increase Cost to Counties and Cities, Citing Aid to Employes.

ARE NOT FORCED TO INSURE

Compensation Is Guaranteed for Injuries by Loans if County Money Is Not Available.

In a statement in the current issue of the department's official bulletin, Industrial Commissioner Henry D. Sayer says that the changes in the compensation law which became operative on July 1 will not only benefit the county and other political subdivisions of the State, but will greatly benefit the workmen employed in the county and city service. He refutes the statements which had appeared in some newspapers that the changes would cause a much greater cost to counties, cities and villages, as the various political subdivisions, unable longer to carry their own insurance, would have to insure through insurance companies.

"By the terms of the amended compensation law," the Commissioner said, "any county, city, town or village is permitted, if it chooses, to insure its compensation risk with the State Insurance Fund or any private company, just as it always could. But, if such county, city, town or village does not do so, it shall be deemed to be a self-insurer, that is permitted to pay compensation direct, and in such cases the county, city, town or village shall not be required to obtain the consent of the Industrial Commissioner, nor to deposit with him any securities, such as a private employer would.

"On the first of July, when the new law went into effect, every county, city, town and village throughout the State automatically became a self-insurer, unless by its own choice and action it insures its risk otherwise. There is no compulsion on it to insure any more than there ever was. There will be no such thing, and can be no such thing as a non-insured county or city here after, to be sued at common law and compelled to pay large judgments for damages. Neither can their status be affected by any arbitrary action of any Industrial commissioner by required to deposit securities to secure its rights. This absurd claim has been made before; it was voiced at a public meeting before the Governor, when he had this bill before him, and the absurdity of it was so fully disclosed at that hearing that the question was dropped.

Will Aid County and City Workers.

"This new statute is not only very greatly in the interest of the county and other political subdivisions of the State, but also greatly in the interest of the workmen employed in the county and city service. They are absolutely assured of compensation for injuries, with the full taxing power of the county or political subdivision back of their claim.

"No county or city or any political subdivision of the State will be obliged to expend additional money for compensation risks after July 1."

The amended compensation law, in Article 4, Section 90, provides that an employer shall secure compensation to his employes in one of three ways: First, by insuring in the State Insurance Fund; second, by insuring with any stock corporation or mutual association authorized to carry workmen's compensation, and third, through self-insurance. The same section provides that a county, city, village, town or other subdivision of the State may insure through either the first or second way as given above. Continuing, the law says:

"a. If it does not do so, such county, city, town, village or other political subdivision shall be deemed to have elected to secure compensation pursuant to subdivision three of this section. Such a county, city, town, village or other political subdivision shall not be required to furnish proof of financial ability or to make deposit of securities in compliance with such subdivision, but shall be obliged to meet all other requirements prescribed by this chapter for employers so electing. Such county, city, town, village or other political subdivision shall file with the Commissioner notice of such election.

Authorizes Loans to Raise Awards.

"b. Whenever compensation is awarded to a claimant for injury to an employe of a self-insuring county, town or political subdivision, other than a city or a village, the treasurer of the county employing such employe, or containing the town or other political subdivision that employs him, shall upon presentation of the award forthwith begin payment of it in accordance with this chapter, using any money of the county available therefor. If none is available, he shall by temporary loan upon the credit of the county immediately borrow sufficient money to meet compensation payments that will fall due prior to collection of the next tax levy.

"The board of supervisors shall thereupon levy upon the taxable property of the county, if for injury to a county employe, and of the particular town or other political subdivision, if for injury to an employe of such town or other political subdivision, a sum sufficient to enable the treasurer to repay such loan and to continue compensation payments according to the requirements of the case.

"c. Whenever compensation is awarded to a claimant for injury to an employe of a self-insuring city or village, the treasurer of the city or village shall, upon presentation of the award, forthwith begin payment of it in accordance with this chapter, using any money of the city or village available therefor. If none is available, he shall by temporary loan upon the credit of the city or village immediately borrow sufficient money to meet compensation payments that will fall due prior to such time as the city or village may appropriate for the purpose. The city or village shall thereupon appropriate a sum sufficient to enable the treasurer to repay such loan and to continue compensation payments according to the requirements of the case."

FOUR NEW MARCIN PLAYS.

'The Faithful Heart' Will Be Placed in Rehearsal Today.

Four new plays will be produced in New York this season by Max Marcin. The first of these, "The Faithful Heart," already presented successfully in London, will be placed in rehearsal today. The cast will include Tom Nesbitt, Flora Sheffield, Daisy Belmore, Lionel Pape and Geraldine O'Brien. It is the work of Moncston Hoffe.

Next week Mr. Marcin will begin rehearsals of "Mary, Get Your Hair Cut," a comedy of his own authorship, based upon a short story. Carroll MacComas will have the leading role, and the cast will also include Beatrice Nichols and Donald MacDonald. Later Mr. Marcin will produce "Give and Take," by Aaron Hoffman, and a new play by Samuel Shipman.

Fred Stone Inducted.

Fred Stone was inducted into office as President of the National Vaudeville Artists last night at a dinner in the clubhouse in Forty-sixth Street. Mr. Stone's colleagues and well-wishers filled the main room of the building and overflowed into the balconies and adjoining rooms. Mr. Stone was introduced by Mr. F. Albee, Officers of the speakers' table included Marcus Loew, Will Rogers, E. F. Moss, Daniel Frohman, Julia Arthur and P. F. Mackay. Mr. Stone succeeds Edwards Davis in office, and will serve for two years.

THE SCREEN

Ghosts in Spain.

THE GHOST BREAKER, with Wallace Reid, Lila Lee, Walter Hiers, Arthur Carewe, Knits Edwards and others, directed by Alfred Green; adapted by Jack Cunningham from the play of the same name by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard. "One Terrible Day," a Hal Roach comedy. At the Rivoli.

While sitting through "The Ghost Breaker" at the Rivoli this week you will probably be bothered by the intrusive and persistent reflection that it could have been a great deal better than it is. And this is disturbing to any one's enjoyment of a comedy. But you can't get away from it. The reflection sticks. For the fact is that the Dickey-Goddard play offered almost boundless opportunities for fun and thrills on the screen, and they have been taken advantage of only half-way and half-heartedly. Whereas the comedy ought to move rapidly, with mystery and humor merrily mixed and spinning always, it proceeds deliberately and dwells upon each detail of its string-out story until the impatient spectator wants to stick spurs in it to make it go.

The main fault seems to be in the direction. Alfred Green has not enlivened the film with many of the bright and stirring motion pictures in which its story ought to be told. Instead, he has made many meaningless scenes that let the spectator's imagination go to sleep, while he is flatly informed in words just what they are all about. And he has not made his players do their best. Wallace Reid, Walter Hiers and Knits Edwards have all been much surer, much more pointedly meaningful as pantomimists than they are in "The Ghost Breaker." Also — though this may be the fault of the scenarist — too much time is spent on the tedious preliminaries of the main story, which comes, as those familiar with the play are aware, when Warren Jarvis of Kentucky follows the beautiful Donna Maria Theresa to Spain and undertakes to rout the ghosts out of her castle and so open the way to a treasure supposed to be hidden there. The things that happen on the ship going to Spain and in the castle are what make the story worth telling, yet half the film is used up with incidents in the lives of the hero and heroine before they meet for the ghost-breaking job.

When the picture finally does get to business of the ghosts and the treasure it picks up a little, and, although it never has the pictorial vitality one is always expecting of it, it takes on a certain intensity of life that makes it fairly interesting and amusing. So it is not a complete failure. It has a few moments in which it almost catches up with itself. At such times it might even be counted satisfactory, if one could forget the popping, papery picture it might have been. But it holds up its own mark and misses it so often that one cannot forget.

Sherlock Holmes in the Films.

THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, an English production, with Ellie Norwood, Robert Wilis, Rex McDougal, Lewis Gilbert, Frederick Raynham, Alma Taylor and Betty Campbell, directed by Maurice Elvey; "Teepe Town," photographed by W. A. Van Scoy; "The First Vacation," with Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven. At the Capitol.

At least, they haven't rejuvenated Sherlock Holmes and made him a young Romeo in the English film based on "The Hound of the Baskervilles," which is at the Capitol this week. But neither have they made him particularly impressive as a detective. Ellie Norwood, who plays the role, looks the part, all right, and, to a degree, acts it, but he is seldom the compelling figure that the Holmes of the Baskerville tale always is. The cold logic, the keen intuition, the sharp and sure perception of the significant that marks the great detective's work in the stories about him is missing in this and all other pictorial versions of the Conan Doyle stories. Holmes is shown snooping around, spying and looking wise, but he is not shown really doing anything. He doesn't step into a mystery, and, with few leading discoveries and a plan employing the calculable calculations of his adversaries, clear up everything and show how simple it all was—to him.

Maybe the Doyle stories are not suitable screen material. It is possible the action pictures cannot reveal the real Holmes actually at work. But, surely, they could more closely approach their original than they do. This "Hound of the Baskervilles," for example, has some screen possibilities. But few of them have been realized. Holmes doesn't solve any mystery. It solves itself. The spectators know more than Holmes does all the way through. So, when he comes forward with his grand solution, it falls decidedly flat. All he can do is add a few rather unimportant details. Only occasionally does he appear as the centre of the action and of the confident hopes of the spectators.

As a story, however, with Holmes in a relatively minor role, the photoplay is not so bad. It is often entertaining. Though it is by no means as stirring pictorially as it might be—the fiery hound being especially disappointing—it does include a number of striking scenes, and several of its sequences undoubtedly hold the interest. Also, it was made in England, and the natural settings of the story have been used effectively. Some of the actors, too, are good. Frederick Raynham, as Osborne, the butler, is a compelling figure, and Lewis Gilbert, as John Stapleton, who, it will be remembered, sets the phosphorescent hound on the Baskervilles who stand between him and the property is villainous enough. Rex McDougal, as the young Sir Henry Baskerville, is pleasantly expressive—and English.

"Teepe Town," an Indian scenic, photographed by W. A. Van Scoy, is also at the Capitol. It includes some charming camera shots.

Other Photoplays.

"The Young Diana," with Marion Davies, and Charlie Chaplin's "Shoulder Arms" began an engagement at the Cameo yesterday. "Grandma's Boy," with Harold Lloyd, remained for a second week at the Strand, and "Burning Sands," directed by George Melford, moved from the Rivoli to the Rialto.

'MUSIC BOX REVUE' TO CLOSE

New Production Will Be Opened Here on Oct. 19.

After a run of a little more than a year the first "Music Box Revue," with which The Music Box was opened on Sept. 22 of last year, will be given for the final time here on Sept. 30. The next revue, which has been in preparation for many months, will be placed in rehearsal tomorrow, and will open at The Music Box on Oct. 19.

Among those in the cast of the new production, it is reported, are Clark and McCullough, comedians from burlesque; Grace La Rue, John Steele, and probably Charlotte Greenwood. The current revue will begin an engagement at the Forrest Theatre in Philadelphia on Oct. 2.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Dreams For Sale" will open at the Playhouse Wednesday night, instead of tonight.

Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese film actor, will be seen on the stage this season in "The Leopard," by Fred de Gresac. He will begin rehearsals about Oct. 1.

"Sue, Dear" will move from the Times Square Theatre to the Bijou next Monday.

Victor Herbert will lead the orchestra at the first performance of "Orange Blossoms" at the Fulton a week from tonight. Mr. Herbert is the father of the score.

Doris Kenyon has been engaged for "Queen o' Hearts," in which Nora Bayes will be seen.

"That Day," by Louis K. Anspacher, will be placed in rehearsal today, and will open here during the first week of October.

A. Harold Minsky, Charles Blaney and Morris Fetzer have been added to the cast of "Springtime of Youth."

A new farce by Wilson Collison, "Sweet Patootie," will be placed in rehearsal immediately.

Miss and Willie French dancers seen in the Ziegfeld "Follies" two years ago, are returning to this country to appear in Keith vaudeville.

MANY HOUSES IDLE FOR LACK OF PLAYS

Shuberts Rush Two New Productions Into Rehearsal to Meet Shortage.

TWENTY THEATRES DARK

Only Thirty-Six Occupied, Compared With Forty-Five at This Time Last Year.

A marked shortage of plays—or, at least, of plays that give promise of occupying New York theatres for any length of time—is at present driving the Shuberts into the production field on a considerably larger scale than has been their custom. The figures for this year and last show that forty-five New York theatres were occupied in mid-September of last season, whereas only thirty-six will be filled by the time this week's new plays have opened. This leaves about twenty dark theatres at a time when the season is supposed to be well under way.

The present New York theatrical situation is variously ascribed to a shortage of plays and an oversupply of theatres. Although they control more than thirty theatres in the city, the Shuberts have not made many productions in the past, but have preferred to book the plays of associated producers. At present, however, the prospects for new plays are so slight that this firm is rushing two new plays into rehearsal this week.

One of these is a comedy entitled "Clean Cross," by Percival Knight. This play, with Mr. Knight in the cast, will be brought to the Comedy Theatre two weeks from tonight. The Comedy was left vacant on Saturday by the failure of "I Will If You Will." At the same time the Shuberts are preparing a melodrama, entitled "The Hurricane," in which Charles Richman will have the leading role.

Although a large number of productions are scheduled for late September and October production, the weakness of many of the current new offerings indicates that the new season will be well under way before all of the theatres are filled. Of the new productions to date, not more than three or four have scored real successes.

The Shuberts have already made three new productions in New York this season, in addition to those in Syracuse. In previous seasons they have frequently not had more than one or two of their own productions simultaneously current. The same applies on a smaller scale to the Klaw & Erlanger and Frazee-Lindsay & Crabtree Galety Theatre will not open until Sept. 25, and no plans have as yet been announced for the Knickerbocker, which is almost invariably occupied by this time. In the meantime Mr. Erlanger, who rarely presents a dramatic attraction, has produced "The Endless Chain" at the George M. Cohan Theatre.

MORE MOSCOW OPERA WOES

80 Members of the Orchestra Resign After Tiff With the Direction.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—The Moscow Grand Opera had no sooner balked Mordkin's ill-starred attempt to dragoon the ballet corps yesterday than it was confronted with a new trouble in the shape of the resignation of sixty members of the orchestra.

The musicians complained of the low wages and of "the unsympathetic atmosphere of the Grand Opera"—one can imagine that the war with Mordkin over the fat girls of the ballet became pathetic dreadful—and declared that as they were also members of the First Symphony ensemble, they should be allowed to play in its concerts.

The direction forced them to choose between the opera and the symphony ensemble. They chose the latter, and their places are now being filled by amateurs, pending a competitive examination of candidates which will be held Sept. 17-8.

SHRINERS TO VISIT SHORE.

Thousand Expected at Atlantic City This Week.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.—The annual shore pilgrimage of the Crescent Temple, of Trenton, N. J., Order of the Mystic Shrine, to which 30,000 Shriners throughout the country have been invited, is being arranged here. This year's pilgrimage will take place Sept. 14, 15, and 16. The formal ceremonial session will be held next Saturday night on the Million Dollar Pier, following an afternoon parade.

Among those who will attend are Imperial Potentate James A. McCandless of Honolulu and thirty other potentates with their divans. Sixteen Shrine bands and sixteen patrols of Shriners will be present, it is expected.

ARRESTS AROUSE VARYING REACTIONS

No One Likes the Policeman's Grasp, but Some Pretend Not to Care.

HARDENED CRIMINALS WILY

The Honest Citizen, Dazed and at a Loss, Copes Feebly With Calamity.

Being arrested, no matter for how trivial an offense, is not a pleasant experience. Anybody who has been escorted to a station house by a policeman with a noisy throng at his heels knows how it feels.

No two men, it seems, take their arrests exactly alike. Some take it much to heart; others, outwardly at least, do not appear greatly upset. Much, of course, depends upon the circumstances and the seriousness of the case. It is something, at any rate, that not many mature persons take as a joke. A citizen was brought recently to a west side station charged with disorderly conduct. He had disturbed the peace by engaging in a public fist fight and the encounter had attracted a crowd. He was thrashing his antagonist when a policeman arrived on the scene and arrested him. He was not a whit downcast, and, as he wiped his bruised face, he said as much, remarking that he "would get locked up any time for the privilege of licking that big bully."

There are disturbers of the peace who are always in hot water. They no sooner get out of one scrape than they are in another. A man who has been locked up often enough gets used to it. Take, for example, those who have been arrested for crap-shooting, which just now is quite the vogue. It is not uncommon to see twenty-five or more of these offenders lined along the station bar, waiting to have their pedigrees taken. Invariably, they take the situation calmly. They have become accustomed to the sudden descent of the cops, the ride in the patrol wagon and the cells that they occupy until it is time to take them to night court. There the curtain is rung down on their misadventure. They are usually discharged; sometimes they get a fine or a reprimand.

Youths sometimes take arrest lightly. A patrol wagon brought a load of college boys to a station. They were Sophomores who had stormed a Broadway restaurant in an attempt to break up a Freshman dinner. Amused diners had been startled by the crash of overturned tables, china and glassware. The collegians were not a bit put out by their arrest, although they felt somewhat hurt that the cops should have taken a hand in the affair. They turned the incident into a lark. On the way to the station they regaled the police with college songs and college yells, and their "rah, rah, rahs" reverberated up and down Broadway. They cheered one another and they cheered their rather discomfited captors.

To an honest man being arrested is a calamity. It often happens unexpectedly. He is perhaps falsely accused by another. The complainant himself arrests him and calls a policeman as an escort to the station house. Again, he may have been arrested for avenging a fancied insult, or for intruding foolishly into some other fellow's quarrel. In any case the man arrested for the first time usually takes it much to heart. He is dazed and helpless and at a loss what to do.

Habitual criminals, on the contrary, take arrest calmly. Even if they are charged with serious crimes, they simulate innocence. The more hardened they are, the better are they able to conceal their real feelings. Having anticipated arrest they are able to give plausible explanations, or to marshal an alibi that is not always easy to destroy. They can keep silent, if that seems best, in the face of much tgrilling, and they are not easily broken down. There are times when they realize that the police have "the goods on them," and then they "come through" to avoid unpleasantness.

A thief is never friendless when arrested. Any one acquainted with station house procedure knows how easy it is for a thief to get a bondsman or a lawyer. Let an undestrable character be arrested, and in a very few minutes his friends begin efforts in his behalf. If his case is bailable, a bondsman is shortly on the scene prepared to bail him out for almost any sum, or if that is not possible, a lawyer soon is on hand to look after his interests. It is different to a large extent with men who are known as respectable, hard-working fellows. After they have been arrested, friends and relatives often have a difficult time to dig up even a small amount of bail.

SAYS TEXANS WOULD LEARN.

Teacher Tells of Growing Enrolments in Schools There.

"The need for education is being more appreciated than formerly, as is evidenced by the record-breaking enrolment that we had this Summer in the Sam Houston Normal College," said Franklin Jones of Huntsville, Texas, at the Hotel Pennsylvania just before sailing for Porto Rico to be an instructor in English in a high school.

"Not only has the Summer course had a larger attendance than ever before, but the Faculty of the college is expecting the largest enrolment of students this Fall than it has ever known," said Mr. Jones.

"The Sam Houston Normal College is the only normal school in the country that has established an agricultural course recognized by the United States Government. Very naturally, Texas is proud of this honor."

RISKS LIFE TO RESCUE DOG.

Dentist's Son Saves Spaniel After Half Hour's Struggle in Surf.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Sept. 10.—Max Beiberback, son of Dr. Beiberback, a Philadelphia dentist, threw a stick so far into the ocean at Cape May Point today for his spaniel to retrieve that the dog was drawn out to deep water by the ebb tide.

Without an instant's hesitation the young man plunged into the surf to rescue the dog. Man and dog were swept into a tide rip where Delaware Bay debouches on the ocean. After a struggle of half an hour Beiberback managed to get to shore again with his dog.

Canada's Development

It is estimated that 300,000 horsepower was added to Canadian water power plants in 1921, bringing the total output up to approximately 2,756,000 horsepower. Continued development of such vast natural resources means added wealth to the country and a steady increase in the security underlying Canadian Government, Provincial and Municipal Bonds. FINANCIAL MARKETS

The Advance on the Stock Exchange as a Forecast of the Future.

The notion that Autumn business activities will define themselves promptly after Labor Day has never been justified by experience. It is even less reasonable than usual to expect such revival on the present occasion, when we have yet to settle such essential business problems as the sufficiency of fuel supplies for manufacture and the adequacy of railway facilities to conduct all necessary transportation of general merchandise while working under maximum pressure to distribute coal. At the moment these obstacles do not appear by any means so insuperable as they were imagined to be a few weeks ago. One indication of the position of manufacturing industry, reassuring so far as it goes, is the fact that whereas the number of active iron furnaces was reduced by twenty in July and by twenty-eight in August—all because of the fuel shortage—nine had resumed production before the middle of last week and a dozen more are preparing for resumption.

As yet, the larger problem of transportation capacity has not been settled. By the end of August, railway car loadings are shown to have reached the largest weekly total since last October, and even if the loadings of coal had matched the weekly figure of September, 1920—which was 100,000 cars above the latest weekly loading—the total number of cars in active service for all kinds of freight would still have remained considerably below that of two years ago, when facilities neither of cars nor of motive power were equal to those at present available. What will soon have to be determined, when production both of soft coal and hard coal has been raised beyond the normal daily output, is the question how rapidly and efficiently that increased traffic can be hauled and distributed without blockading the movement of general merchandise.

The attitude of the Stock Exchange would appear to indicate confidence in the early and successful grappling with this transportation problem, followed by continuing revival of trade. Firmness of the stock market at the crisis of the strike, recovery after each occasional reaction, might merely have indicated correct foresight as to early settlement of the labor troubles without the predicted complications; but continuous advance—in some shares of industrial companies to the highest prices of the year—must have meant something more. It is evident enough that the situation as Wall Street saw it was that the Federal Reserve system, whose condition reflects the nation-wide state of credit, was entering the Autumn with outstanding rediscounts of $405,000,000 against $1,508,000,000 a year ago; with a cash reserve larger by $883,000,000; with a reserve ratio of 78 1-3 per cent., as compared with 66⅔, and with a surplus reserve in excess of legal requirements $450,000,000 greater than in the same week of 1921 and $1,650,000,000 greater than in 1920, when there was virtually no surplus reserve whatever. Under such circumstances, the inference was widely drawn that this great mass of unemployed credit, not under requisition for purposes of normal trade, was bound to facilitate speculative activity, in and out of the Stock Exchange.

The inference is reasonable in the light of experience, always supposing that the basic conditions of trade should themselves be of a character to warrant such activities. Accumulation of idle bank resources will not stimulate industry when all other influences are against revival; otherwise we should have seen a business boom in every year after a great financial panic, when the fall in money rates and the rise of surplus bank reserves, a result of forced liquidation, are invariable incidents of the period.

But hope of distinct revival at the present juncture has a further basis, first in the virtual completion of liquidation of "frozen credits" and the long-continued stability of general prices, second in the visible tendency in various trades to abandon the policy of hand-to-mouth purchases pursued since the shock of 1920, third in the fact that the writing down of inventories has left producing companies in a position to benefit greatly by a rise of prices, next in the abundant cereal harvests, at a time when the outside world's production is far below last year's, and finally, perhaps, in the fact that the past Summer's apprehensions of an industrial crisis or a "social upheaval" has been wholly dissipated.

With the existing handicap of fuel scarcity, reduction in buying power because of the long stretch of idleness among mining, textile and railway employes, and the confused economic condition of Europe, very few experienced observers would go so far as to predict an actual "trade boom." We have the expanding credit facilities as we had them in 1919, and without the insecure and artificial basis on which the credit expansion of that year was built. But on the other hand we have not and shall not have the suddenly increased purchases of our natural products into which Europe was forced that year by her utter depletion of supplies. There is not even the appearance of that scarcity of necessary products, belief in which was a primary motive in the speculation of 1919.

Nevertheless, after making all these allowances, sober judgment at least agrees that industry has not yet fully responded to the great change in underlying economic conditions which has come with completion of the deflation process. The Autumn stock market of 1919 was in advance of general public opinion in foreshadowing the coming change for worse in finance and industry. The stock market of 1922 may be equally in advance of the common view of the possibilities of recovery.

LONDON REASSURED BY GERMAN PLAN

FRENCH ATTITUDE CHANGED

Financial London Inclined to Believe That German Mark Has Reached Low Level.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Stinnes-Lubersac agreement regarding deliveries in kind by Germany on reparations account is thought in the City to mark an unexpectedly favorable development in the reparations question. It is believed, in fact, to open up wide possibilities. The plan is not new; co-operation of Germany in reconstruction of the devastated areas of Northern France was agreed upon at Wiesbaden last October, but the scheme then formulated aroused much opposition in both countries, the Stinnes interests being particularly bitter opponents of the plan.

That plan has been in actual operation about a month, but the new agreement is looked upon as a much more ambitious affair. In financial circles here, the comment is made that with the Stinnes organizations at the back of the scheme, there is little doubt that Germany will be in a position to make it effective. The plan amounts in actual fact to the mobilization of German industries for the benefit of the devastated regions.

That France accepts the arrangement is regarded as indicating a new attitude on the part of the French Government toward the reparations question. In a general way, it means that where the governments have failed to solve a problem, the industrialists are taking the matter in hand. Not unnaturally, some suspicion of Stinnes's motives arises, but there is no disposition to follow these doubts very far or to probe deeply into the personal reasons for the change of front. The essential fact remains that German industrialists are showing willingness to face the problem and that French industry has accepted the idea of payment in German material.

The Recovery in the Mark.

The fact that the value of the German mark has doubled in this market since the Reparation Commission's decision week before last to grant Germany a species of moratorium, proves conclusively that much of the collapse in the third week of August was due entirely to an outburst of unreasoning panic. It would require a bold prophet to predict the future course of German exchange; nevertheless, there are such prophets in this market, and they appear to agree that in all probability the worst of the depreciation has been seen.

This belief is grounded on considerations of what must be done with the German currency. It is held to be obvious that this currency must be revalued and the present inflation stopped, and that Germany's creditors must enforce such a policy before many months have passed.

Germany's Trade Position.

Furthermore, it is held that there should be an improvement in Germany's trade balance on any sign that the crumbling away of mark values was to be stopped. Such change in the trade position would of itself automatically help to raise the mark. No doubt is entertained in English financial circles that much of the recent depreciation in the mark was due to the large German imports of foreign materials and goods, simply because those imports have had greater and more stable value than the German currency.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week were £201,521,820, another low record since the armistice. It compares with £201,741,680 a week ago, with £325,584,000 at the end of 1921 and with £368,231,000, the high level of 1920. The circulation now outstanding appears to be about sufficient to meet normal business requirements under present conditions, but expansion in the currency issues would accompany any revival of trade.

THE DECLINE IN STERLING.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The weaker tendency noticeable last week in the New York rate for sterling has aroused interest in London financial circles. It is true, the moderate decline is nothing more than was expected. Among the chief influences now beginning to play their part in that reaction are the slackening of the American demand for British gold, the steadily decreasing requirements of remittances to American tourists in Europe, the greater disparity between American and British commodity prices and the increasing demand for dollars on account of European purchases of American products.

Occasionally, somewhat pessimistic views are expressed regarding the future of sterling, such impressions being based on the influence which it is feared England's approaching debt payments to America will exert on the exchange position. This operation would add to the trade balance, which itself is still adverse to this country, dollar commitments which are likely to prove more troublesome than appears to be generally realized.

In the city the fact is emphasized that London will have to find over $300,000,000 more per annum in order to carry out the Government's present intention, and that this is a figure not to be lightly contemplated.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The stock markets in general showed considerably increased firmness last week; a condition largely explained by the satisfactory clearing away of the pre-war Stock Exchange account without any serious embarrassment, also by the agreement reached regarding reparations. Scattered liquidation in connection with the pre-war account and realizations by large financial interests who have been changing investments in the belief that a trade revival is at hand, have, however, kept down prices on the market for gilt-edged securities.

On the other hand, there are signs of increasing activity in preparation for floating new security issues, which will, to some extent, come into competition with existing investments. Last week arrangements were completed for privately placing a small 6 per cent. debenture of the Port of Karachi at 99½, while a public issue has been made of £1,263,620 6 per cent. debenture stock at 98 by a leading textile company. In financial quarters, pronounced activity in this direction is predicted for the autumn.

The first effect on French securities of the passing of the reparations crisis was a sharp recovery in values, but reaction followed as soon as the initial improvement in Paris exchange was lost. And last week's changes in prices as a whole are trifling. Covering of bear positions has lifted French railway bonds substantially, but at the close of the week, that market also again looked weaker, and meantime, French Government bonds and German securities have been following the more or less adverse course of the exchanges.

Many industrial securities are showing pronounced buoyancy. Hopes of really better trade are visibly stimulating interest in that section of the market, and money just now employed in gilt-edged securities is gradually drifting to more speculative stocks. Now that first-class investment issues have really gained top prices, that tendency seems likely to increase rather than diminish.

GERMAN PRICES DOUBLE IN MONTH OF AUGUST

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—The rise in average German prices during August was much the largest of any month on record. The Frankfurter Zeitung's index number, based on 100 for 1914, shows prices to have increased nearly 290 times since the beginning of the war. The Sept. 1 average was 28,919, as against 15,035 at the beginning of August, 4,238 at the beginning of last January, and 2,127 at the beginning of 1921.

In August the average for the foodstuffs group of commodities rose from 18,833 to 32,142, of textiles and leather from 13,961 to 29,175, of minerals from 18,355 to 42,638, of finished articles from 8,450 to 19,352. The calculation is made on the basis of gold prices as measured by current exchange rates, that, notwithstanding the great advance in finished articles, such goods are now commanding only five-eighths of the prices current in 1914. It is not, therefore, thought that the rise in prices can check Germany's capacity to compete in foreign markets. Nevertheless, the working of paper prices begins to be described as meaning the "slow death of the paper mark."

Minister of Industry Schmidt has proposed to issue Treasury bills on the basis of dollar and pound sterling exchange. The first corporation to be equipped with capital measured in gold marks has just been established at Leipsic, its field being real estate transactions. The dollar continues to be increasingly used, whether for actual home payments or as a basis of calculating mark prices. On the other hand, the Federation of German Industries has just rejected a proposal to introduce gold mark balance sheets.

STOCKS LOWER AT BERLIN.

Mark Recovery Causes Reaction—Prices 90% Above November.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—The Berlin stock market turned weaker last week, owing to the recovery in the mark. Foreign buying of stocks and bonds has been only moderate. The calculation is made on the Boerse that, judged by the value of the corporations' assets, stocks are extraordinarily cheap, because, whereas the mark has fallen to about one-fifth of the value of last November, the average rise in stock quotations has been less than twofold. The Frankfurter Zeitung's index number of 15 industrial stocks on Sept. 1 was 76,716, against 40,250 on Nov. 10.

Judged, however, simply by their yield, stocks are considered to be dear, because hundred-mark shares paying 30 per cent. in dividends on that valuation, are actually quoted at 2,000 to 3,000. It would therefore seem that the foreign buyer must be prepared to lock up capital practically without return until normal conditions raise stocks again to full gold valuation.

FINANCING RECONSTRUCTION

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—In connection with the financing of reconstruction, two large loans guaranteed by the State are expected to be floated in France during the next few weeks. Their purpose will be to raise money for meeting interest and other charges on previous loans issued on account of reconstruction. By this course increase in French taxation during the present year will be avoided and the budgetary deficit kept down to its present proportions.

The two loans in question will not be floated directly by the State, but the indirect methods which have formerly proved successful will again be employed. One of the loans for 6,000,000,000 francs will be placed by a consortium of French railways; the other, amounting to 4,000,000,000, will be offered by the Credit Foncier. Since neither of the railroads nor the Credit Foncier is in immediate need of funds, the Government will thus secure the amount of liquid money subscribed, for which it will give in return National Defense bonds of its own. These will be redeemed later, either when Germany begins paying cash again for reparations, or when an international loan provides for such German payments.

HIGH RATES ON BANK LOANS

Some Borrowers Pay Above 20 Per Cent., Including Fees and Commissions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—Recovery of the mark, which was manifestly due to postponement of the reparations crisis, but which also was partly the technical result of an oversold market, has put a stop, for the time at any rate, to the currency panic. Nevertheless, the abnormally heavy demand both for credit and for actual cash remains. As has been the case after every other previous collapse in exchange, the Reichsbank is called upon to meet by increased inflation the needs of the State and of private industry.

In Berlin business circles the currency shortage is ascribed to the fact that, during a period in which prices increased 156 times, the note circulation was only increased thirty-four fold. The last Reichsbank statement reflects this situation; the week's addition to circulation beating the record with an output of 22,978,806,000 marks, and discounts of new Treasury bills with 25,283,030,000. Private discounts also now aggregate 21,704,341,000, or more than twenty times as great as they were in September of last year.

Government on the Currency Crisis.

The Government asserts that the currency crisis has been aggravated by hoarding of notes at home and also by foreign hoarding, especially of thousand-mark notes. The Reichsbank has in a fortnight increased its daily printing of paper marks from one-and-a-half billion to two billions. By the middle of the month the weekly output will be three billions, yet it is commonly declared that this will be insufficient for the needs of trade under present prices and wages. The point is made that daily wages of the workmen at Essen alone aggregate 5,000,000,000 marks, showing the requirements for industrial payrolls.

But the industries are not only asking for a larger circulating medium; they are clamoring for more capital to apply to their current needs. In August the German industries succeeded in raising 2,468,300,00 marks, against 2,130,100,000 in July. In January to August, inclusive, 15,747,000,000 marks of new capital were raised, against 3,357,000,000 in the same months of 1921.

Meantime and necessarily, the rate for loans at the private banks has reached extremely high figures, and is still tending upward. The rates, however, are extremely elastic. Nominally, the general charge is 2 to 9 per cent., but the various commissions and fees which have to be paid frequently force the actual rate up to as much as 28 per cent, against a maximum a year ago, including the similar extra charges of about 9 per cent.

The Stinnes Plan.

The Stinnes plan for payments in kind to France has on the whole been well received in the German market, where, however, the comment is made that its execution requires continuance of currency depreciation, without which German prices might reach or exceed the world market level and make deliveries in kind to France too dear.

The gold supplement to customs duties fixed for the week beginning Sept. 13 is 33,900 per cent., against 25,900 per cent. last week.

BELIEF IN BETTER OUTLOOK FOR EUROPE

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Throughout last week a certain feverishness continued in the movement of the foreign exchange markets; but the recent great activity had abated and the feeling of panic distinctly subsided. This is considered largely as a natural reaction after the swift collapse in the mark and other exchanges two weeks ago. It also seems to indicate confidence in Germany's ability to find acceptable security for the bonds to be given to Belgium in lieu of cash payments on reparations, falling due in the next few months.

Generally speaking, the London view is that the whole international outlook is better. The fact which most impresses the City is that a broader view of the situation is now developing in all the countries concerned. This is held to promise well for the conference which Poincaré has suggested for a full discussion of reparations and interallied debts.

The financial view of Poincaré's reply to the Balfour note is that it indicates a real desire to approach the situation on a broader and sounder basis. On the other hand, no very definite ideas have yet been formed in financial circles as to what could be expected from the suggested conference. Governmental gatherings of this sort have come nowadays to excite only a lukewarm interest in financial circles. Nevertheless, with the apparent widening of perspective and the seeming willingness to adopt a policy of give and take, this proposal would at any rate be hailed in the City with feelings of greater confidence in its ability to accomplish something really useful than has existed in the case of any conference during the past few years.

BUSINESS

In the year 1876, with a capital of $150,000, Bernard Kuppenheimer, together with his sons Jonas and Louis B., started at Chicago the manufacture and sale of men's clothing at wholesale. In each year since its inception the business has operated at a profit, and with the exception of the original amount paid in, all of the present net worth has been accumulated out of earnings. In addition, since 1911, when the business was incorporated, it has paid out in dividends to its stockholders a total of $2,247,000. The product of the company reaches consumers throughout the United States and many foreign lands where there has been established good will and a high regard for "Kuppenheimer Good Clothes."

MANAGEMENT

The actual management and control of the business of the new Corporation will continue in the hands of those who created its success in the past.

The manufacturing operations are conducted in five work shops, all located in the City of Chicago, in which there are about 4,500 employees. These shops are of the latest and most approved types and equipped with machinery and fixtures of the latest designs.

SLOW IMPROVEMENT ON PARIS BOURSE

Market Partly Helped by Week's Financial Recovery at New York.

FRENCH GOLD AT LONDON

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Last week's improvement in the New York market has had a certain good effect on sentiment on the Paris Bourse. While there has been considerable profit-taking on the recovery since the recent unsettlement, stocks ended the week in a firm position. Among other influences, the successful offensive of the Turkish armies has had marked influence on the market for Ottoman securities, and although there has been no recurrence of the active speculation which used to attend events of this sort, the outlook in that direction seems to be considered more hopeful.

On Saturday, Sept. 2, the Bank of France repaid the Bank of England £4,000,000 as a first instalment on the loan of £65,000,000 made to the French bank in 1916. It will be remembered that the guarantees for those advances took the form of gold deposits by France in England, amounting to one-third of the aggregate value of the loan.

Calling Back Gold From London.

The payment now made by the Bank of France is especially noteworthy, inasmuch as it would seem to be the beginning of a new policy which may have seemingly paradoxical consequences. Every payment made by the Bank of France will necessitate restitution of part of the gold now deposited in London as guarantee for the 1916 loan.

So far as concerns the Bank of France returns, the only consequence of these transactions will be the transfer of the gold which now figures under the heading "Gold deposited abroad" to the heading "Gold in hand." In the last return the amount of gold deposited abroad was 1,948,000,000 francs.

Bank of England and French Loans.

But as far as concerns the Bank of England, it is stated in this market that repayment of the advances made to the Bank of France in 1916 will cause progressive decrease in the London bank's stock of gold, consequently weakening its reserve position. This, if it happens, will embody a curious effect of settlement of war debts which does not seem yet to have been realized in other countries.

It is stated that the Bank of France has for a long time held sufficient sterling exchange to repay the loan granted to it in 1916, and the general conclusion is that these payments will have no effect on the exchange market. It must not be overlooked, however, that advances of the same character have also been made to the French Treasury. If therefore the French Government adopts the same policy of settlement, a new demand for remittances to London might result which would considerably increase the normal autumn demand for sterling.

DOUBT OVER RUSSIAN TRADE

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—German business men returning from Russia report small prospect of making sales in that country owing to Russia's inability to pay. Notwithstanding this view of the matter, Germany delivered in August 198 locomotives to Russia and will deliver another 150 before the closing of navigation to Petrograd. The Siemens concern has established an electrical corporation in Russia. Russia's imports during the first half of 1922 were 80,285,000 gold rubles and its exports 20,743,294, these totals being reckoned on the basis of 1913 gold prices.

Of the imports 46,174,000 rubles were in food. During the first quarter of this year 46.9 per cent. of Russia's imports came from the United States, 15.5 from England, 11.8 from Germany; but Germany preponderated overwhelmingly in manufactured imports, supplying 67.4 per cent. of metal wares and machines and 79 per cent. of textiles. In weight Germany delivered 8,906,000 poods of metal wares and machines, 160,000 of chemicals, 84,000 of textiles and 12,000 of pottery.

Japan's Surplus of Imports Growing.

Excess of imports into Japan over exports from that country in the first half of 1922 amounted to 365,370,000 yen, as against a similar excess of 223,888,000 in the first half of 1921.

EFFECT OF MARK'S FALL ON GERMANY'S TRADE

Business Men Believe It Will Not Check Imports or Help Exports.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—The recent extreme depreciation of the mark is not expected by German business men to stimulate the export market. This is largely because the home demand for goods is unabated and because in order to prevent actual scarcity in the domestic market exports of such goods as iron and textiles are actually being rationed. On the other hand, it is equally believed in commercial circles that the great fall in exchange will not prevent imports of necessaries.

That other facilities than sale of marks still exist for payment of such purchases is illustrated by the fact that half of the Dutch credit of 140,000,000 guilders granted in March, 1921, is still unused, importers having been able to get along without recourse to it. Germany is still paying for most of her imports with high currency bills received for export, while the deficit is met by selling marks, and this policy may continue indefinitely.

It is generally remarked, however, that every fresh decline in the mark decreases the current liabilities of Germany to foreign holders of German stocks and bonds and that this tends to offset to a certain extent the adverse trade balance. This would apparently mean that foreigners will have presented Germany with part of her imports gratis.

BERLIN ON VIENNA CRISIS.

Believes Conditions Better Than Currency Situation Indicates.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—From Vienna, talk of a new economic crash has been again coming in last week. On the Berlin market this is considered much exaggerated, for the reason that in Austria, as in Germany, economic conditions are far better than currency conditions. On the other hand, the Austrian crown has now definitely joined the Russian ruble in its fall to the level of virtual worthlessness.

The last Vienna bank statement as of Aug. 23 shows the addition to the circulation in a single week to have exceeded the entire outstanding circulation at the end of 1921. Naturally, under such circumstances, the rise in prices has been violently rapid. The latest quoted price for a 1,260-gram loaf of bread is 6,460 crowns.

General Motors Corporation Senior Securities

The security market today offers few, if any, more attractive investments than the Debenture and Preferred Stock of General Motors. They are fortified by large earnings and asset value. We call attention to the following figures for the first half of 1922:

Net sales for the six months amounted to $218,490,887. Business since July 1st has been at a very satisfactory rate and the outlook continues very good.

Net earnings for six months applicable to Debenture and Preferred dividends amounted to $30,559,346, or over 9 1-2 times dividend requirements.

Surplus after payment of Debenture and Preferred dividend was $26,839,391.

Cash on hand June 30, 1922, amounted to $35,527,973 with no bank loans outstanding.

Net tangible assets were $358 per share of Debenture and Preferred Stocks. These securities have no bonded debt ahead of them.

We believe the General Motors 6% and 7% Debenture and 6% Preferred Stocks are excellent securities for permanent investment. They are all listed on the New York Stock Exchange and are now selling at prices to yield over 7%.

NEW KUPPENHEIMER PREFERRED OFFERED

Par is Bankers' Price for Clothing Manufacturers' $3,500,000 7 Per Cent. Issue.

CARRIES OPTION ON COMMON

Subscribers Have Privilege of Buying Common at $35 Per Share.

Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers announce today an offering for public subscription of $3,500,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of B. Kuppenheimer & Co., Inc., at $100 and accrued dividend. Purchasers of the preferred have the privilege of subscribing to common stock of the corporation at $35 a share up to 35 per cent. of their holdings of the new preferred. The company is a new corporation to be organized under the laws of Illinois to take over the assets and properties of B. Kuppenheimer & Co., one of the oldest concerns in the country engaged in the manufacture and sale of men's clothing at wholesale. The management will continue in the hands of those who have directed it in the past.

Under the capital readjustment of the new corporation there will be outstanding $3,500,000 of an authorized issue of the same amount of the new 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock on which dividends will be payable quarterly, cumulative from Sept. 1, 1922, and 100,000 shares of $5 par value common stock of an authorized issue of 110,000 shares. Dividends upon common stock are payable only out of profits earned subsequent to April 30, 1922, and in no event may any dividends be paid on the common stock unless the surplus and net profits are in excess of two years' dividends on the outstanding preferred stock and will not be reduced below that amount by the payment of such common dividends. The new preferred stock which is being offered for public subscription is preferred as to dividends and assets and is redeemable as a whole or in part at $115 and accrued dividends.

Application has been made to list both the preferred and common stock on the New York and the Chicago Stock Exchanges.

Louis E. Kuppenheimer, President of the company, in a letter to the bankers, states that net sales of the company for the five years and six months ended April 30, 1922, and the net profits before deducting income and profits taxes, but after giving effect to taxes at 1922 rates, have been as follows:

Year Ending Oct. 31.	Net Sales.	*Net Profits.
1918	10,580,055	1,362,990
1919	11,170,678	1,504,497
1920	20,370,422	3,419,736
1921	14,973,307	980,273
Six months ending April 30, 1922	6,180,521	850,000

*Before deducting income and profits taxes paid but after giving effect to taxes on 1922 rates.

The net profits for the five years and six months ending April 30, 1922, before deducting income and profits taxes paid, but after giving effect to taxes at 1922 rates, were at the rate of $861,075 per annum or over three and one half times the annual dividend requirements on the total issue of $3,500,000 of preferred stock. The net sales for the six months ending April 30, 1922, amounted to $6,180,521, compared with $5,727,223 for the corresponding period in 1921. Net profits after deducting income and profits taxes for the six months ending April 30, 1922, were $200,069, compared with net profits after taxes at 1922 rates of $53,710 for the corresponding period ending April 30, 1921.

STEEL STACKS GLOW AS COAL WAR ENDS

COKE AND PIG IRON SCARCE

Mills That Lack By-Product Coke Ovens May Not Be Able to Keep the New Pace.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10.—Approximately a dozen steel works blast furnaces have resumed operations in the last week as a result of the settlement of the coal strike, including three independent stacks in the Pittsburgh district, several in the valleys and several in the Chicago district. The low production point was reached at the end of August, when the pig iron rate was about 20,000,000 tons a year and steel a trifle over 25,000,000, or barely 50 per cent. of steel-making capacity. In June steel mill operations were at between 70 and 75 per cent. of capacity.

While there has been rapid resumption of coal mining at the union bituminous mines, and production of pig iron and steel has been increasing at a very fair rate, it is rather doubtful whether the pace of increase will continue. Eventually transportation will step in as the limiting factor, and this may occur very soon, say within two or three weeks. The heavy coal loadings at various mines in the past fortnight are not necessarily a criterion for the future, because much of the loading has been in cars long empty, and second and subsequent loadings of these cars will present different problems, as the cars must make their round trips first.

Coke and Pig Iron Scarce.

While no definite predictions are ventured as to the rate at which furnaces and mills will operate in future it seems to be the common impression that at no time this year will the iron and steel industry be able to work up to its rate of last June. A feature of the resumption now in progress is that it is practically all on the part of steel interests that have by-product coke ovens.

Merchant furnace production of pig iron has increased little if at all, and there are at this moment no definite prospects of resumptions. The great majority of the merchant furnaces in the North must depend either upon Connellsville coke, the offerings of which are but little increased, or upon surplus coke from the by-product plants of steel companies, and at this time there are no prospects of there being any surplus.

The result of this condition is that pig iron, long scarce, is growing scarcer still. The majority of consumers make no effort to buy, while those who do enter the market find it very difficult to locate any tonnage. Purchases are of course only of iron in stock or iron certain to be made in the very near future. There is no attempt to negotiate contracts based upon possible resumptions of furnaces.

Bessemer iron has sold in small lots at $34 Valley, which becomes the quotable market, an advance of $2. There is no line on what basic pig iron is worth, it being merely remarked in the trade that it could not possibly be secured at less than $30 Valley. The Valley furnaces sold out on foundry iron quite a while ago, and lately the Pittsburgh market has been drawing from Buffalo, the nearest point of supply, the market being $34 Buffalo, equivalent to approximately $35.50 Valley, for Pittsburgh delivery.

Several steel works that have been out of the market as sellers have come in again, but the larger offerings have not weakened prices, which are not only very firm but are showing an advancing tendency. Some mills are sold far ahead and cannot offer early deliveries, while those that can are somewhat reluctant to sell, evidently feeling that they will be able to secure higher prices later.

Some Prices Quoted.

For indefinite delivery, bars might be bought at $1.90 and shapes and plates at $2, but for any ordinary deliveries the three products are firm at $2.25, with plates for shipment in two or three weeks readily bringing $2.50. At the low point early in March, the market was commonly quoted at $1.35. In sheets there is a wide range of prices, depending on delivery and other circumstances, beginning with $3.35 for common black, the price of the leading interest and two or three independents, and running up to at least $3.60, if not to $3.75. Rivets have been advanced $7 a net ton to $5 per 100 pounds for button-head structural rivets and $9.10 for cone-head boiler rivets.

The coal market has become fairly steady since the reappearance of Pittsburgh district coal. Good grades run at $5 to $5.25, while Youghiogheny gas coal runs up to $5.75 or $6. Ordinary steam coal, particularly the Sewickley vein of the Connellsville region, runs at about $4.50, while Connellsville by-product is $5 to $5.25.

Connellsville coke is quotabel at $12 to $12 for furnace and at $12.50 to $13 for foundry. The furance coke price is considered decidedly high by furnaces, but it is possible that the price might be paid to secure a furnace resumption, the insurmountable difficulty being that all the offerings in the market, gathered together, would hardly be sufficient to run a single stack.

Prices are firm in the scrap market, but trading is light, the dealers waiting for increases of operation to justify higher bids.

Flanciers Say July Reports Show Carriers Can Handle the Abnormal Traffic Expected.

MET TEST OF THE STRIKE

Net Operating Income of Railroads for 1922 Now Estimated at 5 Per Cent. on Investment.

Aside from the daily developments in the shopmen's strike the last week, the interest of railway circles largely converged on the earnings of the carriers during July as shown by their reports. That executives should consider transportation operations during this month as of more interest than any other one previous month of 1922 was inevitable, for July presented the first period when the composite force of the railway and miners' strike could be measured. Because of this both railway and industrial leaders set about to analyze the results of that month in the belief that a picture of the ability of the roads to furnish adequate rolling stock—in spite of the handicap of reduced shop forces—would be in the nature of a good index of what the roads could do in the Fall, when they will have the task of moving the bumper crop as well as an expected heavy increase of coal shipments.

A canvass of the financial district found a fast-growing belief that the railways would come through the Fall business period with only the normal and sporadic congestion of traffic which is ordinarily expected about the middle of October. This opinion was based on the unexpected earnings record which the roads made during July, reporting a total net operating income of $80,239,000, or a return, on an annual basis, of 4.06 per cent. on tentative valuation.

This was one-tenth per cent. less than the net operating income for July, 1921, while in June this year net earnings stood at $76,894,000, or 4.79 per cent. earned on property valuation. The fact that railway executives estimated, at the beginning of the month, a net operating income for July of only $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 is held to indicate the success of the railway managers in coping with the strike, and forms one of the important factors in the optimistic outlook which many transportation leaders are taking for the future.

An analysis of the various commodity reports which have appeared in The New York Times shows that despite the strikes of coal miners and railway shopmen, which were in effect in July, loadings of revenue freight in July on the carriers of the country increased slightly more than 10 per cent. over the same month last year. Coal loadings during the same month were approximately 45 per cent. under those of July, 1921, because of the miners' strike, but loadings of all commodities other than coal increased nearly 24 per cent. over July a year ago. Measured in net ton miles—that is, the number of tons of freight multiplied by the distance carried—there was a decrease of approximately 6½ per cent. under July, 1921, but incomplete reports show an increase in freight traffic of about 2.6 per cent. during the first seven months of 1922, as compared with the corresponding period last year.

With details of the first seven months operations now a matter of record, railway observers are also engaged in computing the possible record which the carriers will be able to show for the entire year of 1922. Net operating income of the Class 1 roads for the seven months' period stood at $418,271,000 as compared with $214,713,400 during the same period of 1921. This is at the annual rate of return on their tentative valuation of 4.34 per cent., as compared with 2.24 per cent. during the first seven months last year, and means that the railways fell short $156,510,000 of realizing 6 per cent. return on their tentative valuation during the seven months' period. Last year for the same months they lacked $300,266,000 of that return.

With these figures in mind leaders on railroad finance have estimated that the Class 1 railroads of the United States should show a net operating income for 1922 of about $900,000,000, or about 5 per cent. on the $18,000,000,000 investment, as compared with a net of $615,000,000 actual net for 1921, or 3.31 per cent. earned on property valuation. It was pointed out that most of the net last year was accumulated in the last half year, the usual development of every normal railway year. Of the $615,000,000 net for the twelve months of 1921 only approximately $145,000,000 was earned in the first half year, while $470,000,000 was earned in the second six months.

The officials point out that every month up to July, 1922, has shown a marked improvement over the same month a year ago.

As far as this year is concerned, executives state, the roads will lose practically all the benefits of the wage reductions applicable July 1, because the savings from the lower wage schedules were almost totally absorbed by the extra costs of combating the shopmen's strike.

RAILWAY RESULTS IN 1922.

Percentage of Earnings to Property Valuation, Compared With 1921.

The completed statement of net railway earnings in this country for July shows in the aggregate 4.04 per cent. earned on property valuation, compared with earnings of 4.5 per cent. in the corresponding month last year. Comparisons of recent months with a year ago, however, show very substantial increase.

The figures for the seven months thus reported on, compared with the same months in 1921, are as follows:

July	4.04	4.5
June	4.79	3.1
May	4.36	2.4

Callable at par on May 1, 1932, or any interest date thereafter. Interest payable May and November 1 at Equitable Trust Company, New York City
Denominations: $1,000

These bonds are exempt from all Federal Income Tax, and in every State from State, Municipal and Local Taxation.

(The tax exemption is equal to that of the United States Liberty 3½% Bonds)

These bonds are issued under the Federal Farm Loan Act passed by Congress September 17, 1916, and fully sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States on February 28, 1921.

These bonds are secured by first mortgages, deposited with the Federal Farm Loan Registrar.

The mortgages are on improved farm lands, which by the limitation of the Act cannot exceed 50% of the farmland value and 20% of the appraised permanent improvements. They are actually at a still more conservative rate.

The percentage of loans to total appraised value for each of the banks is 32.9% or less. A number of farms have been sold since original loans were made. From official record of sales we find the average sale price per acre for the Arkansas Bank was $109.24, while the average amount loaned per acre on this land was only $33.60. Likewise for the Mississippi Bank, the average sale price per acre was $155.70, while the average loan per acre on this land was only $36.97.

The territory in which these banks loan money on first mortgages is the Delta of the Mississippi River, and is one of the most fertile areas in the world. The production in farm values in dollars per acre is unusually high, while the average indebtedness per acre is comparatively very low.

The present net earnings on the capital stock of the Arkansas Bank are 9.3% and those of the Mississippi Bank 9.6%, and neither of the banks have any mortgages in process of foreclosure. The Arkansas Bank has never been forced to foreclose on any of its loans, and the Mississippi Bank but on one only.

The bonds are in addition the direct obligation of the Arkansas Joint Stock Land Bank or the Mississippi Joint Stock Land Bank. The stocks of these banks have been fully paid in cash at not less than par, and are assessable to the full par value.

The stock of each of the above banks is owned by the Bank of Commerce & Trust Company, of Memphis, Tenn., which is one of the strongest financial institutions in the South and is the second largest bank in Memphis. The majority of the directors of these banks are also directors in the Bank of Commerce & Trust Company. This insures wise and experienced management of the banks. In addition, the financial ability of the stockholders of the banks (i. e., Bank of Commerce & Trust Company) to pay any necessary assessment is assured.

Of the fifty or more Joint Stock Land Banks, but five of them were chartered prior to these banks, which were chartered on June 22, 1918.

These bonds are legal investments for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government and are acceptable at par for deposits of Postal Savings and other deposits of Government funds.

CITES ALLIES' LOAD TO MEET INTEREST

Charges for Carrying War Debts Would Absorb Two-Thirds of Revenues, Says Report.

40% THE COST TO BRITAIN

France Would See 70, Italy 80 Per Cent. of Income Go, Guaranty Trust Finds.

The payment of interest this year or next on the inter-government debts which resulted from the co-operative efforts of the allied and associated powers during and after the World War, would entail such a big burden upon the debtors that about two-thirds of their expected revenues would be absorbed by the total charges for carrying their debts, according to a compilation by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

The review says:

"Of the three principal Allies, Great Britain, France and Italy, Great Britain is the only one which has yet succeeded in balancing expenditures and revenues. Both France and Italy are still planning for expenditures for the ordinary cost of running their Governments in excess of their revenues, and in addition have extensive programs for capital development and reconstruction in order to restore the producing power of their peoples. They thus face so grave a financial situation, until they have successfully readjusted their budgets to a peace-time basis, that the immediate resumption of the suspended interest payments on their 'political debts,' as the French characterize these debts, to other Governments, seems to be precluded.

"The British Government has set aside £85,000,000 for a half year's interest on the debt to the United States Government in the budget for the current fiscal year. The total interest charges thus amount to about 36.8 per cent. of the expected revenues. If Great Britain had to meet a full year's interest on this debt during the present fiscal year the total debt charge would amount to approximately 40 per cent. of her expected revenue.

"In the case of France, however, it is quite different. If France were to meet interest charges on her debts to Great Britain and the United States, requiring about 2,900,000,000 francs, at average current rates of exchange, in addition to estimated charges on her other debts in the present fiscal year, total debt charges would require over 16,000,000,000 francs, and almost 70 approximately 70 per cent. of her expected revenue.

"The burden on Italy would not be quite so great relatively. If Italy should pay interest to both Great Britain and the United States on her 'political debts' during the current fiscal year, the addition would raise her estimated debt charges to about 9,000,000,000 lire, or in excess of 60 per cent. of expected revenues."

CASE OF GERMAN INVESTORS

Contrary Workings of Currency Inflation on Investment Values.

The Berlin newspapers, pointing out the capricious manner in which the currency inflation in Germany has affected investors, give two typical instances. An owner of land whose estate was valued officially in 1913 at 1,640,000 marks, and carried a mortgage of 1,100,000 marks, had subsequently paid off his mortgage out of the profits of three harvests sold at the greatly enhanced prices, the value of the mortgage itself in marks not having increased.

On the other hand, the owner of a villa which had cost him 40,000 marks before the war, lately sold his property for 120,000 paper marks, but had to pay in unearned increment tax 61,644 marks. In that case it was estimated that his net receipts amounted to not more than 300 gold marks.

B. & O.'S NET INCOME $21,853,546 IN 1921

Decrease of $4,580,749 From 1920—Gross Revenues Last Year $178,622,372.

PROPERTY RETURN OF 3.09%

Ratio of Operating Expenses to Operating Revenues 83.81%, an Improvement Over Previous Year.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, in its annual report for 1921, shows net railway operating income amounting to $21,853,546, equivalent to 3.09 per cent earned on the investment in property aggregating $707,032,851. This represents a decrease of $4,580,749 as compared with the net operating income of $26,434,295 which the road reported for 1920.

Total gross revenues in 1921 were $198,622,372 while total railway operating expenses were $166,457,024, making the ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues 83.81 per cent. Other corporate income last year was $10,-120,824 as against $5,389,858 in 1920. After allowing for all deductions the company reported net corporate income of $6,388,891 as against $7,245,480 in 1920. The outstanding items of the report are given in the following table:

Total railway operating revenues	$198,622,372	.....
Total railway operating expenses	166,457,024	.....
Net income from property used in transportation service	21,853,546	$26,434,295
Other corporate inc.	10,120,824	5,389,858
Gross corporate inc.	31,974,370	31,824,153
Total deductions from gross corporate inc.	25,585,478	24,588,673
Net corporate income.	6,388,891	7,245,480

In the general balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1921, total current assets were $70,066,544, a decrease of $14,101,903, while total current liabilities were $41,753,737, a decrease of $14,509,995 as compared with Dec. 31, 1921. The number of shareholders in the company as of Dec. 31, 1921, was 35,640.

Daniel Willard, President, said in his remarks to the stockholders:

"Mail revenue for the year shows a decrease under 1920 of $1,579,954.08, which is due wholly to the inclusion in the figures for 1920 of $2,104,680.97 above the earnings of that year representing additional allowances by the Government for services rendered in the years 1916 to 1919, so that, if this additional allowance is eliminated in the comparison of 1921 with 1920, there is an actual increase in favor of 1921 of $524,726.89, or 23.50 per cent.

"Express revenue decreased $2,571,-758.43 or 55.17 per cent., part of which is due to the downward trend of business and part to the revision of the divisions established by the Director General of Railroads, and which remained in effect throughout the first eight months of 1920. Other revenues, including switching, storage, demurrage, etc., decreased $1,928,605.41, or 11.36 per cent., also due to the falling off in business activities.

"Total operating revenues for the year were $198,622,372.81, of which 78.75 per cent. was from freight, 14.77 per cent. from passenger, 1.39 per cent. from mail, 1.05 per cent. from express, and 4.04 per cent. from all other revenues. The decrease in gross revenue for the year compared with 1920 was $33,322,070.53, or 14.57 per cent.

"Maintenance of way and structures expenses during 1921 were $24,617,808.24, a decrease as compared with 1920 of $8,441,474.64, or 25.58 per cent, and maintenance equipment expenses for the year were $45,129,857.14, a decrease when compared with the previous year of $23,742,958.52, or 34.47 per cent. Total maintenance charges for the year were $69,747,665.38, and constituted 41.90 per cent. of all operating expenses and 35.12 per cent. of all operating revenues.

"Transportation expenses for the year were $85,481,386.51, a decrease as compared with 1920 of $28,322,722.05, or 24.89 per cent. and comprised 51.35 per cent. of total operating expenses and 43.04 per cent. of total operating revenues.

"All other expenses for the year were $11,227,972.58, an increase over 1920 of $564,872.43, or 5.30 per cent. This increase is largely due to increase in traffic expenses, occasioned principally by the re-establishment and expansion of agencies at various important points off the line of road.

"Total operating expenses for 1921 were $166,457,024.47, a decrease under 1920 of $59,942,283.38, or 26.48 per cent., compared with a decrease in operating revenues of $33,322,070.53, or 14.57 per cent."

MELLON SEEKS $200,000,000.

Offers New Issue of Treasury Certificates at 3¾ Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—New Treasury certificates, dated Sept. 15 and bearing interest at 3¾ per cent., were offered for subscription tonight by Secretary Mellon. The issue will be for about $200,000,000.

The issue carries the usual tax exemptions, and Treasury certificates maturing Sept. 15, and also Series D-1922, maturing Oct. 16, will be accepted in payment of the new obligations.

Government financing on Sept. 15, it was explained at the Treasury, will be confined to arrangements for current expenses, as approximately $300,000,000 in maturities and interest falling due on that date is expected to be cared for by the second instalment of income and profits taxes, due at the same time, which it is estimated will yield a similar amount in revenue.

Mr. Mellon reserved the right to allot less than the amount of the new certificates applied for.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN ENGLAND

Percentage of Idle Workers Decreasing While Cost of Living Falls.

According to the British Labor Bureau estimate, unemployment in England at the end of July had fallen to the lowest figure since March of 1921. The percentage of trades union membership unemployed was 14.6, comparing with 15.7 in June, with 17 in April, with 23.1 in May of 1921, which was the high point of the period, but with only 1.4 in July of 1920.

The same bureau's statement of cost of living in England estimated that cost in August as 81 per cent. above July, 1914; in August, 1921, the average stood 122 per cent. above the 1914 figure, and the high level of the recent period of high prices, that of November, 1920, was 176 per cent. above the pre-war year.

Burns Bros. Directorate Increased.

Recent additions to the board of Burns Bros. include Thomas L. Chadbourne, two members of the firm of Ladenburg, Thalman & Co. and Gerhard M. Dahl of the Chase National Bank. Officials of the corporation declare that it has sufficient orders on its books to tax delivery capacity for the rest of the year, with the outlook that in the fiscal year ending March 31 the company's sales will exceed 5,000,000 tons.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC RISES IN THE WEST

GENERAL OUTLOOK IS GOOD

But Prices of Farm Products Are Held to Be Discouragingly Inadequate.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—While traffic of the leading Western railroads continue in excess of that of last year, the loadings do not fully reflect the increased output of coal, although it is expected that they will in the immediate future. The Atchison loadings of all freight the last week were 17 per cent. in excess of last year's despite a decrease of 18 per cent. in coal.

The difference was decidedly marked on the Burlington, which gained 8 per cent. in the aggregate while losing 47 per cent. in coal. On the Rock Island all freight increased 12 per cent. and coal 15 per cent., as compared with last year, and the Illinois Central, a big coal road, gained 4 per cent. in the aggregate and was off 2 per cent. in coal.

There is no surplus of cars of consequence on any of the leading grain carrying roads. The primary movement shows that the weekly arrivals are practically the same as the average of the last five years. The main factor in causing many of the roads to show reduction in grain loadings is that the movement last year was considerably above the average.

Lumber and building material are in keen demand and loadings on a majority of roads are far in excess of 1921. The movement of general merchandise is holding up well, while oil is running far ahead of last year in the Southwest.

There is still, however, a disposition to go a little slow in buying many commodities on the part of distributers, but the fact that practically in no line are there to-day any overstocking keeps buyers coming into the market much more frequently.

Current wholesale distribution of dry goods is running slightly less than a year ago and fraod sales also are less. Weather conditions have been unfavorable in many sections.

Heavy Drop in Grain Prices.

The average price of wheat futures at Chicago on Sept. 9 was $1.03¾ per bushel; taking the September, December and the May, as compared with $1.28¾ last year, a loss of 25 per cent. or around 65 per cent. On the same basis, the Winnepeg price is 97¼ cents, a drop of 45 cents per bushel, or 30 per cent. from the figures of a year ago. On the other hand, the combined wheat crop of North America is only 12 per cent. in excess of that of 1921.

So wheat in many sections is not returning the producer a proper amount of compensation for labor and interest, and in some quarters the belief is expressed that grain prices are much too low in comparison with other commodities. An advance of 10 cents per bushel in wheat and corn and 5 cents in oats would mean much to the farmer and nothing to the consumer.

Wheat has had a range of 5 cents for the December for the last three weeks, and the $1 figure at Chicago is regarded as likely to be the fighting level for the balance of the season.

Believers in better prices later have been taking the buying side on breaks and selling out on the bulges. Pressure from hedgers has not been so great as expected, owing to a revival in the foreign demand for Manitobas, which have been taken in much larger quantities than reported. The crest of the Spring wheat movement will be witnessed during the next six weeks, with the arrivals at terminals limited only by the ability of the railroads to furnish cars.

Need Forces Farmers to Sell.

In both the American and Canadian Northwest farmers are forced to sell freely on account of financial conditions, and only wet weather or a shortage of cars can prevent big receipts.

The corn market has been showing stubborn resistance to selling pressure, owing to the crop losses already sustained, and there are many believers in ultimately much higher prices.

As compared with a week ago, wheat showed an advance of ½@2¾ cents; corn, 2½@2¾; oats ¾@2¾, and rye, 1¾@4½.

SHIFTING MOVEMENT OF BRITISH FOREIGN TRADE

Surplus of Exports to Rest of Europe Against Import Surplus in 1921.

The complete returns of the British Board of Trade on England's foreign commerce during the first half of 1922 show that the surplus of imports over exports, amounting to £61,100,000, was very irregularly distributed, as between the different continents with which Great Britain trades. In England's trade with the European continent, the half year produced a surplus of exports amounting to £18,900,000, as compared with a surplus of imports during the same period in 1921 amounting to £20,-200,000 and with an import surplus of £29,400,000 in the same half of 1914. Trade with the United States in the first half of 1922 produced an import surplus of £77,000,000, comparing with a similar surplus of £118,300,000 a year ago, and £34,500,000 in 1914.

In trade with other foreign countries, the import excess for the period this year was £7,800,000, comparing with £5,200,000 a year ago, and with an export surplus of £3,400,000 in 1921. Although exports of British products during the half year decreased £17,137,000, as compared with 1921, the Board of Trade returns show that exports to Holland increased £9,602,000, to France £7,557,000, to Germany £7,273,000, to Belgium £3,384,000, with increase in shipments to Switzerland, Portugal, Russia, Italy and Denmark of £1,000,-000 to £2,000,000.

In the case of imports, the classified trade returns show that the total decrease of £84,177,000 from the corresponding half year in 1921 was made up chiefly from decrease of £39,864,000 in imports from the United States. There was also a decrease of £7,302,000 in imports from Argentina and of £3,163,000 from China, but imports from Cuba increased £1,141,000 and from Brazil £1,-765,000. The statement is accompanied by the reminder that comparison with the corresponding six months in 1921 is somewhat vitiated through the fact that the coal strike, with its consequent interruption of export traffic, was in full swing during that period a year ago.

BUILDING GAINS IN SOUTH.

Shows 42.7% Increase in 84 Cities in First Six Months of 1922.

An exhaustive survey just completed by G. L. Miller & Co. of building in sixteen Southern States covering the first six months of 1922 reveals that contracts and permits issued during the period reached the total of $249,945,968, or within a few thousand dollars of a quarter of a billion.

In eighty-four cities where comparative statistics are available the percentage of gain over the first six months of 1921 is 42.7 per cent.

STANDARD OIL GROUP HAS PAID A BILLION

Dividends Distributed Since Dissolution of Old Company in 1911 Total $1,010,703,594.

MAKING A RECORD THIS YEAR

Disbursements Since Jan. 1 Last Aggregate $86,508,797—Exceeds Payments in 1920.

The various companies comprising the Standard Oil group have distributed more than $1,000,000,000 to stockholders in the form of dividends since 1911, when the United States Supreme Court ordered the old Standard Oil Company of New Jersey dissolved into smaller units. The exact amount distributed as dividends since that date is $1,010,703,594.

Payments made since the beginning of 1922 amount to $86,508,797, a new high record for any similar period in the history of the separate companies, and the prediction is made in financial circles that total payments for the full year will also establish a new high record. The previous record was established in 1920, when disbursements totaled $115,776,793.

Dividends paid by quarters thus far this year were as follows: First quarter, $28,358,340; second quarter, $29,525,349, and third quarter, $28,628,000. The larger payments in the third quarter this year chiefly were due to the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, which increased its dividend rate from $1 to $1.25 quarterly. Other companies which made larger disbursements were the Ohio Oil Company and the Prairie Oil and Gas Company.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey again held first place as to the amount of cash distributed to stockholders. This company paid to common stockholders a total of $4,943,966 and to preferred stockholders $8,471,121. Other companies which paid out more than $1,000,000 include the Stanadrd Oil Company of Indiana with a total of $4,294,413; Standard Oil Company of California, $4,035,344; Standard Oil Company of New York, $3,000,000; Prairie Pipe Line Company, $1,150,000; Anglo American Oil Company, $1,350,000, and Ohio Oil Company, $1,200,000.

Cash dividends paid by the various companies by quarters since 1911 as compiled by C. H. Pforaheimer & Co. follow (three ciphers omitted):

HARD COAL SHORTAGE.

Commerce Chamber Puts Reserve at 30,000,000 Tons Below Normal.

The country's normal supply of anthracite coal is already short about 30,000,000 tons as a result of the five months' suspension of coal mining, according to a statement issued by the Coal Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. According to the statement, the normal yearly production of anthracite coal suitable for household purposes is about 72,000,000 tons.

As it is possible to store anthracite safely for long periods, the industry is organized to run with fair uniformity throughout the year. It is the custom of producers, dealers and many domestic consumers to accumulate supplies in the Summer and Fall against Winter needs. As the productive capacity of the anthracite mines is sufficient to meet all of this uniform demand only, any interruption in the regular production in the Summer months is bound to create a shortage which cannot be overcome. "Except for a few thousand tons recovered monthly by dredging from the rivers coal washed down from the mines," continues the statement, "there has been no production since April. There are no accurate figures as to stocks of anthracite usually carried by producers or in the bins of household consumers. It is known, however, that, broadly speaking, stocks of anthracite are exhausted. The strike already has caused a five months' interruption in normal production—a shortage amounting to approximately 30,000,000 tons. While the substitution of domestic sizes of bituminous coal for anthracite and increased use of gas or coke or oil may reduce to some extent the normal Winter demand for anthracite, there are many difficulties in the way of a general use of these substitutes."

The statement is accompanied by a chart which sets forth the changes in total production and total wages paid in the anthracite industry since 1913. It is shown in the chart that in 1913 there was 71,046,816 tons of anthracite mined at a labor cost of $113,220,000. In 1921, according to the chart, 70,191,006 tons of anthracite were mined at a labor cost of $288,961,000.

CAR ORDERS INCREASE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—During the first seven months of the present year the railroads of the country, according to a statement issued today by the Association of Railway Executives, ordered 95,199 freight cars, or 25,763 more than for the corresponding period of 1921.

Of the total number ordered, 41,405 were coal cars, of which 19,280 have actually been delivered and placed in service prior to Aug. 1. The number of refrigerator cars ordered was 6,429, compared with 9,355 in the same period last year.

AUTO PRODUCTION EXCEEDING RECORDS

1922 Is Expected to Be the Best Year in the History of the Industry.

OUTPUT STILL ON BIG SCALE

Enough Orders on Hand Now to Keep Accessories Plants Busy Until After January.

The automobile industry of the United States turned out more cars in the first eight months of 1922 than in the full year 1921, according to trade reports. It is expected the output for the full year will exceed the record for all time, which was 2,205,000 cars in 1920, the banner year in the history of the industry. In most quarters it is reported that, despite the seasonal falling off in demand, output continues on a large scale. The plans of Henry Ford to close his plants on the 16th are being ignored by the rest of the trade, and producers are bending every effort to meet the situation as far as fuel supplies and transportation facilities are concerned.

"A survey of the industry shows that nearly ever one is able to secure the necessary power and that they will not have to worry over the situation for at least two weeks more," according to Automotive Industries. By that time it is expected the strike situation will have been improved.

"Outside of the coal and transportation situation," the paper continues, "the automotive industry is enjoying an unexpected prosperity. Production is being maintained at a record-breaking rate and it is declared that when the August returns are all in it will be found that the industry has made more cars in the eight months of 1922 than it did in all of 1921. Indeed, it is believed that the production figures for the full year of 1922 will be greater even than the record-breaking 1920, when 2,205,000 motor vehicles were turned out.

"This prosperity is not confined to the car makers alone. The parts people are keeping step with their customers. Reports from all over the country show that there are enough orders on hand right now to keep the parts and accessories plants busy until after January. A surprising angle is that within the last week some of the leaders have had orders already received, which shows that the car manufacturers have no intention of slowing production at their end of the line."

MORE AMERICAN PORK GOING TO BRITAIN

Greater Part of United Kingdom's Imports Supplied by the United States.

The United Kingdom is importing more pork and pork products from this country, the increase during the first half of 1922 being 1.13 per cent. over the same period last year. The imports of hog products by the United Kingdom for the first six months of the current year amounted to 570,242,064 pounds, of which 341,305,888 pounds were supplied by the United States. The imports for the corresponding period of 1921 were 529,910,976 pounds, of which 306,646,024 pounds came from the United States.

The United States, during this same period, furnished 94.7 per cent. of the British lard imports, 93 per cent. of the ham imports and 44 per cent. of the imports of bacon. Denmark is the chief competitor of the United States in the British bacon trade, the imports from that country during the first six months of 1922 amounting to 122,697,000 pounds, or 39 per cent. of the total.

Although American bacon sells in England for nearly one-third less than Irish and Danish bacon, it is not in such demand as are American ham and lard. American lard sells for practically the same price as the best Irish, Danish and Dutch lard.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

Few Big Transactions Closed—Prospects for Improved Market Conditions This Week.

The realty market closed dull and inactive Saturday, but with better prospects for the present week, as several large deals are pending that will lift it out of the slump.

One of the transactions that will probably be closed in the course of a couple of days involves a large and valuable parcel in the Grand Central Station zone and will call for an expenditure of close to $2,000,000 in land and construction costs.

The number of sales south of Fifty-ninth Street was seventeen, as compared with twenty-six last week and fourteen a year ago.

The number of sales north of Fifty-ninth Street was thirty-one, as compared with thirty-six last week and thirty-nine a year ago.

INVESTORS JOCKEY FOR SPRING BUILDING

Efforts to Contract for Future Material Supplies at Lower Prices Disappointing.

NARROW SUPPLY MARGINS

Strength of Autumn Renting Market Encourages Quick Start on Next Year's Program.

Efforts on the part of building investors to contract for future building material deliveries at present or lower prices reveal general jockeying tactics for the earliest and most favorable possible start for Spring construction work, according to the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Incidents of the last week cast interesting sidelights upon the trend of the building market.

A certain Detroit automobile manufacturer came into the market for a large quantity of cement for immediate delivery. The inquiry was placed with a certain cement manufacturing company, the head of which has close personal friendship with the automobile manufacturer, but there was no free cement available for this inquiry.

It was revealed that the cement manufacturing branch of the United States Steel Corporation had no free cement in the Duluth, Buffington or Pittsburgh districts and that in order to meet some of its demands it was actually purchasing cement from the Lehigh Valley district, which is the main source of supply for New York.

In this same district the rate of production early this year indicated a national cement output of 108,000,000 barrels for 1922 or about 10,000,000 more barrels than ever before produced in this country. The stocks are from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 barrels below what they were a year ago. Hudson River cement is being shipped into the South by whomever in order to meet the actual cement shortage there.

In a plea for coal to the President's Fuel Distribution Committee at Washington it was stated that the cement in stock on Aug. 1 east of the Mississippi was less than 6,000,000 barrels, and at the present rate of shipment there is not more than a two-weeks supply of this important building commodity on hand.

Normally, August, September and October are the heaviest cement shipping months, and in order to keep the country from an actual cement famine, 20,000 tons of coal a day are required to keep this slight balance of supply in sight.

But cement is not the only building commodity that is in below par supply. Finishing lime over last week and well such low supply here that there was actually not a barrel to be had for a few days.

It seems that a bargeload of some 15,000 barrels was en route down Long Island Sound last Friday when the tug met heavy weather, delaying matters until the middle of the week. Meantime plastering work on jobs nearing completion had to stop.

When the material did come in, eighty-nine truckloads were loaded in eight hours, a record. There will be plenty of finishing lime in this market by Monday morning, however, to meet all immediate requirements.

Common brick consumption is also improving. Hudson standard grades at $16 to $18 a thousand, wholesale (for delivered prices add cost of handling, haulage and 10 per cent.), are being taken up more freely. There are fewer low grade brick at $13 being offered.

Quite amply reflects the supply situation indicated in cement and lime, glass, certain building metals and some lumbers, in that supply at best is barely sufficient to meet the present requirements.

All building construction has felt a five-weeks depression. If that softening of market demand goes on there will be building materials enough to meet all requirements. But it is a debatable question whether the depression will continue.

During the last week there has been a turn for the better. Fall rentals have not been made at reduced rates as had been expected. It is too early to know definitely, but building investors whose experience makes their opinions listenable have been impressed with the strength of the current renting situation and are proceeding with some of the $50,000,000 worth of building work that was deferred during the time when it was doubtful whether the incoming tenants would be able to absorb the new living and commercial space that was offered.

Winter construction work must be enclosed before real cold weather comes. Next March the Board of Aldermen will again take up the question whether to still or extend the exemption ordinance. To be on the safe side there will be some of the process of building preparation and plan filing that occurred last year. How much actual Fall construction will go ahead depends upon how material can be obtained. Prospective settlement of the two big strikes certainly promises better supply. Forward buying is already proceeding upon a price scale higher than the present spot market is listed at and next year's prices with low supply and high sustained demand, do not encourage waiting for lower costs.

Similar conditions as to the supply and cost of labor may be expected next year. Certainly there is little prospect of general wage reductions in the skilled building trades, and general national prosperity which usually follows the harvesting of exceptionally large crops will offer the necessary incentive for building investors to proceed with the kind of habitation and business buildings that prosperous people are always willing to pay for.

The executors of the estate of Harriet Judson sold the mansion at 12 Pierrepont Street, occupied by Mrs. Judson prior to her death. The property was purchased by Dr. Carl H. Laws, who intends to occupy the premises. CHEV, Harmon & Co., Inc., were the brokers.

The same brokers have also sold for G. Girard to a client for occupancy the three-story brick dwelling at 185 Willow Street. This property was owned by the same family for seventy-five years prior to the sale to Mr. Girard last Spring.

The four-story brick dwelling at 275 Henry Street has also been sold by Cary, Harmon & Co., Inc., for William L. Newton to a client for occupancy.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The annual Conference of Catholic Charities, which will begin at the Catholic University, near Washington, next Saturday, is expected to be attended by 2,000 delegates representing charitable institutions and social and welfare organizations. The conference will last until Sept. 21, coincidentally with the annual meetings of the National Council of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul and the Association of Diocesan Directors of Charities which represents twenty-five of the larger dioceses in the United States.

In addition to technical questions of charitable and relief administration, national social problems will be discussed. These include the restriction of immigration and the care of delinquents and defectives, child labor and the codification of laws relating to child welfare; the maternity act and legislation affecting women, especially women in industry.

BOY STOWAWAY BACK FROM BIG ADVENTURE

WON TOWNSMAN'S PITY

Binghamton Youth Had Passage Paid on Zeeland—Loses Citizen Papers in Bay.

The Red Star liner Zeeland arrived yesterday from Antwerp via Southampton and Cherbourg with 187 first, 151 second and 587 third-class passengers after a fine voyage, without any incidents to speak of, the officers said. In the third class was Jasper Heeman, the 16-year-old boy of Binghamton, N. Y., who was discovered hiding in a lifeboat on the Finland of the same line when the latter was seventy-five miles out from Sandy Hook bound for Europe.

According to Heeman, he was put to work as an ordinary seaman by the Captain and when the Finland was made fast in Antwerp he walked ashore and beat his way on trains to Brussels and Paris.

Arriving late at night in the French capital, he asked his way to the United States Consulate and crawled into a kiosk where newspapers were sold in the daytime and lay down to wait for the morning, but he did not go to sleep.

Heeman wished to deny the cabled report that he had been found in an ash can. There were no ash cans in Paris, so far as he knew. The policeman took him to the station and he was kept there locked up for five days, at the end of which Israel Deyo, a citizen of the United States who lives in Binghamton, came to his rescue, obtained his release and paid his fare to New York.

After the Zeeland left Quarantine yesterday morning Mr. Deyo, who was a passenger in the first cabin with his wife, son and daughter, went to the third class and handed Heeman his papers signed by the United States Consul in Paris certifying to his citizenship, so that he could land at the pier instead of having to stay on board until the immigrants were sent to Ellis Island. The boy was so intent looking at the shore as the liner came up the bay that the papers fell out of his pocket into the water and were lost. Mr. Deyo went to his rescue again and made an affidavit to the immigration officials stating the boy was a citizen of the United States and he was allowed to land.

Heeman said his mother died when he was 7 years old and he had five brothers and one sister. His father keeps a small shop in Binghamton where he makes baskets and cane chairs. Previous to this trip the boy said he had beaten his way on trains all over the North Atlantic States and had made a trip to Porto Rico on a freighter and another one to Pensacola. "I have had enough knocking about the world," he said before leaving the pier, "and I am now going back to Binghamton to settle down on a farm."

MAY OUST 700 CAPTAINS.

Flaw in 1920 Army Bill Hits Officers on the "Single List."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Failure of the Army Re-organization act of 1920 to stipulate that the names of officers on the "single list" to be arranged according to grade as well as to length of service may cause more than 700 officers to lose their commissions, according to a letter from some of them made public today by Acting Chairman McKenzie of the House Military Committee.

The officers affected are nearly all captains and were among those picked from the emergency ranks by the Pershing board to remain in the Regular Army. The result of the law as it stands, the letter claimed, was that mixed in with the names of captains in the single list appear those of lieutenants and in the forced reduction, which does not affect the lieutenants, captains further down must be discharged under provisions of the last Army Appropriation bill.

Is the center aisle of woolens

A prominent exporter thought it lay somewhere in the East Fifties.

Last week, he happened into Broadway at Ninth. Show-table upon show-table of woolens stretched before his eyes.

He exclaimed, "You know, I feel as if I had suddenly emerged into the center aisle of Woolendom."

He really had. Here are representative woolens from the eight great woolen-weaving countries; 33 different classes of fabrics; 47 different fall and winter weights, and over 3000 patterns.

A man, standing in this center aisle, can do his own rejecting and selecting—with the looms of the world for his prospecting field. Suit or overcoat will cost, tailored to order, from $30 to $80. Full dress coat, waistcoat and trousers, silk-lined throughout, $80; Tuxedo, $75.

Full style book and samples of woolens sent on request.

The Needless Worry of a Cautious Father

HE WAS an elderly gentleman living in Montclair, New Jersey, and had come to our office to discuss plans for the settlement of his estate.

He had never before done business with a Trust Company.

Much of the money which he planned to leave in Trust for his two sons is invested in marketable securities. We could see that he had some fear—some reservation in his mind.

Finally he asked his question:

"If the Columbia Trust Company is a Bank, what's to prevent your using my securities to help run your bank?"

This was a natural question to ask—and we replied in substance as follows:

Our Trust business is kept entirely separate from our banking business. For convenience and economy both branches are housed under one roof.

Securities left in our keeping during the settlements of estates or for Trusts are in the custody of our Trust Department. They are recorded in the Trust Department books. They are handled by Trust experts. They are kept in the Trust Department vaults. They are never mingled with our Banking Department securities, and under the law they may not be so mingled.

In our Banking business we use only such securities as are purchased with our Banking Department Funds. They are recorded in the Banking Department books. They are kept in Banking Department vaults.

The above facts which were news to our Montclair friend may also be news to you.

A depositor recently characterized us as "the bank that explains things." Please feel free to ask us any question about our business—especially those prompted by caution.
